OUTDOOR OPERATIONS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

Plant out Carnations, Pansies, Canterbury Bells, Hollyhocks and Sweet Williams. Sow seeds of Sunflowers, Godetia, Nasturtiums and other hardy annuals in beds and borders, having previously brought the soil to a fine surface. Loosen the surface of the soil between spring bedding plants. This is a good time for sowing grass seeds on weak patches in the lawn. In the fruit garden very little is to be done at present, beyond protecting wall trees now showing blossom, and keeping birds off the Gooseberry and Currant bushes. We take it that pruning, planting and training have all been completed before this time. In the vegetable department matters will be more busy, as, owing to the saturated condition of the ground, it was impossible to get planting or sowing done with any degree of comfort until within the past week or two. The season is sufficiently advanced now to sow Turnips, Cauliflower, Spinach, Carrots, Onions, Lettuce, and such other vegetable seeds as may be required. Continue to sow occasional drills of Peas and Beans, and, if not already done, get the main crop of Potatoes planted as soon as the ground can be got ready. Prick out Celery raised in heat on a bed of well-decomposed manure and loam in a cold frame, and gradually admit air as soon as the young plants are established.

BLACK OR SOFT CROP.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

This is a crop full of liquid and often follows a neglected case of crop-binding. It is rather difficult to cure, but the following should prove effective: Hold the bird downwards and empty the fluid from the crop a couple of times a day. Feed very sparingly and give some astringent, such as a little iron in the drinking water. If a few days' treatment does not bring about an improvement, the kindest thing is to kill the bird, for it is past curing. Breeds like the Rhode Island Red are more subject to this complaint than others, and when a bird belongs to this breed and is cured it should not afterwards be used for breeding purposes, as the defect is liable to transmission.

Chickens often get crop-bound from an excessive quantity of some very dry food given to them when very hungry—for instance, a heavy meal of dry oatmeal. Another fruitful source of crop-binding is the mistake of allowing birds to become very hungry and then gorging themselves. If on opening a bird's beak a very sour smell is noticed, give the bird a quarter-teaspoonful of bread soda and the same quantity of Epsom salts in a little water until better or until the sour smell has disappeared.

Crop trouble is invariably the sign that something is amiss with the feeding, so if it should occur look to the menu and the condition in which the food is given. Especially see that the supply of fresh green food does not fail. Similarly the blood clots sometimes found in eggs are attributable to a diet that is too forcing, such as one with too much fish or meat meal. Again, bad flavours in eggs may be traced to stale or musty food, to liver trouble, or to the egg remaining over-long in the passage. Great care, therefore, is always necessary in regard to the type and condition of the food, so that those ailments directly traceable to anything wrong therewith may be avoided.

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL

THE LATE TREASURER

A meeting of the Board of Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, was held yesterday in the Chapter Room of the Cathedral. The Precentor presided, in the absence of the Dean through illness.

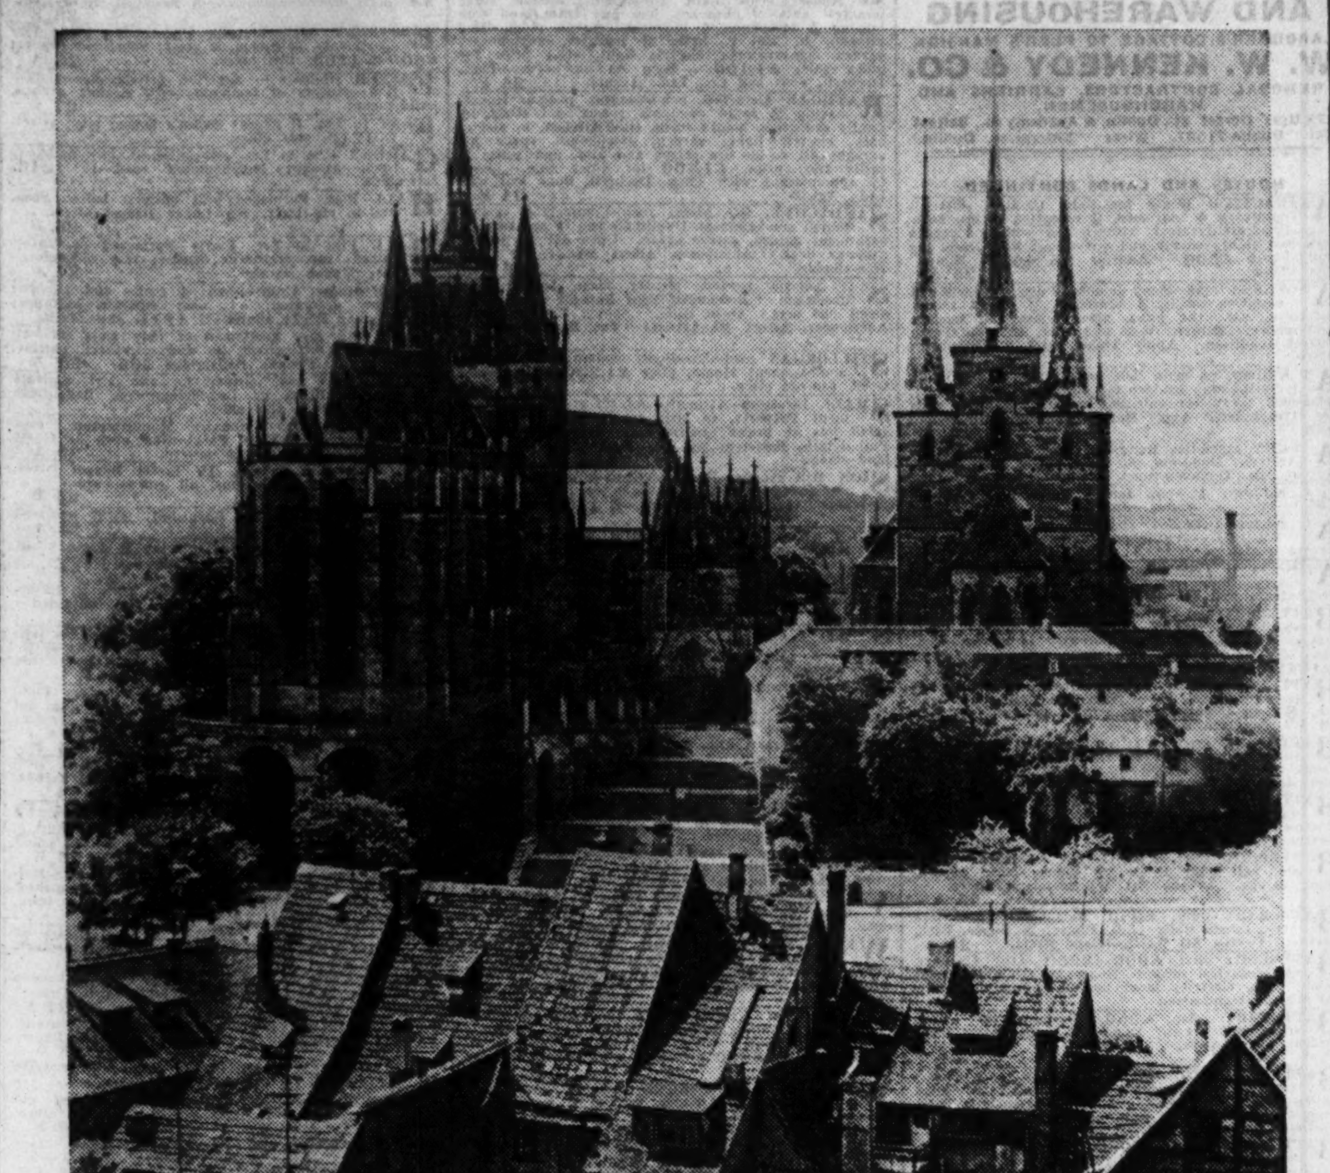

The following resolution was adopted:—"The members of the Board have learned with deep regret of the passing of their valued colleague and friend, the Reverend John Connell, M.A., treasurer of the Cathedral, and member of the Cathedral Board. They record with thankfulness their sense of the blessing which his devoted life and whole-hearted work brought to the Cathedral and the Church of God. His practical wisdom, single-minded and selfless purpose, his fearless advocacy of all he believed to be true and right, and his kindness of heart enriched the Church of Ireland during his long ministry therein, and endeared him to his colleagues on the Board. The members of the Board desire to convey their tender sympathy to Mrs. Connell and her family in their great bereavement."

Special music has been arranged for the 11 a.m. Service to-morrow in memory of the late treasurer. This will include Sir John Goss's anthem: "If we believe that Jesus rose again," and the hymn: "The King of love my Shepherd is."

PRESERVING EGGS

A HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY

TWO POPULAR METHODS

WHEN economies sit right at our doors even excellent housekeepers ignore them. There are lots of people who simply couldn't be bothered preserving eggs when they are cheap for use when they are dear. But since in all homes eggs are in constant use daily, it would be interesting to compare the egg bills in those houses where preserved eggs are used with the yearly bill in homes where preserving is "too much bother."

In the latter top prices will be paid for eggs used in puddings and cakes all through the winter. Where preserved eggs are used, the cheapest spring rates will be available all through the "scarce" season.

For the information of beginners this is the time of the year to make arrangements at some poultry farm for a delivery of eggs suitable for preserving. Good notice must always be given so that the order may be "booked." Or special arrangements might be made with country friends as regards supplies.

TWENTY DOZEN

For an ordinary household anything from twenty dozen might be sufficient for the first, and trial, year. Later this quantity can be altered to suit requirements.

As regards the use of preserved eggs, definitely they should not be served lightly-boiled or poached, but hard-boiled, fried or for use in savouries, puddings, cakes, etc., these eggs are excellent, and have the added advantage of "going" further. Preserved eggs hard-boiled are a solid basis for hors d'œuvres, that course particularly favoured during Lent.

Hard-boiled eggs, preserved or otherwise, should get twenty minutes' steady boiling, or they can be cooked without boiling for thirty-five minutes. Either way they should be transferred straight away into a bowl of ice-cold water to prevent their yolks becoming discoloured. They can be left in the cold water until required for use.

If treated in this way, preserved eggs can be used as a garnish, for salads, and, indeed, in every recipe in which hard-boiled eggs are ingredients. Imagine the saving that this secures for the household budget.

THE OUTLAY

Now let us examine the outlay. Many people advocate the water glass method. This merely means walking into a chemist's and purchasing a tinful for a couple of shillings. All necessary directions are supplied with each tin.

Two factors govern the success of this and all preserving methods—first, that the directions are carefully followed, without short-cuts; and, secondly, that the eggs themselves are fit to be preserved. For the latter you are absolutely at the mercy of the supplier. The eggs to be preserved should be absolutely fresh. For this reason common-sense ordering is essential.

There is obviously no use giving a big order to a small farm. In such a case an arrangement could be made to have the entire order delivered in convenient consignments on different days.

MY METHOD

This is where my own pet method has distinct advantages. Before passing it along I must say that I personally have had complete satisfaction with the water glass method, but it does not quite suit my requirements because I dislike fishing the wet eggs out of the mixture as required for use, and also because, given only a small space, a crock of liquid is a difficult thing to store.

The method that I employ at present is what might be called dry storage. Instead of ordering the eggs from a poultry farm, I go one better (and easier). I give my order to a farmer who undertakes to put the preserving mixture on the eggs as they are laid. The eggs are only delivered to me when the full number of my order has been collected. As the preserving mixture is dry, the eggs can be packed ordinarily for delivery, and stored either in baskets, boxes or on larder shelves direct, as space dictates.

The method of dry preserving is as follows:—To one part of borax, mix thoroughly two parts of lard in a bowl. As the eggs come in freshly laid, some of the mixture is put in the palms of the hands and rubbed firmly on the shell of the egg. The well-greased egg may then be stored in any convenient way. The mixture in the bowl can be used from day to day. It will not go bad, as the borax preserves the lard. Some people substitute unsalted butter for lard, but I prefer the latter.

A FEW A DAY

This method is also ideal for the home use of the keeper of a small number of fowl, who could perhaps spare only a few eggs per day for preserving. These people are the chief delinquents in the "it's-not-worth-while" fallacy.

It is well worth while, both for them and for every housewife, as can be proved, as I suggested in the beginning, by jotting down a few figures on paper. Have you done it? Well, isn't the result amazing?

The correct time to preserve eggs is when they are at their cheapest and most plentiful—in the spring. If you follow this advice you'll get a real thrill out of plopping dozens of eggs into your plum puddings and cakes next Christmas. Eggs at half the market price, and all going "further" too!

FROM THE NORTHERN CAPITAL

Government and Corporation : Cost of the Riots : Spahlinger Experiments : Attracting Visitors

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

THE dispute between the Belfast Corporation and the Northern Government, arising from the reduction in de-rating grants, education levy and the payment for riot damage, entered upon a further stage this week. The Lord Mayor, speaking in the Senate, gave the Corporation viewpoint about the de-rating grants. The Prime Minister entered the lists this week by addressing the Belfast Rotary Club, and he virtually told the Corporation that they ought to consider themselves lucky that they are getting off so lightly. For their edification he quoted an old Arab proverb: "I had no shoes, and I murmured until I met a man who had no feet." Translating this to Belfast phraseology, he declared: "I paid 9s. 10d. in rates, and I murmured until I met a man from Leeds who paid 14s. 10d."

Viscount Charlemont also fired a big gun at the Corporation from the Senate in reply to the Lord Mayor. All this is very entertaining, and, as Mr. Birrell would have said, "adds to the gaiety of the nation." Unfortunately, the Belfast ratepayers, who are called upon to pay more rates, including the unemployed workers, do not think it quite so funny. They are beginning to realise that the Northern Government is gradually relieving itself from some of its obligations at their expense. They are transferring burdens from taxpayers to ratepayers, and it is sheer nonsense to declare that it does not matter in which capacity the people pay.

Alderman Duff, the Chairman of the Corporation Finance Committee, has pointed out correctly that taxpayers only pay in accordance with their capacity, chiefly through income tax. Ratepayers, however, have to pay on the rates if they occupy a house, whether they are able to bear the burden or not, and, if they do not like it, they can give up their house, go into the workhouse, or live in lodgings. There is also no comparison between Belfast and Leeds. To contrast the police rate in both cities is absurd; for Belfast merely contributes £25,000 per annum to a central force under Government control. No other urban area in Northern Ireland makes any contribution. Leeds has probably a local force under its own control, and able to prevent, if necessary, outbreaks of disturbance, while Belfast has little or no say in the direction of the police.

What is Wrong?

All this long-distance sniping between the Government and the Corporation does not get to the real kernel of the trouble. A correspondent in the Press points out: "One would have thought after the great outburst of indignation against revaluation Lord Craigavon would have employed the interval in making a new financial deal with Great Britain. The issue is not between the Belfast Corporation and the various public bodies, but between the Government of Northern Ireland and the British Treasury."

This is the argument which I have been putting forward for over two years. When the Northern Parliament was set up at the urgent request of the British Government the people of Northern Ireland were not asked to assume the same standards of valuation and rates as English cities. The lower taxable capacity of Northern Ireland, calculated at 47 per cent. that of Great Britain, was fully recognised. The Northern finances were arranged upon the terms of the White Paper issued at the time, which allowed educational services to be a State charge, and the police force a State force, plus a contribution from Belfast. The Colwyn Committee recognised this and decided that there should be a change from the State to local authorities, or vice versa, only in so far as similar charges were made in future in Great Britain. That is how Northern Ireland got its de-rating. But the White Paper and the Colwyn Committee principles have been thrown overboard, and the Prime Minister now declares that "we are full partners in the United Kingdom."

If Northern Ireland was a full partner in the United Kingdom, as it should be under the terms of the Government of Ireland Act, the financial arrangement of that Act would be different. Northern Ireland would not lose nearly a quarter of a million revenue when the Chancellor of the Exchequer at Westminster reduced income tax by 6d. in the £, and be called upon to make that up from its own resources. There is not much "full partnership" in such a scheme. No other area of the United Kingdom has to make good a reduction in taxation.

What is wrong is that 89 per cent. of Northern Ireland's revenue is levied at Westminster without any regard to the yield in Northern Ireland. The Northern Government has to try to live on this yield, and when it cannot it has to foist more burdens on to the local authorities. There is a simple solution in allocating Northern Ireland's residuary share of reserved revenue on a population basis, but for some unaccountable reason the Government seems quite happy to muddle along by making the ratepayers shoulder the burden. But the ratepayers are beginning to kick, and when they kick a little more vigorously something will be done.

Cost of Riots

The disturbances in Belfast last summer are going to cost the ratepayers of the city £34,000 for malicious injuries and damages to property. This sum is equal to a rate of 3d. in the £ on the new valuations. The Corporation requested the Northern Government to make a substantial contribution to the cost of the riots, but the Government refused to accede to the request, but agreed to allow the Corporation to levy the amount required from the ratepayers over a period of five years. The Corporation based their claim for State assistance on the contention that the disturbances were of political origin, as in 1921 and 1922, when the British Government met the cost; but the Northern Government held that the cause was different. The Belfast Corporation pays a contribution of £25,000 per annum to the cost of the police force, which is under the control of the Government. It is certainly hard lines on the ratepayers of Belfast to "foot the bill" for riots when they have no control of the police, and are not responsible for maintaining law and order.

The Corporation has informed the Government to this effect, but the Government, apparently, holds the view that if certain people in Belfast indulge in rioting, and damage property and cause loss of lives and injury to individuals, then the citizens should pay for it. The Corporation is making a further appeal to the Government for assistance in this matter, and, while legally the Corporation is liable, in equity the Government, which controls the police force, is responsible for law and order. The Finance Committee is not recommending the Corporation to spread the cost over five years. It is to be hoped that if the Corporation has to meet the whole cost it will not persist in this decision, but that the 3d. rate will be spread over three years. The ratepayers, with the higher valuations this year, are entitled to any amelioration of their burden that they can secure. If Belfast citizens are going to be made responsible for political disturbances they should form a conciliation committee of all parties, and seek power to indict politicians and others who make inflammatory speeches.

Spahlinger Experiments

Further tests are to be made in Northern Ireland in the campaign against tuberculosis in cattle. These will supplement the exhaustive experiments which have already been carried out by the Northern Ministry of Agriculture with H. Henry Spahlinger's famous vaccine. The new investigations are intended to carry a stage further the previous experiments, which were generally regarded as highly successful. They will aim at securing data upon the controversial problem whether, after an animal has been subjected to the Spahlinger vaccine, and then submitted to the tuberculin tests, any immunity given by the vaccine is lost. More than 100 calves are to be vaccinated and exposed to the most intense form of natural infection—feeding with milk from tuberculosis cows, and also allowed to live with those infected animals on a farm near Hillsborough, Co. Down. A number of unvaccinated calves will undergo similar treatment, and the contrast in the fate of the two herds is expected to give conclusive data as to the efficacy of the Spahlinger vaccine in coping with one of the worst and most dangerous diseases among cattle.

Every Ministry of Agriculture in the British Empire and in foreign countries is interested in the results of the coming experiments, and are keeping in close touch with the Northern Ireland Ministry of Agriculture. Should the further experiments achieve the desirable results that are anticipated, there will be a demand for the use of the Spahlinger vaccine in all herds, with a gradual elimination of tuberculosis in cattle. These may be the forerunner of experiments to eradicate tuberculosis in human beings.

Attracting Visitors

The Northern seaside resorts are alive to the importance of providing attractions for visitors. Each year new plans are made, and that these are appreciated is shown by the annual report of the Portrush Sports Committee. Fifty-four thousand people passed through the turnstiles at the various entertainments organised by the Committee during the season. During the coming year even better results may be achieved, as a very comprehensive programme has been arranged. In the middle of July there will be a fireworks display, followed a few days later by a carnival. On the 22nd July there will be fireworks and a special Scottish programme for the large number of Scottish visitors anticipated at this period. In August there will be a tattoo on the 5th of the month, a carnival on the 13th, and more fireworks on the 20th, and the latter will be repeated on the 10th September. There will also be a bowling tournament in July. A tennis week, commencing 24th August, will embrace the Irish Close Hard Court Championship, the County Antrim Championship, and a full list of handicap events. Band promenades and open-air dances are also being considered.

Portrush is certainly offering its visitors something more than the fresh Atlantic breezes and its splendid golf course. Bangor also is arranging an elaborate programme of attractions for visitors, although Portrush, among the Northern holiday resorts, has developed these attractions to a greater extent than any other district. Newcastle and Warrenpoint also are popular resorts for Free State visitors. All the Northern resorts report excellent bookings for the Easter holidays.

MARIAN ARTS GUILD

AMATEUR FILM PRODUCTION

An interesting feature of the 1935 programme of the Marian Arts Guild Festival is the section which offers a prize for the best amateur film completed this year. It is thought by the organisers of the Guild that the interest in amateur film production in Ireland is sufficiently great to warrant the inclusion of the section, and a good entry is expected.

Applications for entry forms in all parts of the festival have come to the Guild headquarters from all parts of Ireland, and it is thought that a large total number of entries will be received, and that all sections will be well patronised.

The dramatic section is the third annual stage competition organised by the Guild, and includes a number of opportunities for children's dramatic groups.

John Count McCormack has sent a generous cheque as a contribution to the prize fund.

The organisers of the Guild include many people who are well known in artistic circles, and they have signified their willingness to help with all kinds of artistic productions.

DUBLIN DRAMA LEAGUE

"Hotel Universe," by Philip Barry, one of the most brilliant of the younger American writers, will be given its first production in Europe to-morrow (Sunday) and Monday at the Gate Theatre by the Drama League. It is a subtle, sophisticated play about a group of wealthy young Americans, who meet in the South of France. The cast includes Shelah Richards, Ria Mooney, Tom Purefoy, Robert Hennessy, Dorothy Lowrie and Charlotte McGlenaghan.

These performances are open to the public, as well as to members of the League.

DIOCESAN SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

A very enjoyable Ceilidh was given in the Diocesan School for Girls, Adelaide road, Dublin. Some short plays, including "Brod agus Buaidhirt," were acted by the pupils. Irish dances and songs were included in the programme.

EFFECT ON THE MODERN GIRL

A DISTASTE FOR COOKING

He had been informed that one of the reasons for the fall in the demand for apples during recent years was a distaste for cooking on the part of the modern girl, caused by the lure of the cinema and the dance hall. Canned fruit was supplanting cooked apples. Apple-peeling soiled the hands

This statement was made at yesterday's sitting of the Fruit and Vegetables Tribunal in Dublin, at which Mr. H. O'Friel presided, by Mr. W. I. Hans, Grove View, Moylough, Ballinasloe, County Galway, who represented the Mount Bellew Fruit Growers' Association.

He also stated that a remarkable thing about the apple trade was that the tariff had caused a reduction instead of an increase in prices.

His Association made the following suggestions:—The establishment of a packing and grading station in apple areas; the grading of three qualities for the market and a fourth for jam and cider; the complete reorganisation of the Dublin Fruit Market; the prohibition of foreign imports of apples between July 1st and the 1st April following each year, and the setting up of auction markets.

MARKETING OF PRODUCE

Mr. S. Gilthorpe; The Nurseries, Monkstown, Co. Dublin, gave evidence on behalf of the Irish Glasshouse and Market Growers' Association, which, he said, as an organised body of growers, adopted the best methods they could, to market their produce in well-packed and well-graded containers, and in a condition as near perfect as possible. The great drawback they experienced was the difficulty in procuring containers at an economic price. Lettuce crates, for instance, cost nine shillings per dozen, each holding two dozen heads. The bulk of the lettuce would be marketed during April and May, and the price would probably average 1s. 9d. per dozen. Deducting the cost of the crate, the packing, marketing, salesman's commission, and growing expenses, that figure would leave a very small, if any, return for the grower. Consequently they were forced into marketing that crop in returnable boxes, containing from two to eight dozen heads. This, however, also had its drawback, and probably led to smaller prices. The same conditions applied to tomatoes and cucumbers, which, with lettuce, were the chief glasshouse crops grown by members of the association.

Mr. Gilthorpe explained that it was not the marketing system they objected to, but to the place and the conditions. He suggested that the Dublin market should be opened half an hour earlier than at present during the whole year round.

The real trouble was the competition carried on by private growers with the man whose livelihood depended on the marketing of his produce. The private grower should be compelled to sell through the market, but he did not see how a market sales system could be enforced.

MORE GLASSHOUSES

The number of glasshouses in the country was rapidly increasing in consequence of the effect of tariffs and quotas, and one of the results was that the number of glasshouses was double what it was a few years ago. Glasshouse erection was being developed to an amazing extent throughout the country, but it was yet difficult to say when saturation point in this regard would be reached.

Mr. Gilthorpe expressed himself in favour of compulsory grading and declared that there was no doubt but that foreign tomatoes were being sold in the country as Irish produce.

"This," he said, "is most glaring at the beginning of the season, because the first consignments of Dutch tomatoes are in fairly good condition, although not so good as the home produce. I think the whole thing is scandalous." He added that the sale of foreign tomatoes under the guise of Irish took place only in the shops and the streets. They were described in shop windows as "Hothouse" tomatoes, the public being misled into believing that they were Irish. All foreign produce should be clearly and properly labelled.

Messrs. J. Simpson, The Nurseries, Monkstown, Blackrock, and Mr. W. Barrett, The Nurseries, Cabinteely, gave similar evidence.

THE HOTEL TRADE

That the wholesale fruit and vegetable market was closed to the hotel, restaurant and catering trade, and that the actual growers and retail trade had to be relied on, was the statement made by Mr. M. Mortell, Manager, Jury's Hotel, and Mr. R. J. Kidney, Secretary, representing the Hotel, Restaurant and Catering Association of Ireland, Ltd. This, he said, was his information on the position, and if the hotel trade endeavoured to go into the market the retailers would be hostile. The greater part of requirements was bought from local shops. Canned vegetables produced in this country cost about 50 per cent. more than the British article, and it was hoped that prices would come down to a more reasonable level.

The trade catered for all tourists, and owing to the fact that the price of meals could not be increased the Association members were unable to recover the charges imposed on fruit and vegetables, as well as on virtually all classes of foodstuffs. Association members spent £12,000 yearly on fresh fruit and vegetables.

HIDDEN AMONG GRAVES

BIG COLLECTION OF LOOT

Dublin detectives' discovery of stolen property to the value of over £52 among decayed coffins and bones in the Nicholas street, Dublin, graveyard was described at the Children's Court, Morgan place, Dublin, yesterday, when eight boys were charged before Mr. Cussen, Senior District Justice, with breaking and entering the premises of Messrs. Thomas Henshaw and Company at Christ Church place and stealing the property. The articles included a .22 sporting rifle, watches to the value of £30, mouth organs to the value of £5, hair oil to the value of £1, and miscellaneous articles valued at £15.

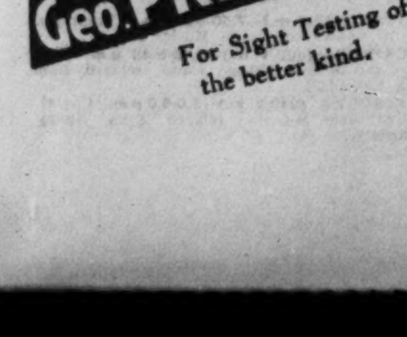

Dteective-Officer Leonard said that, accompanied by Detective-Officer O'Callaghan, between 2 a.m and 5 a.m. on March 16th last he went to the vaults of a disused graveyard in Nicholas street. Scattered among the decayed coffins and their contents were a number of the missing articles, the remainder of which were found hidden among stones in the graveyard.

The boys, who had been on remand, were further charged with maliciously damaging property in Messrs. Henshaw's to the value of £21, and with cutting the wires off and removing a telephone receiver in a kiosk in Nicholas street.

Two of the boys were released under the Probation Act; another was remanded to Summerhill; five were remanded to Summerhill pending their entry into an industrial school.

THIRD PARTY RISKS

INSURANCE POLICY CANCELLED

COMPANY GETS DECREE FOR DAMAGES

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

The hearing was resumed of the action in which John R. T. Pilkington, Carrick, Burlington road, Dublin, claimed that under a motor insurance contract, dated September 10, 1934, the defendants, the New Ireland Assurance Company, Ltd., Dawson street, Dublin, were bound to indemnify him during the period of the contract against damages or costs and expenses, for which he might become liable in the defence of actions for alleged negligence in connection with the motor car, which was the subject of the contract.

For the defence it was pleaded that a proposal which formed the basis of the contract contained untrue and incomplete statements and answers, and that material facts were withheld by the plaintiff. The defendants counterclaimed for an order for repayment to them by the plaintiff of £2,464 damages, £329 costs and £31 expenses which they were obliged to pay in respect of a claim brought against the plaintiff by Josephine Duffy, who was knocked down by his car in Dublin on November 19, 1934. They also claimed payment of any sums which they were liable to pay to Michael Maguire, who had threatened to bring proceedings in respect of damage to his car in a collision with the plaintiff's car on the Stillorgan road, Dublin, on November 19, 1934.

Mr. Leonard, K.C., and Mr. E. S. FitzSimon (instructed by Mr. T. G. McVeagh) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C., Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., and Mr. K. Dixon (instructed by Messrs. Little, O hUadhaigh and Proud) for the defendants.

The policy had been cancelled by the defendants before the contract period had expired, it being pleaded that in his proposal to the defendants the plaintiff had suppressed the fact that his proposal had been twice declined by the Irish Life and General Assurance Co.

COMPANY PAID

Mr. FitzGerald, continuing his opening address on behalf of the defendants, said that at no time between the proposal and the issue of the policy was any notice given to the appropriate official of the defendant company that there had been anything in the nature of a previous refusal of the insurance. Even after the discovery of the invalidity of the policy, the defendants had had to pay Miss Duffy. After repudiating liability the company took the fair and proper course of interviewing the plaintiff, who admitted that he had been refused on two occasions by the Irish Life Company, but never suggsted that he had disclosed that fact before, or that it had been known to the defendant company.

Kevin Foy, an official of the Irish Life Assurance Company, giving evidence on behalf of the defendants, said that the plaintiff tendered a proposal form for motor car insurance at the company's office. After showing the proposal form to his superior, witness informed the plaintiff that his company could not accept the application. Plaintiff remarked that it was absurd that the insurance could not be effected. Witness could not recollect definitely if the plaintiff called subsequently to the office, but believed he did so. He had no recollection that the proposal form was signed.

Albert Hanman, another official of the Irish Life Company, said that a propsal form from the plaintiff was brought to him in July, 1934. He did not believe he gave any reason why the insurance was refused. Witness did not know anything about a second refusal of plaintiff's proposal.

"PECULIAR FEATURE"

Cross-examined by Mr. Leonard, witness said that he believed that there was an objection to the plaintiff's proposal because there had been a peculiar feature about a policy of the plaintiff that was cancelled by the Zurich Company.

Mr. Leonard—The peculiar feature being that the car was registered in one name and insured in anotner.

Claude Merry, an official of the defendant company, said that on 21st August, 1934, the plaintiff and Mr. Lanigan-O'Keefe called at the defendants' office and said that they wanted to insure two cars and he left proposal forms with them. Witness was not asked to assist in filling in the forms, and had no conversation with plaintiff about the answers. The forms had the answers completed, but were not signed. Witness questioned the plaintiff about the cancellation of the Zurich Co.'s policy. After referring the forms to his superior, Mr. O'Callaghan, witness handed out cover certificates and received plaintiff's cheque for the premiums, less plaintiff's commission as an insurance broker.

In cross-examination by Mr. Leonard, witness said that he did not recollect hearing any reference to the Irish Life Co. when the proposal was made.

COMPANIES' ARRANGEMENT

In reply to Mr. Justice Meredith, the witness said that he gave no advice to the plaintiff about how he should fill up the proposal form. His company occasionally accepted risks that had been declined by another company. There was an arrangement between companies that when one received a written proposal in which it was stated that the risk had been declined by another company to communicate with that company and ask the reasons for the refusal. The reasons were nearly always given, or, if the reasons were of a delicate nature, it was usually stated that there were good reasons.

Mr. A. E. O'Callaghan, manager of the fire and accident branch of the defendant company, examined by Mr. Maguire, said that at the time when plaintiff submitted his proposal witness was sub-manager of the company. Some days before the proposal was made Mr. Lanigan-O'Keefe came to him and mentioned that Mr. Pilkington's policy had been cancelled by the Zurich Company, and wanted to know if they would accept the risk if a written proposal were put in. The proposal was submitted on August 21st, and he later got a history of the case from the Zurich Company, which agreed with that given by Mr. Lanigan-O'Keeffe. Witness granted the policy, but if he had known the true facts as he knew them now he would not have granted it.

FURTHER INQUIRIES

In reply to Mr. Justice Meredith, the witness said that if he had known that the policy had been refused by the Irish Life Company he would have made further inquiries before granting it.

Replying further to Mr. Maguire, witness said that some time after claims began to come in the policy was cancelled, the date of the notice being December 14th. At his request plaintiff came to the office, accompanied by Mr. Smith, the accident manager of the company, and plaintiff then made and signed a statement regarding his proposal to the Irish Life Company. Witness's company then repudiated liability on April 5th, and on April 8th returned the summons in the case of Duffy v. Pilkington. That case cost the company £2,464 17s. 6d in compensation to Josephine Duffy, £379 17s. 5d. costs, and £31 13s. 1d. additional costs. The Michael Maguire case cost the company £451 and £35 10s. 2d. costs, and their own costs amounted to £35 5s. 6d.

Mr. Justice Meredith dismissed the plaintiff's action on the ground that there was a misstatement in the proposal, which was the basis of the policy; but held that the plaintiff was not guilty of fraud in drawing up the proposal. He gave a decree for the defendant company for the amounts counterclaimed, and gave them their costs of the claim and counter-claim.

FARM LABOURER'S 11/- PER WEEK

STARVATION OF CHILDREN

An amazing story was related by Mr. M. Busby at Dungannon Board of Guardians, when he applied for provisional relief for a family of nine who were depending on the weekly earnings of 11s.

Mr. Busby said that the man was a farm labourer, and out of the 11s. he had to pay 2s. per week rent, leaving 9s. with which to feed and clothe his wife and seven children. Several of the children had become ill through sheer starvation, and he proposed that they be given provisional relief.

FARMERS' RESPONSIBILITY

The Clerk said that the Guardians had no power to grant relief. The farmers should pay a living wage to their labourers, and not have the Guardians paying them out of the poor relief.

Mr. Joseph F. Stewart, M.P., said that the man travelled eleven miles daily to his work. It was a terrible case of hardship, and it was awful to think that children were allowed to go hungry. In spite of any regulations, relief should be granted at once.

The relieving officer was directed to investigate the case, and allow provisional relief to the children.

LIMERICK TRADE DISPUTE

300 MEN IDLE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LIMERICK, Friday.

A serious development took place to-day in the Limerick timber yards' labour dispute, when Messrs. Jas. McMahon and Co., Ltd., closed down. On Monday of last week the workers in the timber yard of Messrs. Francis Spaight and Sons struck work as a protest against the selection made for the position of works manager, and for a somewhat similar reason the employés of Messrs. Morgan, McMahon and Co., Ltd., struck work last Saturday. Yesterday evening the employés of Messrs. James McMahon were informed by the management that their services would not be required until further notice, and the firm closed down to-day. Approximately 300 hands are now affected, but it is feared that this number will be considerably increased should the dispute last for any length of time.

WOMAN'S DEATH IN RATHMINES

KNOCKED DOWN BY A MOTOR LORRY

A verdict that death was due to injuries as a result of being knocked down by a motor lorry, the property of Douglas Coard, Rockbrook, Rathfarnham, and that there was no evidence to show how the accident occurred, was returned by a jury at the inquest held by Dr. McErlean, City Coroner, yesterday on Mrs. Lucy O'Farrell, 133 Upper Rathmines road, who was knocked down on Tuesday last at the Rathgar Church, and who died in the Meath Hospital.

Miss Eileen Farrell, Vernon Grove, Rathgar, said that about 7.15 a.m. she was proceeding to Rathgar Church, and before she reached the corner of Rathgar avenue she herd a scream and she then saw a man picking up a woman from the ground. The woman was lying on the left-hand side of the road behind a motor lorry.

Michael J. McKeown, 36 Templemore avenue, Rathmines, said that he saw an old green motor lorry near Rathgar Church on the morning of the occurrence. When he first saw the lorry it seemed to be in a circular skid. He also saw a woman walking across Rathgar road. Witness saw the lorry strike her in the back. The driver of the lorry seemed to be about twenty-five or twenty-six years of age and had red hair.

Dr. Eva Dolan, Meath Hospital, said that in her opinion death was due to shock and hæmorrhage caused by fracture of the temple bone.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

FALSE PRETENCES CHARGE

WOMAN REMANDED

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Charged on remand with obtaining £37 12s. 6d. by false pretences, and with giving false information to the Civic Guard about the loss of £95, Mrs. Annie Pentony, no fixed address, was again remanded on bail until next Friday.

John Stone, taxi-cab driver, Cord's lane, North Strand, said that on Sunday, February 23, he was introduced to the defendant at Moran's Hotel, Dublin, and, on her instructions, he drove to Drogheda. She told him that she had lost £95 and that she was going to Drogheda to get some money from her uncle, and showed him what she said was a post office savings book. She also remarked that she was to be married the following day.

She got out of the taxi at a house at Oldenore, Drogheda, and, after standing at the gate, remarked: "He must be away at a cattle-fair." At her request they drove to Navan, and after calling at the house of a Mr. Patrick Fitzsimmons and finding that he was not in, they returned to Dublin. She said that she was in a terrible position, and asked him to advance her some money until the following Wednesday. She handed him the savings book, which showed £662 to the credit of "A. Matthews," the name by which she had been introduced to him.

The witness said that he gave the defendant £30 at the Maple Hotel, Dublin, and she engaged two taxi-cabs for her wedding day. On the Monday he drove the party to church and back to the North Star Hotel, Dublin, at which she was then staying, and borrowed £7 12s. 6d. more to give to her. The defendant and her husband then went to the Powerscourt Arms Hotel, Enniskerry. From that address she wrote to the witness saying that she would send him the borrowed money by telegram the following day, and remarked how grateful she was to him for his kindness. Later the defendant wired him to meet her at the General Post Office at 10 a.m. on the following Monday. He went to the G.P.O. and waited there for two hours, but she did not appear. The next time he saw her was in the dock.

Mr. T. Clarke (Chief State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted, and Mr. J. J. O'Connor, solicitor, defended.

CONVERSION CHARGE

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN).

The hearing was resumed of the charge against William McCarthy, alias P. O'Donnell (41), no fixed address, of fraudulently converting to his own use in October last £2, part of the proceeds of a cheque entrusted to him by Henry E. Mitchell, Hastings, England, for payment to Irish Hospitals' Trust, Ltd. The defendant is further charged with converting to his own use £19 10s., part of a sum of £76 entrusted to Mitchell for payment to Hospitals' Trust.

Mr. T. Clarke (Chief State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted.

Mr. E. H. Burne, solicitor for the defendant, continued his cross-examination of Henry E. Mitchell, Hastings, England, who said that on one occasion the defendant had stated that certain counterfoils had been intercepted by the British postal authorities, and that he (the defendant) had gone at his own expense to Liverpool and retrieved the counterfoils from the Post Office.

Mr. Hannan, District Justice—From the General Post Office in England?—Yes. The defendant acknowledged receipt of the money for those counterfoils.

Replying to further questions, the witness said that counterfoils and cash were all returned to the defendant in respect of the books of tickets. The unsold tickets were also returned.

Mr. Burne said that his defence would be that the witness and his father were selling the books after the closing date of the Sweep and keeping the money.

The defendant was remanded on bail until Tuesday, 7th April next, at 11 a.m.

ROYAL CITY OF DUBLIN HOSPITAL.

The Board of Directors of the Royal City of Dublin Hospital met on Friday, 13th March, 1936, Mr. T. R. McCullagh in the chair. Also present:—Mr. H. A. Vernon, Dr. V. M. Synge, Mr. G. Acheson Overend, Mr. E. W. Booth. Apologies were received from Messrs. W. R. Burgess and R. Atkinson Stoney, P.P.R.C.S.I.

The minutes of the last Board meeting were read, confirmed and signed. The minutes of the Weekly, Finance, Nursing and Ladies' and Contracts' Committees were also read, approved and signed.

It was with very deep regret that the directors recorded the passing of their colleague, Mr. William Mills Forsyth.

Mr. Forsyth first came to the hospital as one of the representatives of the now abolished Pembroke Urban District Council, and on his resignation from the councillorship was unanimously elected a director of the hospital.

For eighteen years Mr. Forsyth materially helped the hospital at Board and Committee meetings by his regular attendance and with his advice and active participation in matters of management.

His keen interest in the welfare of the hospital is fully appreciated by his fellow directors, and his never-failing willingness to take his share in any hospital effort will be sadly missed.

It is with a deep sense of their loss that the directors extend their sincere sympathy to Mrs. Forsyth and the other members of his family.

It was unanimously resolved that Dr. T. O. Graham be appointed to fill the vacancy created on the Visiting Staff by the death of Mr. Frank C. Crawley

The Resident Medical Officers reported that during the month of February 172 patients were admitted, the number remaining in the hospital at the end of the month being 150. There were 1,572 attendances at the general and special dispensaries, and 1,358 accident and emergency cases were dealt with during the month.

Provided accommodation is available, the hospital never refuses admission to any suitable case, even if the sufferer is unable to pay anything towards the cost of treatment or maintenance. The hospital is non-sectarian and is not in receipt of any Government grant.

The directors gratefully acknowledge the receipt of the following subscriptions since their last meeting:—The Honourable A. E. Guinness, £3; P. F. Lysaght, Esq., £2 2s. 0d.; G. W. Rowe, Esq., £2 2s 0d.; Anon., 5s.; R. A. Scarlett, Esq., 2s. 6d.

The Matron begs to offer her sincere thanks for the following gifts received during the month of February:—F. J. Henry, Esq., F.R.C.S.I., playing cards; Seton Pringle, Esq., P.R.C.S.I., illustrated papers; Mrs. Hubert Wright, box of toys; Miss Parsons, illustrated papers; Mrs. V. M. Synge, dressing jackets for Children's Ward; Welfare Department, Messrs. Jacob and Co., illustrated papers; Captain J. G. Mahon, books; Mrs. Martin, dressing jackets for children; Mrs. Joly, dressing jackets for children; Dr. Dorothy Dockrell, illustrated papers; Miss M. Atkinson, illustrated papers; Dr. Simpson, £3 for Linen Guild; Miss May Fogarty, illustrated papers; Anon., 5s.; Mr. Cuthbert, flowers; Mrs. Klinger, illustrated papers; Sir C. Walsh, copies of "Punch"; Miss Stephens, illustrated papers.

Private wards are available for patients of the medical and surgical staff. Terms on application to the Matron.

A department for treatments by Deep X-Ray Therapy is also open. Private and general ward accommodation is available. Further information can be had by application to the Secretary.

Fully-trained hospital nurses for private cases (medical, surgical, fever and children's), who have had at least three years' training in the hospital wards are supplied at any time during the day or night. Application to be made to the Matron. Telephones: Nos. 61307 and 62853. Registered telegraphic address: "Gigas," Dublin.

Visitors will be shown over the hospital any afternoon.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Editor of Isvestia : A Dublin Composer : The O'Brien Clan
Next June's Eclipse

The Inchiquin Clan

Mr. Dermod O'Brien, President of the Royal Hibernian Academy, who has returned from London after attending the great gathering of the Inchiquin clan, tells me that he enjoyed his experience very much. Lord and Lady Inchiquin summoned all the O'Brien clan to a party on St. Patrick's Day at Upper Berkeley street. The Spanish branch of this prehistoric Celtic family that has spread its roots all over Europe was represented by Conde and Condessa O'Brien. The Dutch O'Briens were represented by Herman, Henk and T. H. O'Brien, descendants of a member of the family who migrated to the Low Country during the reign of Charles I. Then there were Don Guilio Marconi and Donna Degna Marconi from Italy, the Hon. Donough O'Brien, and Lord Inchiquin's two little daughters, Deirdre and Grania. Mr. Dermod O'Brien, who is a cousin of Lord Inchiquin, stood for the motherland. He tells me that last November he spent a good deal of time at Dromoland, the family seat in Clare, photographing the portraits of the different ancestors. He found these photographs had all been hung on the staircase at Upper Berkeley street when he arrived there. Mr. O'Brien found his Dutch cousins very interesting men. This was the first time the head of the clan held a party of the kind, and it was certainly an original idea. Although Lord Inchiquin and the O'Briens trace unbroken descent from Brian Boru, they really go back into the B.C. era, and are probably the oldest family in Europe. Their Celtic motto is "Lamh Laidir an Nachtar," which signifies in plain English that "The hand that upholds the right is uppermost."

Enterprising Kerry Man

In town the other day I met Mr. Domhnall Cahill, of Killarney, who is one of the enterprising people who have been making the film, "The Dawn," at the famous Kerry holiday resort. I should think there are few persons, even among Killarney men, who know more about the history and topography of the Lakes and all that great stretch of beautiful country than Mr. Cahill does. He is quite a young man and uncommonly modest about himself and his knowledge and achievements. A most interesting and informative guide to Killarney is only one among his publications. He has made a special study of the literature and legends concerning Saint Brendan, the navigator, and has written on the saint in the collection of essays, entitled "The Irish Way." Readers will have heard him broadcast from 2RN. On the new Irish film, with the making of which he has been associated he is quietly enthusiastic. I found him most interesting in his comments on the making of films in Ireland. He sees no reason why good films of certain kinds should not be successfully produced here. The experience of his friends and himself in the Killarney film, he tells me, has "debunked"—to use his own words—most of the mystery with which Hollywood has invested film-making, and the process has been a revelation to them of the possibilities in Ireland. But, he insists, an indispensable factor is a good director. There is little or no mystery about anything else, but good direction under a first-class director is of the essence of the job. To show his critical taste I may say that within the last two or three years he has not bothered to sit out more than half-a-dozen pictures.

The June Solar Eclipse

I notice that the total solar eclipse on the morning of June 19 next is already exciting a good deal of attention, considering the comparative distance of that event. Eclipse expeditions for the purpose of securing the best results under the most favourable circumstances have already started, or are about to start, for regions much further east, where the sun will be at a good altitude during the few precious moments of totality. The track of totality begins in the Mediterranean, and sweeps in a north-easterly course over Asia, across Southern Siberia, and then, turning south-east, skirts the northern boundary of Manchuria, thence passing over some islands north of Japan, and ends in the Pacific Ocean. The cities of Athens, Omsk and Tomsk lie within the shadow track. America is sending out two expeditions as announced. One of these is equipped by Harvard College Observatory and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. This expedition is proceeding to a site situated in the southern Ural Mountains, where the eclipse will be near 8 a.m. local time. The second expedition is being fitted out by Georgetown University, and will set out in April for Arenburg, which lies near the Eastern Russian boundary to the north of the Caspian Sea, where it is hoped that good meteorological conditions will enable successful photographs of the solar corona to be obtained.

The Far East

Nearer home, as might be supposed, arrangements have also been made for the proper observation of the celestial event. Professor Stratton, of Cambridge, who has already travelled much to observe solar eclipses, has already sailed from Birkenhead with a party of astronomers bound for the Far East, their destination being Kunashari, one of the principal of the Keorile Islands, north of Japan. Another expedition is being conducted by Professor Carroll, of Aberdeen University, its destination being a station chosen in the U.S.S.R., where the eclipse will take place about noon. For unprofessional sightseers who do not wish to travel so far, the Peninsular and Oriental Company are to have a ship in the neighbourhood of the path of total eclipse to the east of Greece, so that one of the attractions of a summer cruise in the Mediterranean will be the prospect of seeing on a fair June morning soon after sunrise the lunar orb projected upon the disc of the sun, the totality here lasting about 67 seconds, or less than half the duration of 2½ minutes in Eastern Asia.

A Dublin Composer

Quite recently I received a charming little song composed by my friend, Mr. Hubert Rooney, the well-known Dublin teacher and musician. To words adapted from a very old English Christmas Carol he has wedded a simple and wholly delightful melody. The title of the song is "I Sing of a Maiden," and the words are from a fifteenth century MS. in the Sloane collection. The dedication is to "John Count McCormack," and I understand that the great singer who is thus honoured is very pleased with the song, and hopes to include it soon in his programmes. While on the subject of Hubert Rooney I wonder that we do not hear more of his fairy play, "Slumberland." It is a most delightful fantasy, both words and music, and well within the scope of fairly gifted children.

Isvestia's Editor

M. Nicholas Bukharin, who has come over from Russia to assist M. Litvinov at the London conference of the League Council, is regarded as the foremost exponent of Marxism, and is now the chief editor of the newspaper Isvestia, which is the official daily organ of the Soviet Government. He is one of the most influential leaders of the Russian Communist Party, and has been a member of its Political Bureau and editor of its party organ, Pravda. He is still a couple of years under fifty, but from his twentieth year he has been one of the most active and determined of the Bolshevik revolutionaries. A man of deep learning, he studied law at Moscow and Vienna Universities; has been lecturer in the First Moscow University under the Soviet régime, and in the Sverdlov University, the party school of leadership; director of the Marx and Engels Institute, and of the Institute of Economics, and he is a member of the Academy of Sciences of the U.S.S.R. He is part author of the widely-circulated "A B C of Communism," and author of works on capitalist crises, proletarian revolution and culture, theory of historical materialism, economic questions, and the early history of the Revolution. But M. Bukharin is more than a man of learning. As early as 1910 he was imprisoned for a year, and then banished to Siberia, but escaped across the frontier. In Tsarist days he had organised political and industrial strikes in Moscow and Saint Petersburgh. In his years of exile he lived mostly in Central and Northern European countries, and met Lenin in Switzerland. He represented his party at international Socialist congresses, and during the War was an active propagandist, and editor of a Socialist paper in Russian in U.S.A. In 1917 he returned to Russia for the Bolshevik Revolution.

"Johnston of Ballykilbeg"

I see that yet another well-known mansion and its lands are to pass from the ownership of the family which made its name famous. Ballykilbeg, Co. Down, formerly the residence of the late William Johnston, M.P., is shortly to be offered for sale by public auction. This townland, mentioned in some very ancient documents, was acquired by the Johnston family in 1784, when William Johnston, under a decree of Chancery, purchased it for the sum of £4,140 from John Brett, a Downpatrick attorney, to whom it had been mortgaged by George Crolly, the "last Baron." The Crolly's were descendants of a member of the De Swordes family, who were one time barons of the palatinate of Ulster, and who also resided at Ballykilbeg. The ancestry of the Johnston family is also very ancient.

From the Barony of Johnston, in Annadale, came Sir John Johnston, the reputed ancestor of the Marquis of Annadale, a title now extinct, the Johnstons of Westerhall, the Johnstons of Redemon, and the Johnstons of Ballykilbeg. Another link with the past is to be broken, but much is still heard of the days when "Johnston of Ballykilbeg" was a name to be mentioned in the forced hush of a conspiracy, or shouted defiantly in the heat of a political storm.

TRINITY COLLEGE NOTES

END OF TERM

THE HOCKEY CLUB'S RECORD

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

THE end of Hilary Term has left College untenanted save for the busy workers in the reading room of the library. The buffet closed down yesterday, its customers having departed, little by little, to the far corners of Ireland, while Commons, at its single sitting, accommodates but twenty or thirty diners, these being mainly scholars and sizars.

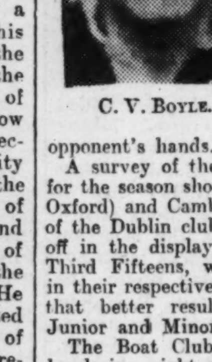

The most interesting news of the week is concerned with the athletic side of College life. Pride of place must be given to the achievement of the hockey eleven in winning the Irish Senior Cup by the decisive margin of five goals to two over the strong Ulster club side, North Down—an achievement enhanced by the fact that the victory represents the third successive win in this competition by Trinity, and the retention of an unbeaten record now extending over three seasons. To Mr. J. A. MacDonogh (Avoca School), the international inside right, must go especial congratulations for his feat of scoring all five goals for Trinity. Mr. MacDonogh, with Mr. D. J. Coulson and Mr. J. K. Craig, plays for Ireland against Scotland to-day, at Glasgow. Lieutenant J. M. W. Howe (Royal Engineers), last year's Trinity player, also appears for the first time this season.

J. A. MACDONOGH.

The Rugby fifteen lost narrowly to University College in the first round of the Leinster Senior Cup last Saturday, being defeated, after a stern struggle, by twelve points to ten. Trinity led by ten points to nine until the last five minutes, when a fine penalty goal kicked by Mr. A. Bailey, the international centre-threequarter, gave University College the victory.

Mr. C. V. Boyle (High School, Dublin), the Irish wing-threequarter, gave a splendid display for Trinity, and Mr. W. A. Pike (Drogheda Grammar School), who deputised for Mr. G. B. Jackson as captain, was outstanding at forward. Mr. L. N. Horan (Mountjoy School) scored a brilliant try by following up a penalty kick and snatching the ball out of an opponent's hands.

C. V. BOYLE.

A survey of the Rugby club's achievement for the season shows victories over Oxford (at Oxford) and Cambridge, as well as over most of the Dublin clubs, but a regrettable falling-off in the displays given by the Second and Third Fifteens, who were both unsuccessful in their respective Leagues. It is to be hoped that better results will be shown by the Junior and Minor teams next season.

The Boat Club Senior Eight disappointed by losing eight places in the Head of the River Race at Putney last Saturday, moving down from 6th to 14th place. Their comparative failure was in part due to striking "rough water" when going well about midway in the course. The second eight gave an excellent performance in the clinker division by moving up from near the bottom to ninth place.

The Women's Hockey Eleven defeated London University, Highgate Ladies and Liverpool University in an English tour last week. The Misses Radcliffe, Boyle and Adamson were outstanding players for Trinity.

Mr. H. F. Sloan (Malvern) has been elected captain of the Lawn Tennis Club for 1936. Colours for the winter season of the D.U. Harriers have been awarded to the following: Messrs. H. A. Dongan, J. F. Given, M. G. Hewson, D. H. McNeill, T. B. O'Loughlin, W. R. C. Parke, S. H. Polden, and J. H. Sides. The question of the proposed abolition of the "pinks" (the University colours) has been referred to a sub-committee of the D.U.C.A.C.

New Reading Room

The construction of the new reading room for the Library is being pushed ahead rapidly, and will probably be completed by the end of July next. The building is placed between the Library building and the Examination Hall, and will be entered through the Hall of Honour of the War Memorial. An underground passage connects the new building with the Library proper, and a mechanical conveyor will be used for the carriage of books for readers. The accommodation will include about two hundred seats in the main floor of the circular reading room, and additional seating in a gallery which will run round the building at a height of about twelve feet from the floor. The lighting will be from the dome overhead, there being no windows in the supporting walls. Two rather exiguous rooms, capable of holding about a dozen students each, have been added at the corners of the building for use as classrooms.

DUBLIN PRESBYTERY'S CITY MISSION

The Very Rev. Dr. J. L. Morrow presided at the annual meeting of the Dublin Presbytery's City Mission, held in the Church House, Stephen's Green, on Wednesday evening. There was a large attendance of friends and sympathisers with the Mission's work, which is carried on with much success by Mr. Ernest Logan and his helpers in the centres at North Strand and Whitefriar street.

The treasurer, Mr. W. Kyle, B.A., submitted the statement of accounts. He regretted that there was a decrease in the contributions from congregational auxiliaries; and in contrast he mentioned that the sum subscribed by those attending the Mission services had exceeded any previous year's total. The Mission belonged to the Dublin Presbytery, and he appealed for a greater measure of financial support.

Mr. D. M. Kennedy, superintendent, read the report of the Whitefriar street Sabbath School.

The Chairman, the Very Rev. Dr. J. J. Macaulay, and the Rev. J. S. Crockett, commended the work of the Mission, which had been in existence for eighty years.

The missionary, Mr. Ernest Logan, gave interesting details of the year's work, and spoke of many cases of hardship relieved.

Van Loon Speaking

Some American Broadcasts

Van Loon on the Air. London: Harrap. 7s. 6d. net.

READERS of Mr. Hendrik Van Loon's clever books on world history and kindred subjects admire his remarkable lucidity, his lively pen—which draws pictures as well as writes—and now they have the chance to hear his voice. We say "to hear"; for these broadcast talks on all manner of subjects are so racy and colloquial that the sound of the comfortable American voice seems to come from the pages.

Van Loon—as we instinctively call this genial broadcaster, tout court, in the manner of books' title—does not even give subject headings to his talks. Here in "Lil' old Europe" we expect a historian to talk on history, a musician on music, a politician on affairs, and it would puzzle us if a talker on "the air" (meaning the ether) held forth on any old thing that came into his head. Has Italy opened war on Abyssinia? Van Loon sure does not approve of that; says so, and gives his reasons. Order out of chaos is his subject on another day, and he gives us "another set of ideas with which I have been more or less playing these last ten years," as he says, in the hope that some reader will develop them "into something concrete."

Breezy Charm

He holds that we have been so powerful busy trying to free ourselves from Nature's bonds with machinery that our economic and political ideas are not slap up to date. He has been very ill, and describes the pleasures of illness well; the doctor has advised him not to get excited or angry, so his talks grow kinda mild. He buys many newspapers a day, being a newspaper man—the moral of this escapes us. He explains Time. Do we get him? He hates Hitler and all other dictators. On the technique of broadcasting (which he performs in shirt sleeves) he is instructive and engaging.

If we have slipped into American in these notes let it be a tribute to Van Loon's breezy charm. We guess his way sure is infectious—and how.

An Admiral's Story

Meeting with Erskine Childers

By And Large. By Admiral Sir Barry Domvile. London: Hutchinson. 12/6 net.

"HE was a quiet little man with the courage of a lion," says Sir Barry Domvile of the late Erskine Childers, with whom he was associated in the coastal motor boat plan to torpedo the German ships lying in the Schillig Roads. The two next met when the Treaty discussions were taking place at the Home Office. "He was glowering at me then with a fanatical look, but we shook hands afterwards for old time's sake. A gallant little fighter passed on when he met a violent death shortly afterwards."

Later in his book Sir Barry remarks that the hastily patched-up Irish Treaty, which he does not imagine to-day anyone regards with much satisfaction, was one of the numerous sacrifices to American public opinion upon which Britain was then engaged in preparation for the Washington Conference on Limitation of Armaments.

Throughout this book the author describes himself as an Irishman, though he is proud of the fact that he was born at Greenwich, and his visits to this country do not appear to have been numerous. He was here, however, just before the war, and saw a parade of the Ulster Volunteer Force at Ballymena. "It was a most impressive sight, and the marching and general bearing of the men on parade was wonderful." On that occasion he suggested that the Force's initials, U.V.F., might stand for "Under Victory's Flag."

This is another breezy sailor book—there have been quite a number recently—suggesting that writing comes very easily to officers of the Royal Navy. It is full of forcefully expressed views, along with amusing stories. Probably the most informative parts are those dealing with the numerous conferences attended by the author—Paris, Brussels, Spa, San Remo and Washington. He also writes very vividly about the fall of Smyrna at the end of the ill-advised Greek campaign against the Turks. In the author's opinion, Mustapha Kemal has done a bigger thing for his country than any other living individual has done in any other country. The concluding pages are a tribute to National Socialism's achievements in Germany, with some confusing, and at times annoying, references to Jews and Freemasons.

Post-War Europe

Night Over the East. Translated and Adapted from the German by Edwin and Willa Muir. London: Sheed and Ward. 7/6 net.

THE utter ruin and disorganisation of Austro-Hungary, which followed the collapse on the Piavian and Macedonian fronts, spelt death and ruin to thousands. Hungary suffered particularly, and her nobility became the prey of the insurgent and invader, so that many were utterly ruined. To escape the turmoil Albert Kloibner, a young Hungarian aristocrat, fled with the remains of his fortune to Finland, where for years he led the life of a semi-recluse. Then he met a student of his own land, and the urge to return could no longer be gainsaid. Back in Vienna, he and his new-found friend embarked on strange adventures. Together with Tom O'Flanagan, a Quixotic Irishman, they became members of a revolutionary organisation to free Macedonia from the yoke of Serbia, where, even now, there was primitive struggle in a land where international express trains halted crammed with luxury and wealth, where men died for their country a field or two away in the undergrowth.

The book is a disturbing picture of post-War Europe, and especially of that seething political cauldron, the Balkans.

MONAGHAN contributes to the Radio Athlone programme early this evening. Commencing at 5.45, the pupils of St. Louis's Convent will broadcast an hour of vocal and instrumental music—mainly Irish. Among other items the School Orchestra will be heard in arrangements of Irish airs by Hardebeck and Larchet.

At 9 there will be a Thomas MacCurtain anniversary programme, when Professor W. F. P. Stockley will speak on the first Republican Lord Mayor of Cork, dealing specially with his personality when he ruled the Munster capital. Richard Browne, of Macroom, will follow with a group of traditional Southern songs.

"Echoes of Ulster," being a mirror of life in Northern Ireland, will be broadcast at 6.45 on the Northern Ireland wavelength and all B.B.C. Nationals, except Droitwich, but since the new transmitter came into operation Dublin listeners can get Northern Ireland quite comfortably on its own wave-length. At 8.30 a George Shiels play, "His Last Day in Business," will be performed by a strong cast of Northern Ireland artistes. S. A. Bullock will produce.

A splendid programme is always a foregone conclusion where the Hallé Pension Fund Concert is concerned. To-night is no exception, when another of these annual concerts falls due. Sir Thomas Beecham will conduct the Hallé Orchestra for the occasion, when, among other music of a superb choice, they will perform Rimsky-Korsakov's "Scheherozade" Suite and Berlioz's lovely "Carnival Romain" Overture. The interval at 8.30 has been given into the hands of Edward Isaacs, the famous Manchester-born composer and pianist. The concert will be relayed from the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, the home of the Hallé Orchestra and, therefore, the seat of the Hallé Pension Fund Concerts.

Another outstanding programme which many will want to hear is that of the City of Plymouth Musical Festival. For ten days, from morning till night, the competitions have been held, with nearly four thousand competitors. To-night the concert will be given by the String Orchestra of the Royal Marines (Plymouth), conducted by Captain F. J. Ricketts. The soloists include two of the Festival adjudicators—Rosina Buckman (soprano) and Maurice D'Oisly (tenor). The concert will be relayed from the Guildhall, Plymouth, the scene of the week's Festival.

The St. Matthew Passion, coming from Söttens, is to be performed by the augmented Radio Suisse Romande Orchestra, Lausanne Choral Union, Conservatoire Ladies' Choir, and a boys' choir and special soloists.

The performance of Mozart's opera, "The Magic Flute," will be relayed direct from the Paris Opéra.

BALLAGHADERREEN provides Radio Athlone with the main programme for Sunday listening by a concert of well-varied musical items. The celebrated Ballaghaderreen Gaelic Choir will open with an old Irish hymn, "Ag Chriost an siol," and "Go ma slan a chi mi." Dr. Douglas Hyde will then give a short Talk on the Poems of Rafferty. The programme then continues with vocal and instrumental music, and the Choir, in addition to other items, will be heard in Granville Bantock's arrangement of "The Wearing of the Green." Mr. Seán O Ruadhain is to speak on Risteard Bairead and Seán O Neachtain, two eighteenth century Mayo poets.

From 8 to 8.30 the Rev. John Burke will continue his Talk on Plain Chant.

Puccini, as composer, has a popular appeal, and most people are very familiar with his music. Puccini the man may not be so well known. Mark Lubbock has arranged a programme for Sunday broadcasting in which he seeks to represent both. "Puccini: The Man and his Music," is designed on the same lines as "The Life of Verdi," and is intended to give sidelights on the character of the man and the methods of his working. Once again Mark Lubbock does the thing thoroughly; he has gathered together a group of first-class artistes best suited to interpret the composer's work. They are Eva Turner, the English-born singer who, under her own name, has won fame abroad in opera, and, moreover, has been described as the "perfect Turandot"; then there is Dino Borgioli, the Italian singer, equally well known for his brilliant career in opera; Nora Gruhn and Arnold Matters are two more who rank high among singers.

Excerpts will be sung in the "Puccini" programme from "Madam Butterfly," "Manon Lescaut," "Tosca" and "Turandot." Stanford Robinson will conduct the combined B.B.C. Theatre and Variety orchestras.

In the Sunday Orchestral Concert, under the direction of Dr. Adrian Boult, this week's distinguished soloist is Benno Moiseiwitsch, the eminent pianist, who will play Rachmaninov's Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini. The programme also includes "The Flying Dutchman" Overture (Wagner), and the Symphony No. 3 of Arnold Bax.

Among the religious broadcasts a Roman Catholic Service will be relayed from St. Barnabas's Cathedral, Nottingham, when the Bishop of Nottingham will give the Address. (Midland, 7.55.)

Light programmes for Sunday listeners consist of the following:—The Worthing Municipal Orchestra, conducted by Herbert Lodge, with Olive Groves (soprano) and Arthur Wayne (pianoforte) as soloists—from the new Town Hall, Worthing (National, 3); the London Palladium Orchestra (Regional, 6.45); the Birmingham Theatre Royal Orchestra (Midland, 6.45); the Lockier-Grosvenor Sextet and baritone soloist (West, 6.45); Story Reading (Irish authors) (Northern Ireland, 5.45); and Hal Swain and his Band (at 5.15, North Regional).

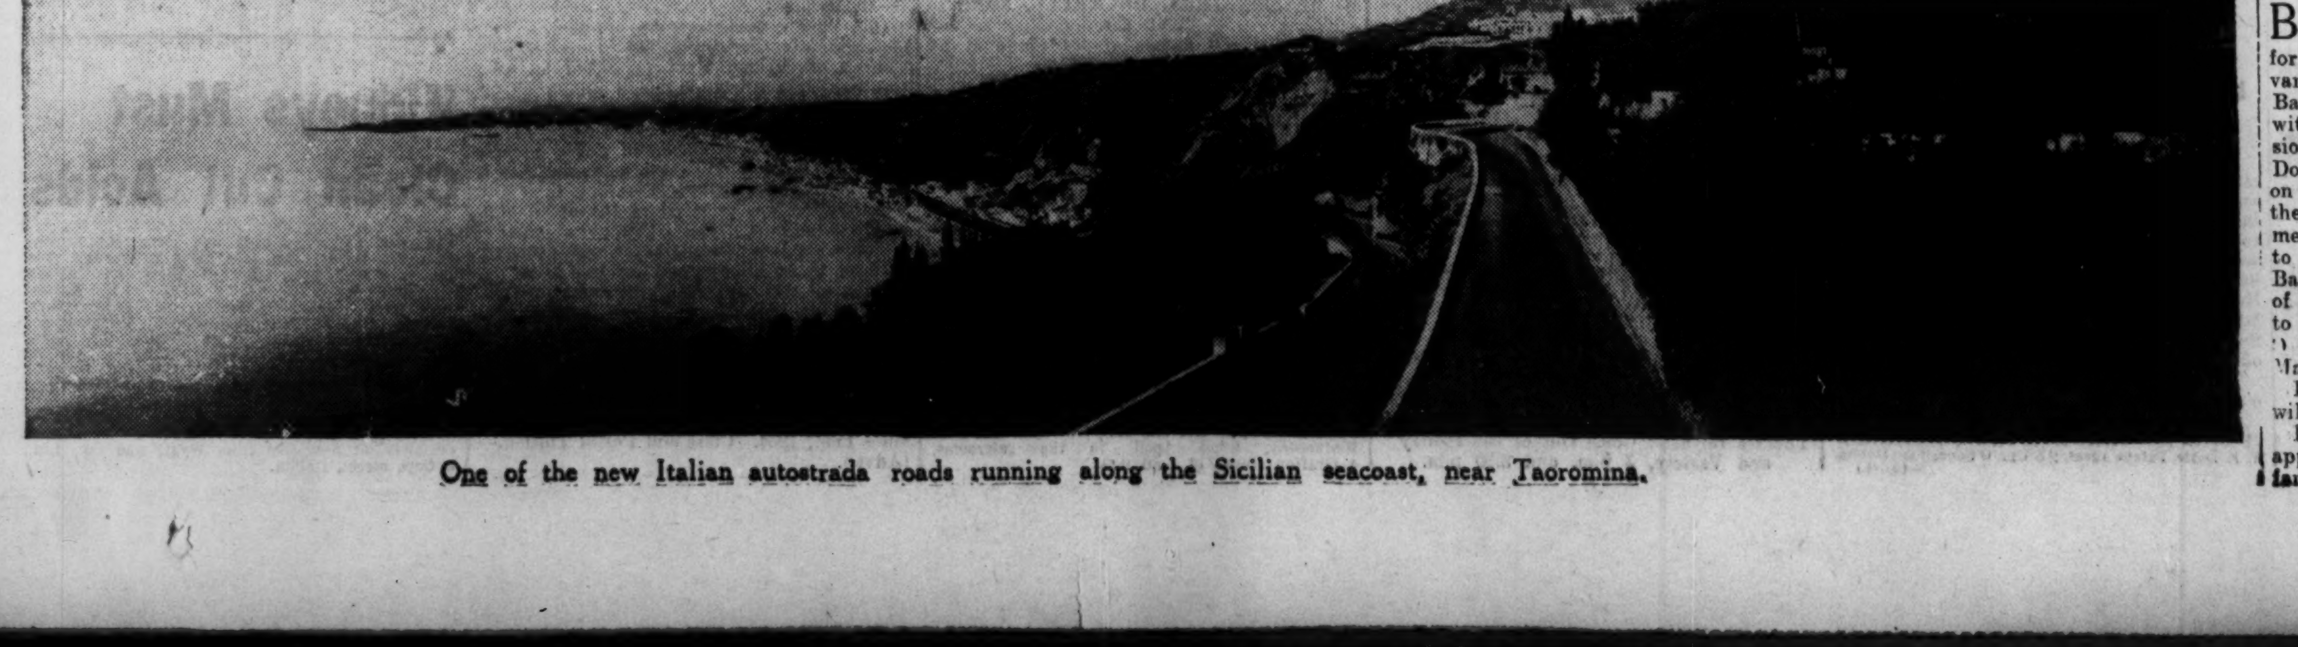

EXHIBITION OF PICTURES

The similarity of landscape, which Miss Norah McGuinness has noticed on her visits to Northern France and the Co. of Donegal, is strongly brought out in a number of the pictures in the exhibition which she opened at the Gallery, 7 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, yesterday. The exhibition is composed of 36 paintings in water colour and gouache, and is distinguished by a delightful freshness of treatment of open air subjects. Miss McGuinness has allowed her mind to play on various aspects of both countries in which similarity is most striking and has endeavoured, with a great deal of success, to paint in the light of her own reactions rather than to photograph. Typical of the warm delicacy of Miss McGuinness's work are Nos. 6 and 9, "Havre" and "Mulroy Bay" respectively, in which there is shown a colour sense reminiscent of modern Japanese work. "The Seagull," which appeared to be popular during yesterday's private show, is an excellent effort to give the detached air of the bird as it floats over a wharf. "The Ruin," a slightly obvious treatment of a life-in-death theme, is attractive by reason of its very simplicity.

TAX ON RABBIT SKINS

An Order under the Emergency Imposition of Duties Act, 1932, was made by the Executive Council yesterday imposing a Customs duty at the rate of 6d. per article on rabbit skins or parts thereof not otherwise liable to duty which have been dressed or dressed and dyed. Arrangements have been made for the dressing and dyeing of rabbit skins in the Saorstát.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

THE "PICKWICK" CENTENARY

CELEBRATIONS IN LONDON

FORTHCOMING IRISH BOOKS

ON March 31st it will be a hundred years exactly since the first monthly number of "The Pickwick Papers" made its appearance, and an elaborate programme to celebrate the "Pickwick Centenary" has been drawn up. Messrs. Chapman and Hall, as the publishers of Dickens, are taking a prominent part in it, and have arranged a "Dickens" matinée at the Palladium Theatre, London. Delegates from the 76 branches of the Dickens Fellowship in various parts of the world—there seem, incidentally, to be no delegates from Ireland—will attend a reception on the 27th, and their annual conference will open the next day. There follows a bewildering programme of rambles, reunions, visits to Dickens's birthplace, and "Dickens Exhibitions."

One of these exhibitions has been opened already at the Southwark Central Library, where many relics associated with the Pickwick stories are on view. Incidentally, it is strange to reflect how vivid a creature Mr. Pickwick has become. The imagined character has become almost as great a national figure as Nelson or Queen Elizabeth, and quite as "real." Signor Pirandello, I imagine, would insist that Mr. Pickwick has earned the right to be considered as an actual person, and at least it can be said that Mr. Pickwick has joined that small company of immortals, such as Falstaff and Don Quixote, which has managed to escape from the printed page into our own world.

Judging from recent conversations, I gather that biography is very much in the fashion with Irish authors at the moment, and during the last week I have heard of at least four projected works of this kind.

* * *

Mr. L. A. G. Strong, the poet and novelist, is engaged in writing a life of Tom Moore. It will be published by Hodder and Stoughton, and its title will be "The Minstrel Boy." Mr. Seamus McCall, who, besides being the author of "Gods in Motley," has also been responsible for a biography of Tom Moore, is now giving his attention to John Mitchel, and the book will be published by Nelson some time this year. Mr. Desmond Sheridan, whose first novel, "Vanishing Spring," showed great promise, is another writer who has turned towards biography. He is writing a life of James Clarence Mangan, while Miss Edna Fitzhenry is engaged on the life of Henry Joy McCracken.

Historical work is also claiming a good deal of attention from Irish writers just now. I believe that Mr. Stephen Gwynn, who was present at Monday's meeting of the P.E.N. Club, is writing a history of Ireland, and Miss Dorothy Macardle is in the middle of a long and comprehensive study of modern Irish politics. It will be called "The Irish Republic," and it is being published by Gollancz.

An interesting book on Ireland—though not by an Irish author—has just made its appearance. It is called "Modern Ireland," and the writer is Miss Cicely Hamilton, who already had written a series of books on "Modern Austria," "Modern Russia," "Modern Italy," et cetera. I have not read the book yet, but a glance at the chapter-headings shows that Miss Hamilton seems to have examined most of the present-day tendencies in this country, from censorship to cattle-smuggling.

I do not know whether D. G. Waring is a new Irish author, but I notice that John Long announces a first novel by him, "Nothing Irredeemable," which concerns the life of the Irish working classes. It will be published early next month.

Outside our own activities probably the most interesting item of news this week is the announcement that Hutchinson is about to publish a new novel by Miss Rebecca West, called "The Thinking Reed." Miss West, one of the few really outstanding English novelists, is also one of the least prolific. It may surprise many people to learn that seven years have passed since her last novel, "Harriet Hume," made its appearance, and that another seven years separates that book from her first effort, "The Judge." In "The Thinking Reed," according to the publisher's announcement, Miss West looks at the modern world of wealthy people who have departed from their forefathers' ways in religion and morals, and considers how the type of modern man and woman who want to keep order in their lives deal with such important matters as marriage in the new conditions." The book will be published on April 2nd.

Charles Morgan, the author of "The Fountain," is another slow and careful writer. Since that remarkable book appeared in 1932 he has published nothing except a brief essay called "Epitaph on George Moore," and has been engaged on his latest book, "Sparkenbroke," which Macmillans are publishing next month.

For Gardeners

Your Flower Garden. By Harry A. Day, F.R.H.S. London: Methuen. 3s. 6d. net.

THIS little volume is intended to assist the flower-lover to create a garden that will be productive of flowers all the year round. For this purpose the most suitable flowers have been selected so as to produce the floral effect suited to the site and the seasons. The author points out that, if care is taken to plant the right subjects, one can have quite a number of flowers in the garden even in mid-winter and early spring—chiefly bulbous plants and flowering shrubs, while roses, chrysanthemums and other plants will carry the flowering season almost to the end of the year. Practical and sound advice is offered, free from technical terms, and the possessor of a copy of this little handbook will find no difficulty in making the most of his garden at all seasons, irrespective of the nature of the soil, its situation or size.

Better Badminton

Badminton for All. By J. F. Devlin. London: Hutchinson. 4/6 net.

HERE is a noted champion's book on the game which we knew as children as battledore-and-shuttlecock, but play in our age as badminton. Mr. Devlin is a Dublin man, and has loved the game in which he now excels ever since he wielded a battledore in a Dublin garden against ladies in sailor hats and long skirts. His book is lucid and helpful, the next best thing towards improving one's game to getting lessons from him in person.

Saint Augustine

A Treatise from his Works

An Augustine Synthesis. Arranged by Erich Przywara, S.J. Introduction by C. C. Martindale, S.J. London: Sheed and Ward. 12s. 6d. net.

THIS work cannot be assessed justly without close and prolonged reading. For an orderly revelation of the spirit of Augustine it would appear hard to excel. Great as the literature of Augustinian theology is, we doubt if any commentator has achieved a more lucid and concise presentation than we get here in the great scholar's own words, or, rather, in admirable English renderings thereof.

We note that the passages from De Civitate Dei, all too few, are given in the version of John Healey, which first appeared in 1610. Other selections are from Pusey's rendering of Augustine's letters, and Sir Toby Matthews's translation (1620), as edited by Dom Roger Hudleston. Whoever is responsible—and we suppose that it is Father Martindale—for this choice of classical versions in preference to newly-made translations has set an admirable example. Living authors seldom or never can wield the sonorous older English which so majestic a subject as Augustine needs.

Treatise on God and Man

The German scholar, who chose the selections and arranged them in such fashion that the book amounts to a treatise on God and man, gives no notes. Save that his chapter headings indicate the subject of the following extracts, such as Faith, Creature and Creator, etc., he lets St. Augustine speak wholly for himself. This, too, is a good model for such works.

REV. C. C. MARTINDALE.

A Novelist Reflects

A Book of Confessions

A Reading of Life. By S. R. Lysaght. London: Macmillan. 7/6 net.

ADMIRERS of the author of two Irish novels of note will read this volume of confessions with interest and no small pleasure. We say "confessions," because here a mind is opened, in its ideals of beauty and truth, and its vague decision (if we may split an infinitive to save quotation) "to faintly trust the larger hope."

Rare Charm

Of travel and poetry Mr. Lysaght writes with rare charm. On shipboard he passes Sinai, and finds it hard to believe that Moses saw the same mountain, so marvellous is the age-old wonder of the Mediterranean. In a sonnet, the essayist seeks a better expression of the moment. We take leave to copy the lines:—

Our liner modelled on the latest plan
Propels us down the coasts of Long-ago,
Our world with it: we hear the bugles blow
For meals, or under an electric fan.

Doze or play bridge, or wireless head-lines scan,
Or quoits of rope into a bucket throw.
That was Mount Sinai in the sunset's glow,
And southward lay the land Midian.

Night falls; above the water's undertone
The band is heard, the decks are curtained in
For dancing, and outbreaks a mingled din
Of talk and laughter, drum and saxophone.
Eastward across the sea, remote and lone,
The moon rose o'er the Wilderness of Zin.

An Old-fashioned Critic

As a critic Mr. Lysaght is old-fashioned. He is conversant with all the modern fashions, but he prefers the classic loveliness of "A Shropshire Lad," and, with Stevenson, must quote Henley's Margaritae Sorori at length, to display true beauty.

L. A. G. Strong and Some Others

A Selection of Poetry

Call to the Swan. By L. A. G. Strong. London: Hamish Hamilton. 5/- net.
In the Potters' Field. By Lord Gorrell. John Murray. 5/- net.
The Vampire. By Herbert Palmer. London: Dent. 3/6 net.
The Things Eternal. By Cecil Moore. Oxford: Shakespeare Head. 2/- net.
New Odes. By E. H. W. Meyerstein. London: Richards. 2/6 net.
Poems. By G. L. Wilson. London: The Boar's Head Press. 10/- net.
Port Meadow and Other Poems. By Edward Lowbury. Oxford: Shakespeare Head. 4/6 net.

OF these seven new books of verse the best is by L. A. G. Strong, and it is hard to say which of the others is the worst. The brilliance and clarity of Mr. Strong's work makes up for much lack of poetic feeling, while his Epigrams and Epitaphs, which constitute the major part of the book, have that detached acceptance of life which is more reminiscent of the eighteenth century than any other. For example:

A priest in black, a cardinal in flame,
He drew large cheques upon the Holy Name,
And when he came to Heaven's accountancy,
Found them all waiting for him, marked R.D.

Lord Gorrell's poems are all severely traditional, and even old-fashioned, with the exception of the last portion, which is entitled "Aftermath," and which is a rather brilliant commentary on modern life. In general, however, he is a regrettable example of the potent influence which the last century still exercises on this: sentimentality on the subject of crippled boys, beggar men and the like incline one to the belief that in his search for material he is influenced rather by the conception of what he ought to write rather than what he wants to write.

An "Anti-Poet"

Herbert Palmer is essentially an "anti-poet," and if that is understood it is easier to realise the bitter and vituperant quality of his verse. When he is not being facetious at the expense of Eliot or Pound or somebody he is giving us work reminiscent of Walter de la Mare, little of which is good. One poem, "Phase," achieves originality without temper or under-graduate cleverness; but the name poem, "The Vampire," succeeds in being merely a turgid attempt in what A.E. called "celestial scavenger work."

Mr. Moore has a deity fixation and a liking for capitals. His book may be summed up in a few lines of his own, which are typical of the whole work—having read one page there is no necessity to read further.

Religion, Science, Art at crossways meet,
And down the road of Art, united gaze,
Where Goodness, Truth and Beauty lead as one
Along the track of God's Eternity.

Mr. Meyerstein's "New Odes" are in the best—or worst—classical manner; his influences seem to be mainly Gray and Collins, and that school of exacting poetic diction which did so much to kill poetry in the eighteenth century. It is very wearing at this date to have to read:

Yes! I have known thy direful state: to be
By faery prospects ever onward drawn . . . .

and again:

A youth I roved on Sizewell's strand
With Collins' Eclogues clasped in hand . . .

What has been said of Mr. Meyerstein can equally well be applied to the work of both Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lowbury; they also live in the firm belief that the eighteenth century has not yet passed, and, if it has, it is a pity. They are traditional, but it is a tradition which has passed. They are writing for a civilisation that is gone, so that their musing can have little value for any but those atavists who read the Poetry Review and revel in the Golden Treasury.

The World's Problems

A Genevan Utopia

Anarchy or World Order. By R. B. Mowat and others. London: Allen and Unwin. 7/6 net.

TWELVE experts, who lectured before the Geneva Institute of International Relations in 1935, contribute essays to this volume. Thus, Professor Mowat discusses the new international anarchy; Mr. E. J. Phelan writes on international administration (we read here of international civil servants, a new class in the world!), and Mr. R. J. P. Mortished has a fine essay on the "Social Basis of World Order."

From his watch-tower at Geneva Mr. Mortished takes a balanced view of world problems, especially that of subject races. He demonstrates from his data that the white man is laying up disaster by his policy towards the more numerous dark men in extra-European lands. Progress in industrialisation is levelling up the races, yet it is not producing a happy or peaceful world. Why not? Because cosmopolitanism is not internationalism. The nation is a real thing in the nature of mankind, and must be taken into the reckoning.

The "Spiritual Factor"

Thus, in Mr. Mortished's judgment, List's theory of the natural unit in Great Britain and Ireland was doomed to break, in practice, on the sentimental or spiritual factor. Unification on an economic basis will not do. "The obliteration of the diversity of nationalities would mean a terrible impoverishment of the lives of all of us," says our Socialist! The conclusion of the essay is a plea for liberal conditions. Let not the workers be workers only. Democracy gives them power, the right to govern; yet industrialism so cramps their lives that they are not fit to govern. Let the nations continue as nations, and let them reform their social state: that is the only way towards "social reconstruction of the world as a whole."

This book deserves the attention of all who wish to know the mind of the new class in European affairs, the "international civil servants" of the League and the Labour Bureau, who are thinking in terms of a new liberalism. Will their ideas prevail?—or will they prove Utopian?

The History of A Reign

Stories of Two Kings

George V. By Arthur Bryant. London: Peter Davies. 5s. net. King George V. By C. E. Carrington. Cambridge University Press. 2s. 6d. net. Our Ambassador King. By Basil Maine. London: Hutchinson. 3s. 6d. net.

MR. ARTHUR BRYANT has written an excellent short biography of the late King. His book is also an excellent précis of the history of the last twenty-five years, but he never loses sight of the fact that it is about the King primarily he is writing, and the reactions of His Majesty to the various happenings that affected his Empire are carefully recorded. "Throughout this orgy of change, more drastic than any perhaps the world has ever known, there has been one constant factor, the integrity of one man in supreme place." This is a very sympathetic study. It admits King George's absence of intellectual genius, but stresses his remarkable shrewdness and commonsense. It is a book, we imagine, which will appeal deeply to those subjects who have listened to the King's broadcasts in recent years in a spirit of affection and loyalty.

Mr. Carrington's work is intended for boys and girls. Notwithstanding its title, there is really very little of the King in the book, which is actually a survey of recent history, and a great deal of ground is covered with an amazing economy of words.

"Our Ambassador King" goes to the other extreme, and everything is explained at great length. Mr. Basil Maine writes that "it is the purpose of this study to catch a reflection of its subject's personality." Since his coming-of-age, King Edward VIII. has set himself the task of carrying out a definite programme in connection with social reforms and the encouragement of loyalty and co-operation among the peoples of the Empire. In this book he is followed along the various paths to which that programme has led him. The author, in his prologue, promises to do all in his power to avoid "the pit called ineptitude, which claims so many who write about living Royal personages. King Edward the Eighth deserves a better fate in literature than to be set up as a uniformed effigy in a waxwork show."

New Novels

The Exile. By Pearl S. Buck. Methuen. 7/6 net.

MISS PEARL BUCK has always been most successful in depicting a Chinese scene, and if her characters have never seemed very vital, they have at least had the merit of fitting credibly into the background.

In "The Exile" she has adopted a different method of approach, and has attempted to portray a rather complex type of woman against a Chinese background. Carie is of Dutch-French extraction, and shows a rather crudely mixed blend of the puritan and the mystic, with the warm, hot-blooded, born play actress and mimic type, which her French blood might explain. She spends most of her life in China married to a fanatical missionary of the hard, unyielding type. She suffers great grief and misfortunes, has a hard struggle to rear even some of her large family, and is in general a sympathetically-conceived character; but to concentrate so much interest on one person requires very fine powers of portrayal, and these Miss Buck lacks.

The Croatian Shirt. By T. B. Marle. Barker. 7/6 net.

The title of Mr. Marle's novel is taken from the glorious Croatian saying: "Life is like a Croatian shirt—too short, and rather dirty." It is a story of Vienna during the recent revolution, but of a Vienna that is no longer a city of dancing and laughter. Everyone, with the notable exception of the Jews, is poverty stricken, living from day to day by any means in their power. The political situation seems to be a series of constant crises, and the "Browns" are leaving teargas bombs about in cafes. Against this shifting background Mr. Marle has pictured an adventurer, half English, half Hungarian, living by his wits. Although his way of living is not entirely honest, he is, nevertheless, a pleasant, easy-going fellow, who is fairly content, provided that he is neither too cold nor too hungry. He wanders about the bars of the big hotels looking for wealthy tourists who will provide him, if all goes well, with his daily bread. After a time, determined at last to make an effort to cope with life, he arranges with a local Nazi leader to undertake certain smuggling jobs between the cities of the Continent and Vienna. He believes he has found permanent, useful employment; but the Nazi leader turns out to be merely a currency smuggler, and the police enter upon the scene. There are pictures of Vienna thronged with armed rebels and soldiers, and Ferry's flight from the city is quietly exciting. Finally a happy ending is engineered rather speciously; but this is a good novel, intelligent in a rather lackadaisical, "what's the good of anything" fashion.

The Open Prison. By Aimee Scott. Eldon Press. 7/6 net.

THIS volume, by the author of "The Painted Window," should have an especial appeal for women readers, depicting, as it does, the environment and outlook of the sex before the war, and the gradual development of the modern feminine viewpoint. Here the Suffragettes are real, though one does not make close contact with them, but was there really a twenty-four hour clock in use on the railways in those far-off days, and were taxis so plentiful? Life is the "Open Prison," and the prisoners in this case seem to be too persistently conscious of the fact. The fanatical Joseph Lyle we have met before many a time, and his erring daughter, Peggy; but Agatha and Eve Cartwright and Stella Calthrop are fresh studies admirably done. The men are types rather than individuals, and it is difficult to work up enthusiasm for the central masculine figure, Michael Hume, but the tale is well contrived and moves smoothly.

The Game and the Candle. By Ann Stafford. Collins. 7/6.

MISS STAFFORD'S new novel is the story of what amounts to a scramble for jobs, especially where there is keen competition owing to the employment of women at lower pay than men. She takes her characters mostly from a group of people who are associated in one way or another with a popular circulating library and its branches. All sorts of complications arise and give Miss Stafford good material for an interesting and well-written novel in this typical problem of our day. She handles her material and her characters with the skill, humour and sympathy displayed in her previous work. But for all its good qualities "The Game and the Candle" suffers from the defects of exaggeration and doubtful happy endings.

X Plus Y. By E. F. Bozman. Dent. 7/6 net.

"X PLUS Y" is an unusually good first novel, well written, well expressed and well shaped, and peopled with quite particularly real characters. X is the hero of the novel and Y the heroine. The remaining characters have real names. Now these two unknown algebraical qualities give the book a peculiar haunting flavour. If Mr. Bozman had christened X Tom and Y Mary would it have altered the general effect? We think quite definitely that it would; and not a little of the pleasure to be derived from reading this book is in the tracing of possible analogies between the story and an algebraical formula. Mr. Bozman moves with as much ease and grace in the musical world to which Y belongs as in the mountaineering and schoolmastering circles which claim X.

Tarzan and the City of Gold. By Edgar Rice Burroughs. The Bodley Head. 7/6 net.

How many years is it now that Tarzan has been swinging among the tree-tops? One of this reviewer's early impressions is of the first Tarzan film, which followed the first Tarzan book after quite a reasonable lapse of time; and since then he has seen many ups and downs not only in the tree-tops, but in the quality of his adventures. The latest book is at least as good as any of its predecessors—better, it seems, than many of them. Herein Tarzan enters Abyssinia: an Abyssinia where he meets neither Italians nor the Lion of Judah, but, instead, seeking a strange city of ivory, finds himself prisoner in an equally strange city of gold. It is peopled by white men, and ruled by a lovely queen; and before Tarzan escapes he meets adventure and more adventure. Can one presume that the next volume in the series will find him upon his way for his original destination—the city of ivory?

Jungle Treasure

An American's Uncommon Adventures

Jungle Treasure. By William La Varre. London: Hurst and Blackett. 16/- net.

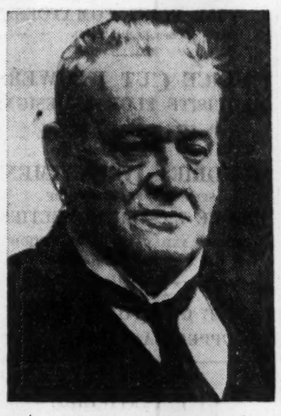

WHEN an American "traveloguer" lets himself go on the subject of wonderful nature, some members of the audience have to be helped from the cinema, tears of laughter blinding their footsteps, while others writhe in the last agony of embarrassment. Your reception of this book will depend upon the class into which you fall. Thus, Mr. La Varre has a sub-heading to Chapter VIII.: "As we go up the swollen river myriads of white herons whirl aigrettes like snow flurries amid canyon walls of living green." Admittedly, he is not always so powerfully imaginative, but this passage does give a fair picture of the style of "Jungle Treasure." Like the "Traveloguer," however, Mr. La Varre is imbued with a vitality that covers a large amount of literary sins; and certainly his book does achieve an impetus which many other author-explorers abandon as being pretty well beyond their reach.

A Pleasant Companion

"Jungle Treasure" is an original story of a journey through unmapped regions of northern South America, and it is original because Mr. La Varre frankly admits, with a good deal of commercial detail, that he does this kind of thing for profit. At his university he took an astonishing variety of courses, with no regard whatsoever for the ordinary curriculum, so that he might learn about those products of the jungle for which civilisation is prepared to pay a handsome price. On this particular trip he was accompanied by his wife, who, from her photographs, would have enjoyed the most dazzling success at any parade of Californian bathing beauties. Mrs. La Varre upset her husband temporarily at the beginning of the expedition by disclosing the fact that she had filled one of the first-aid cases with fashion papers and cosmetics; but he recovered, since "Lipstick" (as he calls her, not very amusingly) subsequently proves that her courage and endurance are equal to the most wearing situations.

The Lindberghs

This book would be out of the ordinary if it were only for the presence of this remarkable girl; but there are high-lights in it that are higher and lighter than those contained in a hundred other adventure stories. The La Varres were deep in the jungle when another man and his wife by the name of Lindbergh flew overhead on another adventure. The La Varres listened on a portable wireless throughout the duration of the flight. Then there are instructive discussions on the subject of looking for diamonds, and an honestly exciting description of the discovery of the elixir of the life of Mr. La Varre—the mother lode. The superstitions and more or less revolting habits of the natives are given their customary place, but Mr. La Varre has a natural sympathy for his black porters that again is uncommon. The photographs, in one or two cases, are as good as any that have been taken of the jungle.

MR. HILAIRE BELLOC.

Mr. Belloc's Latest Study in Historical Geography

The Battle Ground. By Hilaire Belloc. London: Cassell. 12/6 net.

THE latest volume from Mr. Belloc's facile pen is one of the best things that he has published. It is a study of Palestine in ancient history, closing with a sketch of the Crusades and modern times. With his usual eye for strategic simplification, Mr. Belloc gives a lucid geographical introduction, and shows how the Holy Land was shaped for the part that it held in the affairs of the empires of antiquity—Assyria, Persia, Greece, Rome—but he is altogether at his best when he comes to the Incarnation.

That unique event in history, which had for its setting Bethlehem and Jerusalem, is described here with objective coldness, and with overpowering realism. "The writer," we are told in a gently ironical preface, "has not only taken for granted that there is a God, but also design in the Universe and in the story of Mankind. He has affirmed a special design in the story of Syria and particularly of Israel, reaching a climax at the Crucifixion. He even seems to imply the Divinity of his Saviour . . . The sole excuse he offers for his extravagance is that the present generation is tolerant of novel ideas."

Mr Belloc's description of the first works of the Apostles, as they published the strange tidings and organised the Church, is done with the same quiet realism. It deserves to be read by all, and many will be glad Mr. Belloc for once has written without pugnacity, subdued by the majesty of his theme. The account of the Crusades ought to cure persons who idealise the Saracens.

THE SILVER FLEECE
by Robert Collis
THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF AN IRISHMAN

There is the great Rugby match between Ireland and England at Twickenham in 1925—a match in which Bob Collis's part will always be remembered.

There is the fighting in Dublin in 1916 (he was a schoolboy, and was lost in the thick of it for two days).

There is a wonderful tribute to A.E.

Beneath all the good stories, the stress and adventure and enjoyment of life, can be seen the steady growth of a strong and significant character. We regard this as one of the best autobiographies that has appeared for years, and are proud to publish it. Decorated by T. G. Wilson. Demy 8vo. 15s. net.

Early Irish Law

What was the Status of Women?

Studies in Early Irish Law. By R. Thurneysen, Nancy Power, Myles Dillon, Kathleen Mulchrone, D. A. Binchy, August Knock, John Ryan, S.J. Dublin: For the Royal Irish Academy: Hodges Figgis. 10/6 net.

WHEN Dr. Thurneysen—probably the greatest living master of Old Irish learning—lectured in Dublin in 1929, a group of students interested in Irish law agreed to co-operate with him in an investigation of the legal status of women in ancient Ireland. The present work, which appears to be edited by Professor D. A. Binchy—the only lawyer of the group—is the fruit of that undertaking.

An Erudite Work

So erudite a work, on so abstruse a theme, cannot be digested in a brief review. Every person capable of profiting by the book will require to possess it, and to study it closely over no short period. Therefore, the present notice attempts no more than to indicate the first-rate importance of researches, the result of which is to render obsolete all former writings on the subject, such as Joyce's, in that well-meant but rudimentary book, "A Social History of Ancient Ireland."

Women's Status

Old Irish law, in regard to women's status, rights and property, is shown to be immensely complex. For example, ten types of marriage connection are described in the Cáin Lánamhna, or Law of Matrimony. One such marriage is "a union with joint property," another "a woman with a man of property," and yet another "a man with a woman of property with service," and so on. The law of inheritance, flowing herefrom, is equally complex.

Professor Binchy's Note

Especially interesting is Professor Binchy's note on "Family Membership of Women," which shows how far a woman, marrying into another clan (to use a loose term, better understood than the correct word fine) retained rights with her own people. More important is the paper, by the same writer, on the Legal Capacity of Women, from which the high civic status of females is revealed. Dr. Thurneysen writes on Divorce, and explains this vexed question in regard to the interrelation of civil and Canon law. Father John Ryan, S.J., expounds the attitude of the Church to womanhood in ancient Ireland.

NEWS SUMMARY

SATURDAY, MARCH 28, 1936.

IRELAND

Lord Thankerton yesterday delivered the judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the case in which the Belfast Corporation challenged the validity of the Education levy, imposed by the Government of Northern Ireland. The Judicial Committee found that the imposition of the levy was within the powers of the Government.—(Page 9.)

A dramatic account of the shooting of Vice-Admiral Henry Boyle Somerville at his home at Castletownshend, on Tuesday night, was given by the widow yesterday, when the inquest was opened at the residence by the Acting Coroner, Mr. T. P. Granger. The inquest was adjourned to a date to be fixed later.—(Page 9.)

No supplies of coal arrived in Dublin yesterday. The effects of the strike are being felt severely by the very poor, and the Lord Mayor yesterday attended various conferences with a view to finding means of meeting their necessities. The Executive Committee of the Trades Union Council has suggested that the Corporation should purchase coal for the use of the citizens.—(Page 9.)

SPORTING

At Liverpool yesterday Reynoldstown won the Grand National Steeplechase, Ego being second, and Bachelor Prince third.—(Page 12.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock markets were inactive, with a few bright spots among Industrials. Mines closed on a firm note.—(Page 14.)

The Treasury bill rate was almost unchanged at 10s. per cent. Gold was fixed at 140s. 11½d. per ounce, and £255,000 in bars was sold.—(Page 14.)

Dublin market was quiet. Bank Stock rose three points, and Great Southern issues continued to appreciate.—(Page 14.)

The World's Navies

The Naval Conference that was inaugurated last December ended its labours this week with the publication of a new agreement, which will replace the Washington Treaty of 1922 and the London Treaty of 1930. From the opening days of the conference it was apparent that nothing of real value would emerge. All hope of agreement on practical matters was doomed from the moment when Japan refused to accept any understanding which should deny her Navy parity with those of Great Britain and the United States. There was, indeed, a prevalent fear that the only result would be a complete breakdown of negotiations. Happily, that fear has not been realised. A new treaty has been signed by Great Britain and the members of the British Commonwealth—except South Africa and the Irish Free State—France and the United States. It concedes little to the cause of disarmament; for the limitations which have found favour clearly are not dictated by any willingness to disarm, but rather by the necessity to save money. Yet a poor result is better than none at all, and we must congratulate the British and American delegates upon the tenacity with which they held the conference together at a time when its disruption appeared inevitable. Agreement has been reached, at any rate, upon a few points. Until 1942 the signatory nations will build no battleships of more than 35,000 tons, or aircraft carriers larger than 23,000 tons. Cruisers will be limited to a maximum displacement of 8,000 tons, and submarines to 2,000 tons at most. The armament of these vessels also will be limited by the new treaty, though the limitation in the case of battleships—to 14-inch guns—will cease to operate in April of next year if all the Washington Powers will not have subscribed by that date. It is agreed, too, that no existing vessel, if modernised, will be armed with heavier guns than those which it already possesses. Finally, the subscribing Powers are bound to notify one another at the beginning of every year of their building programmes for that year, and to supply full particulars of every newly-built, acquired or modernised vessel.

It is still open to Italy and Japan to add their signatures to the new Treaty of London. Italy so far has abstained as a protest against the League's sanctions, and refuses to sign until the sanctions are removed. Whatever hope there may be of a change of the Italian heart, the likelihood of Japan's accordance is exceedingly remote. Japan, like Germany, has discovered that stubbornness pays. When the League of Nations condemned her invasion of Chinese territory, Japan replied by a simple withdrawal from the League, and continued her invasion, secure in the knowledge that the League had neither the courage nor the desire to prevent her. The only hope of naval disarmament lies with the Japanese. If they will not consent to limit their ships, the United States likewise will refuse. Great Britain, who wishes parity with the United States, will refuse. Germany possesses the treaty right to a navy one-third of the strength of the British Navy—that is to say, slightly stronger than France's. France will insist on superiority to Germany; and Italy's Mediterranean policy demands that she shall be the equal of France in those waters. The result, therefore, of Japan's insistence on parity with the United States can be only an armaments race; and who can expect that the new treaty will stay the course? It is significant, indeed, that several "safeguarding clauses" have been incorporated. If one of the signatory Powers decides to go to war, it may suspend its obligations under the treaty; and thereupon the other signatory Powers, after consultation with one another, may do the same thing. If, in like manner, one of the Powers concludes that its requirements for security have been altered by any change of circumstances, it can throw its obligations overboard. Such safeguards were implicit—at any rate, they were assumed—in the Washington and London Treaties; the fact that they are so cynically explicit in the new pact is clear proof of its precarious nature.

One feature of the various conversations and discussions which attended the making of the treaty is reassuring. It is the continued evidence of a close accord between Great Britain and the United States. Mr. Norman Davis, the head of the United States delegation, writes to Mr. Anthony Eden: "It is our understanding that we are in agreement that there shall be no competitive naval building as between ourselves, and that the principle of naval parity as between the fleets of members of the British Commonwealth and of the United States shall continue unchanged." Mr. Eden has replied to Mr. Davis as follows: "I can, indeed, go further than this, and say that in estimating our naval requirements we have never taken the strength of the United States Navy into account." Therein lies the one certain fact amid a welter of doubts. Great Britain and the United States have reaffirmed the principle that they have nothing to fear from each other, and do not contemplate the possibility of war with each other at any time. Their friendship stands in pleasant contrast to the shifting alliances of continental Europe, the international rivalries and uncertainties. We hope most sincerely that the firmness of that friendship will endure; for in it lies one of the world's best chances of abiding peace. The most calamitous prospect that could face the world would be that of an armaments race between Britain and America; for it would remove the one stable factor in all programmes of disarmament. So long, moreover, as their friendship abides, both nations can face the future with reasonable confidence. Each of them carries enormous weight in the counsels of the world; together they constitute the most powerful force that exists for peace or war. Their amity, happily, rests on something deeper than the professions of statesmen; yet it is good that it should be reaffirmed every now and then, in order that the world may know.

British Films

Renters, quota figures, exhibitors, and the rest of the film trade's paraphernalia have little interest for the average citizen, who merely wants to know if the film at the local cinema will be worth a visit. Yet the technical questions affect him more closely than he may think. Among them is the fact that the Cinematograph Films Act of 1927 is due to expire in Great Britain next year, and may, or may not, be renewed. The Act, indeed, has made many changes in the cinema programmes, and its disappearance would make more—though whether those changes would be good or bad is a matter for argument. Certainly, some of its results have been impressive. When it was passed, in 1928, the British film industry was struggling vainly against Hollywood, which had such a grip on the world's markets that competition was almost impossible. At that time American films comprised 98 per cent. of the programmes at British cinemas, and the British studios, which had not begun to operate until the film industry was firmly established in almost every other country, were at a hopeless disadvantage. In order to help them to make a start the British Government adopted methods which are almost too familiar to people in the Irish Free State—it prevented the free import of the foreign article, and insisted on the use of the native product. A quota was imposed, and cinemas since that time have been compelled to show a certain percentage of British-made films in their programmes. There can be little doubt that the new quota system has been most effective in many ways. One of its best results was that the British producers, freed from the intolerable pressure of foreign imports, were able to settle down and to place the British industry on good foundations. The improved quality of British films is due almost entirely to the passing of the Cinematograph Films Act, and the strongest argument for it is the fact that many of the American "stars" are beginning to forsake Hollywood for London. The Act, however, has had some very bad consequences in other ways, and the worst of them has been the arrival of the "quickies." At the moment the proportion of home-made films which must be shown in British cinemas is 20 per cent. Some of these films may be good, but a great many more are made only to fill up the quota—they are made as cheaply as possible, with inexperienced actors, and with producers who know almost nothing about their business. Thus, the prestige that has been gained by the good films is almost lost again by the "quickies," which are so feeble and amateurish that they are beginning to earn an undeservedly bad name for British films in general. There is much to be said, then, for the abolition of the Cinematograph Films Act. It has served its purpose; for the British studios now are in so strong a position that they can defy Hollywood. On the other hand, its continuance only means that the supply of "quickies" will be as great in the future as it has been in the past.

The Glorious Uncertainty

The result of the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree yesterday is another striking tribute to the virtues of the Irish horse. Reynoldstown, an animal whose home originally was in County Dublin, created a new record by his second victory in two consecutive years—a feat that had not been achieved previously for some seventy years. Now that the technique of broadcasting has been brought to such a pitch of perfection, it is possible for the average man, who has his little flutter on the "National" every year, to follow the fortunes of the race from the comfort of his own home; and, indeed, the person who "listens in" rather than watch the race at Aintree probably obtains a far better idea of the race than the man on the spot. Certainly, yesterday's broadcast was as close to perfection as anything of the kind is likely to be, and the drama of Davy Jones's last-minute failure to win the race—as the result, it seems, of a broken rein—was described in masterly fashion. The Grand National has an attraction for Irishmen that not even the Derby can rival. Year after year Irish horses prove their undoubted superiority over all others as steeplechasers. Now and then, as in the case of Tipperary Tim some years ago, a completely unknown animal shows his heels to all his rivals; and there is an element of uncertainty about this great jumping event, in comparison with which the "form" of flat-racing can be estimated with almost mathematical precision. Of recent years the lure of Aintree has been enhanced by the fact that the Irish Hospitals' Trust's sweepstake on the "National" generally is the biggest of the year. Yesterday's win by Reynoldstown brought substantial wealth, and, we may hope, new happiness, to several Irish homes. As usual, there was a large contingent of Irishmen at Aintree, and the County Dublin horse's success was extremely popular. Crises may come and go on the Continent of Europe. The shadow of imminent wars may darken the brows of statesmen, but the inhabitant of these islands still pays far more attention to a good race than to any problem of world politics. Foreigners are baffled by this remarkable trait in the British—and Irish—character. They believe that it denotes an element of frivolity, and shrug their shoulders at the antics of the "Mad British." Possibly they may be right; but, for better or for worse, there it is. If London were being bombed to-morrow, the result of the 3.30 race would be awaited eagerly in the bomb-proof shelters. Racing in these islands has a unique position in the lives of the people.

A Shock for Belfast

The Corporation of Belfast has lost its case against the Northern Government. It decided some months ago to ask the Privy Council whether the Government had any real right to demand a levy of 1s. in the pound from the ratepayers of Belfast as a contribution towards the cost of education. The Corporation pleaded that this levy was, in fact, a general tax, of the nature of income tax, and that the Government's powers did not authorise it to impose such taxation. Surprisingly, we must admit, the plea has failed. According to the Privy Council, even if the levy amounts to a tax, such tax is not the same thing as income tax, and the Government is acting within its powers. Now, presumably, the Corporation will make no further complaint, but will pay up and look as pleasant as possible. The proceeds of a shilling levy for this year, and of a sixpenny levy which was to have been imposed last year—but actually, pending the Privy Council's decision, is in arrears—will amount to something more than £200,000—a not unwelcome increment to the Government's revenues. Furthermore, it is probable that the other local authorities which protested against the levy will capitulate, in view of the Belfast Corporation's failure to make good its plea, and will pay their own debts. The decision by this time has caused widespread discontent in Belfast, which only yesterday assumed itself to have escaped with a municipal rate of only 8s. 10d. in the pound. With the addition of 1s. 6d. for the education levy, the rate will rise to 10s. 4d. The sum, indeed, is not great; but its smallness is governed, to some extent, by the fact that the great majority of valuations have been increased by last year's Revaluation Bill. It is calculated, indeed, that the original 8s. 10d. for this year corresponds to a rate of 12s. 10d. on the old valuations, so that what seems at first sight to be a substantial reduction is actually an increase in the ratepayer's liability.

LONDON LETTER

THE GERMAN ATTITUDE

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

THE next move in the international situation will be the production of Germany's new proposals, which are to be brought to London by Herr von Ribbentrop on Tuesday, immediately after the result of the election is made known. The Germans wish to give the fullest possible effect to the certain unanimity of the general election vote on Sunday for Herr Hitler, when his Government will declare that its Rhineland policy has the unanimous support of the German people, and that in such circumstances it cannot withdraw a single man nor permit the presence of an international force from the League of Nations within its boundaries. The latter suggestion has offended the Germans more deeply than any other of the Locarno proposals, and this fact is appreciated here. Many people take the view that such action should never have been put forward. It was thought in diplomatic quarters to-day that the new proposals from Berlin will be long and diffuse, but that they are unlikely to include anything that will bridge the gap between the German and French points of view regarding the Rhineland.

"Joint Action"

Rumours have been flying about for some days that the British and French General Staffs have begun the conversations regarding future joint action should circumstances require it. It is understood, however, that no such conversations have begun, and, furthermore, that it is most improbable that any would be entered upon without an intimation to Parliament by the Prime Minister. The suggested conversations are unlikely to take place at all unless there is a very pronounced and unforeseen change in the situation. In Berlin to-day it was stated by the official spokesman that collaboration of the Staffs as agreed in London was regarded as indicating that the rest of Europe was still under the influence of a pre-War mentality. Germany had no intention of attacking anyone else. The spokesman added that the General Staff idea did not fit in with present times, and certainly not with a Europe which wants to live in peace

The Reichsmark

Germany's financial situation is not all that could be desired, but it is likely to become worse if Dr. Schacht persists in the resignation of his post as President of the Reichsbank. Ever since Herr Hitler became Chancellor the report of this bank has echoed the insistence of Dr. Schacht on the need for the stability of the reichsmark. This year's report contains no such insistence, however, and merely points out that it is the Reichsbank's task to provide for orderly currency conditions. In German financial circles this is interpreted as indicating a possible change of policy as a result of Germany's difficulties in the world's market. It is known that a considerable pressure has been put on Dr. Schacht from extreme Nazi quarters, where easier money conditions would be popular

Singapore

A volunteer air force was inaugurated at Singapore on 25th March, 1936. A number of officers and airmen of the Royal Air Force have already left England for Singapore to assist in the training of the unit, and others will follow later in the year. The majority of the personnel of the force will be recruited locally. The first unit will be trained primarily for co-operation with the fixed defences of the base, and will be equipped with a type of aircraft similar to that used in the Royal Air Force for these duties. For the present it will be accommodated at the Air Force aerodrome at Singapore, but will move to the new civil aerodrome at Tanjong Rhu as soon as suitable buildings are available for it. The cost of these buildings is being defrayed by the generosity of the Sultan of Johore.

The Cup Final

There is this year a greater demand than ever before for tickets for the Football Cup final, which already are commanding a premium on account of the small number available to the public, apart from those allotted to clubs directly affiliated with the Football Association. Of the 92,000 tickets, both clubs taking part in the final are entitled to an allotment of 10,000, which number includes 550 at a guinea each, and just over 6,000 tickets at half a crown. The allotment to clubs in the First Division is about 400 tickets each, while clubs in the Second Division receive about 300. These, as a rule, are insufficient to meet the requirements of the supporters of the clubs, so that there is a wide demand for tickets from all parts of the country.

Football Pools

A bill having as its object the abolition of football pools has been presented to the House of Commons by Mr. R. J. Russell, and the text of the proposed measure was issued to-day. The bill provides that, with certain exceptions, no pari-mutuel or pool betting business should be carried on, whether on a track or elsewhere; and that no person should use any such premises, or knowingly permit them to be used, for the purpose of carrying on any such business. The bill provides that every person who contravenes any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of an offence, and shall be subject to penalties in accordance with the Betting and Lotteries Act, 1934.

A Suburban Controversy

A violent controversy has broken out in several suburban districts with regard to the disposal of house refuse. Local authorities which disposed of it by incineration have been advised by the Government department responsible for supervising their accounts that dumping the refuse is a more economical method. It is estimated that the difference between burning and dumping is equivalent to a rate of three-halfpence in the pound, and in these days of higher rates local authorities are looking for any way in which to cut down expenditure. Residents in the districts where it is proposed to dump the rubbish, however, have other ideas, and at Harrow, where it is proposed to open up five dumps, the residents have expressed a preference for higher rates rather than have the rubbish from a wide area deposited in their midst.

WEATHER FORECAST

General Inference.—A depression centred off West Ireland is moving north-north-west slowly. Showers and bright periods will be experienced over most of the country at first, but a renewal of more general rain in south-west districts will spread north-east.

Ireland.—Wind westerly, moderate, backing south or south-east; cloudy; occasional rain; mild.

Sea Passages.—Wind south-west, moderate; cloudy; occasional rain; sea moderate.

THE MURDER OF VICE-ADMIRAL SOMERVILLE

Widow's Dramatic Evidence at the Inquest

THE FOOTSTEPS IN THE DARK

State Solicitor's Denunciation of the Crime

A DRAMATIC description of the shooting of Vice-Admiral Henry Boyle Somerville was given by his widow at the inquest, which was opened yesterday at the residence of the deceased gentleman, at Castletownshend, County Cork.

Having told the jury how she had heard footsteps in the yard at night, and a knock at the door, followed by the firing of shots in the hall, she described the finding of her husband's body.

Denying the statement that he had secured recruits for the British Army and Navy, Mrs. Somerville said: "He never canvassed for recruits for either Service. Boys, however, came to him to ascertain the procedure for entering the Navy."

Mr. T. Healy, State Solicitor, who conducted the inquest for the police authorities, stated that the murder was a crime which no Government or people could tolerate, and, on behalf of the authorities, he condemned in the strongest possible manner what he described as "the terrible murder."

After the adjournment of the inquest the funeral took place, and was attended by almost the whole population of Castletownshend, and many people from the surrounding country.

DESCENDANT OF A PROUD FAMILY

Mr. T. Healy, State solicitor, addressing the acting Coroner (Mr. T. P. Grainger, solicitor, Macroom), and jury, said: "A grave responsibility rests upon us all in the manner in which we conduct this inquest. A gentleman who lived in this neighbourhood, who had served with distinction in the Service of which he was an honoured member, lies dead—murdered in the hallway of his house in the presence of his wife.

"They—he and his wife—had come here towards the close of their day, he the descendant of a proud family, the descendant of people who had won distinction at home and abroad, the descendant of one of the incorruptible band who had fought to keep in this country a Parliament which had legislated for the entire country, the descendant of one who had disdained rank and wealth in order to fight for that Parliament which legislated for thirty-two counties of Ireland and not for a dismembered and partitioned country.

THE FRIEND OF ALL

"He had come here, and at the end of his days; he acted as a kindly gentleman to all, and everybody who came to him for help and aid was assisted by him."

"On last Tuesday night," continued Mr. Healy, "at the behest of an unknown hand, he was assassinated on his doorstep, and this is a crime which no Government or people can tolerate. No Government can tolerate the taking of the life of the humblest of its citizens by any caucus or any band. On behalf of the authorities I condemn in the strongest possible manner the terrible murder which has taken place here, and on behalf of the Gardai authorities I am instructed to express their abhorrence of the tragedy and their determination to do everything possible to bring those responsible to justice, and I am instructed to offer to the widow and family the sympathy of the officers and men of the Gardai force. I tender to them, too, on my own behalf, my sincere sympathy in the terrible loss which has befallen them.

NO RANTING PATRIOT

"Vice-Admiral Somerville was an Irishman who took a deep interest in his country. He was not a ranting patriot, but he had by his words and by his actions shown that he took an interest in his country, and his contributions as a result of his archæological researches stand as a monument to his memory. He was a member of the Cork Historical and Archæological Society, and he placed at the disposal of his fellow-countrymen the wealth of knowledge and experience he had acquired.

"Unfortunately, owing to great stress of the times a great number of our people have been reduced to poverty, and for the purpose of getting a livelihood it was necessary for them to seek services in other fields, and they came to Admiral Somerville to give them letters of recommendation. Now a notice was found after the tragedy in this house, which stated that Admiral Somerville acted as recruiting agent on behalf of the British Army. I am instructed that that is false, and that Admiral Somerville never asked, sought or induced any person to join that Army or Navy, or any other army or navy, but that when people came to him and asked him for a recommendation he gave it freely, in so far as it lay in his power where he knew people, and when he did not know them he told them the procedure to be adopted, but he used no influence to get any man or boy into the English Navy—he simply told them the procedure to be adopted.

WITHOUT WARNING

"Now, if every person who had signed a recommendation for boys to join the English Navy is to be shot, I am afraid that there will be a great number of people in this country who will be shot, because men in all stages and positions, clergymen and officials, and men of different parties have signed such recommendations. Surely the least that might have been given to the deceased man was a warning that his action was distasteful. No notice or warning was given, but instead he was hurled to death. No stain will lie on the memory of the deceased man where he was known, and throughout the country the action which has taken place is abhorrent, and I again repeat that every effort will be made to trace the authors of it.

"I propose to produce for you the widow, and to ask her to give an account of what happened last Tuesday night in this house, and also evidence of the State Pathologist and Dr. Burke, and one or two other witnesses. Then I propose to ask you to adjourn the inquest to another occasion."

The Coroner—I think that is a very proper application, and I will accede to it.

WIDOW'S EVIDENCE

THE KNOCK AT THE DOOR

Mrs. Somerville, widow of the dead Vice-Admiral, giving evidence, said that her husband was 72 years old, and had served in the British Navy until he retired in 1919. Up to 1924 he was attached to the Admiralty, and at the end of July in that year they returned to Castletownshend. There lived in the house with them on last Tuesday two maids named Lizzie McDonald and Mary McCarthy. On Tuesday night Mary McCarthy left the house at 8 o'clock, and the other maid left about 9 o'clock. It was the custom in all houses in Castletownshend to let servants go to their homes for some hours at night.

The witness and her husband were in their diningroom at 9.15 p.m.; then she walked into an adjoining room, and while there she heard footsteps walking across the yard, which was immediately outside that room.

Mr. Healy—What attracted your attention next?

Witness—I knew it was a boy's step or a man's, and I thought it might be that of the boy working here. I heard the steps come through the gateway and pass the front of the house in the direction of the hall door. I said to my husband: "I hear someone walking by the window; perhaps it is one of the boys coming to see you." He replied: "Probably it is; I'll go and see."

THE VOICE IN THE HALL

At that moment, continued the witness, there was a knock at the door. My husband got up and carried a lamp into the hall. I believe my husband opened the hall door. Then I heard an indistinct voice, which, I believe, said: "Are you Mr. Somerville?" My husband said: "Yes, I am Admiral Somerville." Nothing more was said, but immediately I heard the sound of a shot and falling glass, and three, four or five shots—I cannot say how many—in rapid succession. There was no interval between the shots. I took up another lamp and rushed into the hallway, which had become dark again. I called, not to my husband, but to whoever was firing the shots: "What are you doing?"

When I got to the diningroom door a gust of wind blew out the lamp. There was then complete darkness, and no sound except that of hurried footsteps outside—I should say of more than one man; I should say of two men, but I cannot be definite, as I saw nothing.

What direction did the footsteps go in?

Down the avenue towards the public road.

What did you then do?

FINDING OF THE BODY

As the hall was completely dark I rushed upstairs and got another lamp. On coming down I saw my husband lying in the porch. He was lying by the side with his head against the wall. Previously I had called out to him twice, but got no answer.

What did you do next?

For a few minutes I remained in the hall to make sure that my husband was not unconscious but dead. I then went to my brother-in-law's, Admiral Hugh Somerville's, house.

To go there was it necessary to leave the grounds?

No, I walked down the path leading through the grounds.

The witness went on to describe how she procured assistance from her brother-in-law, who in turn telephoned the Guards at Skibbereen for medical assistance.

A DENIAL

On the question of recruiting she said: "My husband was not engaged in recruiting for the British Navy or Army, and he had no appointment for the purpose of getting recruits. He never canvassed for recruits for either of the services. Boys came to him frequently to ascertain the procedure for entering the Navy.

To her knowledge, she added, her husband had never received any warning or notice calling on him to desist from this custom.

To the Coroner—He was on the friendliest terms with all his neighbours, and with all the people in the village and about the countryside. He had no enemy, to her knowledge.

PATHOLOGIST'S EVIDENCE

The evidence of the State pathologist, Dr. McGrath, indicated that there were six bullet wounds in the body, one in the left groin puncturing the intestines and the right thigh: the second in the left side of ilium, and thence through the back bone; the third in the chest, through the breast bone and large artery of the heart; the fourth and fifth had entrance and exit in the left arm, and the sixth was at the angle of the lower jaw, breaking the jawbone.

Death was due to shock and hemorrhage caused by bullet wounds, in particular the heart wound, which would have been fatal in a few minutes.

Dr. Michael Burke (Skibbereen) described his preliminary examination of the body while it was lying in the hall on the night of the shooting.

THE NOTICE

Civic Guard O'Brien (Skibbereen) described the finding on the hall floor of a notice which read: "This English agent sent 52 Irish boys to join the British Army in the last seven weeks."

At this stage the proceedings were adjourned to a date to be fixed later.

THE FUNERAL

MOST REV. DR. CASEY PRESENT

Immediately after the adjournment of the inquest the funeral took place from the house to the family burial place at Castletownshend. The coffin was carried on the shoulders of men to the grave. The few village shops remained closed during the funeral, and blinds were drawn in every house.

The simple, but impressive, cortège included nearly all the villagers and many other residents in the neighbourhood. The chief officiating clergyman was Canon Madden (Rector), Castletownshend.

Among those who walked in the cortège was the Most Rev. Dr. Casey, Bishop of Ross, with several of his curates.

The large number of wreaths included one from the British Admiralty.

The chief mourners included Mrs. Somerville (widow), Colonel Cameron Somerville, Colonel John Somerville and Vice-Admiral Hugh Somerville (brothers), Dr. Edith Somerville and Lady Hildegarde Coghill (sisters), Miss Diana Somerville (daughter), Sir Patrick Coghill, Mr. Neville Coghill, Mr. Ambrose Coghill and Major Desmond Somerville (nephews), Mrs. Edward Maxwell and Mrs. H. Somerville (sisters-in-law).

THE ONE-WAY ELECTION

GERMANY TO VOTE "YES"

HITLER'S SPEECH AT ESSEN

STATESMAN WITH NO BANKING ACCOUNT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Friday.

TWO big speeches by Hitler and Goering this afternoon and to-night marked the closing stages of one of the most remarkable election campaigns ever waged in Germany. It can be called an "Alice in Wonderland" election in the following respects:—

(1) There is only one party in the field, and the only way of filling up the paper without rendering it invalid is to vote in favour of this party;

(2) Despite this fact, the polling has been preceded by what is probably the most intensive propaganda campaign ever devoted to an election in any country;

(3) Many of the voters believe that the votes are liable to be controlled, and that they must vote "Yes" to be on the safe side; and

(4) Many Germans believe that if they abstain or spoil their papers they are liable to lose their German citizenship altogether.

NAZI FLAGS

Every car owner in Berlin has been ordered to fly the Nazi flag or display election posters. Many lorries dash through the streets full of Nazis shouting slogans. Barges sail the rivers with bands playing and election banners flying.

Election jokes are circulating in Berlin this week-end, and some of them throw interesting light on the spirit of scepticism in which some people regard Sunday's polling. Some of the jokes play with the suggestion that election results may be arranged beforehand—quite unjustified, no doubt, in the present instance, but good enough for the foes of the Nazis to make play with. One such joke runs as follows:—

"Did you hear there was a burglary at the Propagasda Ministry last night?"

"No; what was stolen?"

"The election results for 1940."

FROM KRUPPS

Preceded by a nation-wide one-minute silence ushered in by the hooting of sirens and the hoisting of flags all over Germany, Herr Hitler addressed the nation this afternoon from the chassis of a railway engine in Krupps' works at Essen.

Hitler denounced conflicts between the classes, and said that the strength they had expended in fighting at home they had lacked in asserting themselves in the world. Some people criticised what he had done, or said that they would have done it in a different way, but it was easy for people to be wise after the event. Just as there could be no division of the nations into victor and vanquished, said Hitler, so could there be no such division in respect to employers and employés.

He said: "I do not belong to any employers, to any class, or any religious confession, but only to my people. I am not in favour of arming Germany simply because I am a shareholder. I think I am the only statesman in the world who has no banking account. I have no shares. I have no dividends. I only want my people to be strong.

"I AM ADAMANT"

"I do not want to struggle with other nations, but just as I have refused to submit to anyone at home, so I decline to do this in foreign politics. A territory of the size of Belgium has been disarmed, and now is re-armed. Here I am adamant. I will not be the representative of a second-class nation.

"What is it we Germans want in the world? I will tell you—to be left alone. Europe is like a great house inhabited by many families. It will not do for one family to interfere in another's flat and say which rooms may be occupied and which may not. We have no interest in France and Belgium, and we deny their rights to have an interest in us."

Hitler then gave an account of the offers which he had made to Europe, and said: "I asked that no military pacts should be concluded, but this was rejected. Such pacts were concluded, and they were blessed by the League of Nations, and were called pacts for the rebuilding of Europe. It is not I who have inaugurated military staff discussions. If Europe gets entangled in many military alliances I, at least, want the sovereignty of the whole Reich restored. This is what I have done.

TREATIES

"Because we would like to believe in the sacredness of treaties, we want to restore the preliminary condition—that is, that two equal partners voluntarily sign. Only that can be called a sacred pact. The right to live is more than any letter of a treaty.

"If someone should have doubts about our guarantees, I say either you must believe 65,000,000 people or you need not. If you do not believe them, why do you continue to negotiate with them at all? The people want peace, work and bread. If anybody does not believe this we cannot help it.

"I have no time to say that this or that should be done in France. I see a colossal programme of work in front of me in Germany. What a task! If only the other statesmen would see the work which they have to do in their countries."

THE WAR IN ABYSSINIA

BIG OFFENSIVE BEGUN

ANOTHER AMBULANCE BOMBED

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

THE Swedish ambulance on the southern front is reported from Addis Ababa to have been partly destroyed during a heavy bombardment at Gobba, in the Bale province, yesterday morning. Gondar, some 25 miles north of Lake Tana, is also stated to have been bombed and the former Italian Consulate and the Roman Catholic mission destroyed.

The Italian forces are now moving in the direction of Lake Tana, source of the Blue Nile, and Gondar is said to be their next objective.

Some 12,000 Abyssinians, the remains of the troops of Ras Kassa and Ras Seyoum, are reported to be at present concentrated in Gondar.

EMPEROR'S TROOPS

The Press Association Special Correspondent in the Abyssinian capital learns from an excellent source that the Emperor, with the mass of his army, has moved from near Khoram to a point adjacent to Sokota, over a hundred miles east of Gondar, thus strengthening the strategical position of his forces.

In the south there are indications that the great offensive, on which the Italians pin their hopes of ending the war quickly, has begun. The Abyssinians are digging in before Harar with machine-gun emplacements, trenches and so forth, according to an Italian report from Djibuti.

Marshal Badoglio, however, remains silent. "Nothing to report on either front," says yesterday's communiqué."

The bombing of the Swedish ambulance unit reported yesterday is the second bombing of a Swedish unit during the war. The unit in this last bombing would appear to be that commanded by Dr. Hylander, whose ambulance suffered a first disastrous bombing while serving with Ras Desta's army near Dolo in December. One Swedish medical assistant was then mortally wounded, Dr. Hylander and another Swedish doctor were wounded, thirty Abyssinians were killed, and another fifty wounded.

PLENTY OF OIL

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROME, Friday.

"The fuel reserves of the Italian Navy will, before long, be sufficient to enable us to face any crisis, even one of long duration," asserted Admiral Cavagnari, Under-Secretary for Marine, speaking in the Senate to-day.

This statement follows the claim of the Under-Secretary for Air that the Air Force has so much petrol that it has ceased importing fuel.

Admiral Cavagnari was making an explanatory statement on the naval estimates before the adjournment of the Senate for the Easter recess. "The announcement of a long range building programme at the present time would not be opportune," he declared. "We can do so when the sky is clearer, but at the present a Nordic mist is hanging overhead, and we must navigate with much circumspection."

OFF MALTA

Admiral Cavagnari referred to Admiral Sir Roger Keyes's statement that Italian submarines had come bobbing up like corks during the British naval exercises off Malta. "Representatives and responsible men in the British Empire have already denied this story.

"But it is not out of place to observe that our submarines have always carried out their exercises in home waters or in the open sea. If they are seen at Alexandria or at Port Said, they are sailing past with their flags flying—on the surface—to enter the Suez Canal."

An Irish Victory in Grand National

Reynoldstown Wins for the Second Time

Major Noel Furlong's Reynoldstown won the Grand National yesterday for the second year in succession, a feat that had not been accomplished since The Colonel was successful in 1869 and 1870. The only other horse to score in successive years was Abd-el-Kader in 1850 and 1851, though three other horses have won the race twice—namely, Peter Simple, The Lamb and Manifesto.

Major Furlong bought Reynoldstown from his breeder, Mr. Richard Ball, of Reynoldstown, Co. Dublin. The winner, who was ridden by Mr. F. Walwyn, started at 10 to 1, and won by twelve lengths from Sir D. Llewellyn's Ego (50 to 1), with Mr. J. Rank's Bachelor Prince (66 to 1) third.

The favourite, Avenger, was killed when he fell after completing the course. Golden Miller came to grief at the first fence, and of the thirty-five starters only ten completed the 4 miles 856 yards.

The full story of the race, as told by our Racing Correspondent, Galtee More, appears in Page 12.

FRANCO-SOVIET PACT

RATIFICATION IN PARIS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Friday.

The Franco-Soviet Pact of Mutual Assistance, which was given by Herr Hitler as justification for his remilitarisation of the Rhineland, came into force to-day. Almost unnoticed among the many diplomatic visits, M. Flandin and M. Litvinoff met and exchanged ratifications in Paris.

One of the principal clauses states that, "should either country be the victim of an unprovoked aggression the other shall at once come to its aid."

The treaty is to be valid "during a period of five years from the date of ratification, and, if not denounced by either party at least one year before the expiry of that period, shall remain in force indefinitely, the signatories retaining the right to terminate it at a year's notice."

After conferring with M. Sarraut, the Premier, to-day, M. Flandin announced that he would make an important speech on the diplomatic situation on Sunday evening.

THE QUEEN MARY IN DRY DOCK

The Queen Mary, which reached Southampton yesterday from the Clyde, stood high and dry in the King George the Fifth graving dock last night. All water had been drained out of the dock by 10 o'clock. Lights glimmered from the liner's portholes.

At the bottom of the dock scores of workmen—who looked like pigmies from the ground level—worked by electric lights until the early morning.

ESTIMATED RATE FOR DUBLIN

CITY MANAGER'S REPORT

A TOTAL SUM OF 16/6

CAUSES OF THE INCREASE

A RATE of 16s. 6d. in the £ for the financial year ending on March 31, 1937, as against a rate of 15s. 8½d. in the £ of last year, is estimated in the report of the Dublin City Manager to the Dublin Corporation.

A uniform rate will apply, the report states, to the whole extended city area, as the period of operation of the Act of 1930, providing for differential rating, ends on March 31 next.

The total required under the heads of the Dublin Board of Assistance, Unemployment Assistance, Grangegorman Mental Hospital, Vocational Education, and the Dublin Port and Docks Board, is £645,570, an increase of £98,294 on last year's requirements, representing an increase of 1s. 1d. in the £ of the rate.

CIVIC SERVICES

The provision for essential civic services is set out as follows:

	1936-37.	Increase.
Housing	£102,554	£18,191
Waterworks	91,560	11,635
Public Libraries	34,325	9,988
Sewers & Main Drainage	126,740	9,762
Municipal Election—1936	7,470	7,470
Expenses of Tribunal under Act of 1930	2,100	2,100
Public Lighting	72,994	6,832
Total increase		£65,978

The excess of £65,978 over 1935-36 equals an increased rate of 8¾d. in the £, which, added to the increase shown in the preceding paragraph, equals a total addition (over 1935-36) of 1s. 9¾d. in the £.

WATER AND LIGHT

Observing that the whole tendency of expenditure was now, and would be, definitely upward, the City Manager goes on to deal with the Corporation's ceaseless effort in the past three years to obtain a decision as to the joint hydro-electric waterworks scheme. The delay, for which the Corporation was not responsible, had, however, involved critical conditions as to water supply, and the special measures to cope with the emergency were having their effect on expenditure, which would increase in the future, to meet borrowing for capital expenditure for temporary measures, while, later on, huge capital would be necessary for the provision of a permanent additional supply.

The estimate for public lighting had increased by £6,295, and as long as a demand for improved public lighting had to be met the estimates must continue to increase.

THE RATEPAYERS

Having stated that the ratepayers no longer were confined to wealthy merchants, industrialists and the better-off classes, but included all classes of wage-earners, the City Manager said that, with enormous borrowing for housing and waterworks, the city's indebtedness had increased since April 1, 1931, by nearly four millions.

The report adds:—"The addition to the rates necessary to meet the increases therein indicated amounts to 1s. 9¾d. in the £. The actual increase, however, is very much less—viz., 9¼d. in the £. Indeed, but for the increases in statutory demands, over which the Corporation have no control, the city rate for 1936-37 would have been capable of a reduction of 3½d. in the £. This comparatively satisfactory result was mainly attributable to the abolition for 1936-37 of the preferential rating in certain districts, and also to the increased product of 1d. in the £ owing to increasing valuation, etc.

"It is fortunate that the Corporation in recent years have not adopted a policy of squandermania, or living beyond their means, as they are now able to face with comparative equanimity an increased rate, even though they have no responsibility for it; whereas, if the city rate were already a heavy burden, a substantial addition might well prove the 'last straw' for many a struggling ratepayer."

HOUSING AND ROADS

In recapitulating some of the main accomplishments of the Corporation, the report states that since 1930 4,912 houses had been completed and occupied, and those in course of construction, or being arranged for, would bring the total up to 15,245 dwellings. Grants of £65,000 had been made to public utility societies and others to assist in building, and as a supplementary house-building measure provision had been made for the advance of £1,150,000 to borrowers under the Small Dwellings Acquisition Acts.

Road improvements had cost various sums:—Upper Rathmines road, £22,000; Dartry road, £7,000, and Donnybrook £24,538. Widening schemes which are advancing include those for South Great George's street, Redmond's Hill and Wexford street, and Grattan Crescent (Emmet road). In Crumlin area seven miles of new roads had been made. Seven new bridges had been constructed in different parts of the city. On these and other works £817,000 had been expended.

Within the existing city boundary there are forty-one parks, open spaces and playgrounds, with an area of about 2,100 acres, the expenditure on the improvement of which has amounted to about £60,000 up to March 31, 1936.

The new sea wall at Clontarf was progressing rapidly, and the estimated total cost for its erection was £90,000. The Rivers Dodder, Tolka and Poddle had been improved in various ways.

HEAVY DEMANDS

The demand of Grangegorman Mental Hospital is increased by £11,943, due to (a) Decrease in credits as compared with previous demand; (b) Increased cost of general supply services, and (c) increased provision for loan charges. £81,459 represents the increase in the demand of the Dublin Board of Assistance, and this is mainly due to the absence of special credits which were available when the previous demand of the Board was being formulated.

The increase of £4,147 in the provisions under Section 26 of the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1933, is due to the increase in the rateable valuation of the city.

FATAL LORRY ACCIDENT

DUBLIN MAN CRUSHED TO DEATH

Martin Daly, of Ard Righ road, Dublin, was killed yesterday when a motor lorry which he was starting suddenly moved forward and pinned him against a wall.

The accident occurred near Messrs. Guinness's Brewery.

An Argentine engineer is reported to have invented a death ray which will prevent bombing 'planes from attacking towns. It is said that it consists of an invisible wall through which a 'plane cannot pass without crashing. A European Power is alleged to have purchased the first option on the invention, tests of which are now being made.

DUBLIN COAL STRIKE

HARDSHIPS OF THE POOR

LORD MAYOR'S BUSY DAY

YESTERDAY, the fifth day of the Dublin coal trade stoppage, passed without any further effort being made to bring the parties to the dispute together. Dublin is now under the shadow of a general stoppage at the docks. The final decision on this question will be taken at a mass meeting in the Rotunda Picture House to-morrow.

No coal supplies arrived in the city during the day, and no coal vessels are expected at the port.

Hoarded supplies of coal were again on sale in city shops. In one of the poorer districts queues of customers formed up—some with buckets, some with sacks, for supplies. Coal is now being sold at 9d. per stone—over three times its normal price.

As a consequence of representations made to him yesterday morning by Dr. K Reddin, Children's Welfare Association, Cork Hill, the Lord Mayor of Dublin got into touch with the various parties concerned in the strike with a view to relieving hardship occasioned by the stoppage. After discussing the position with Mr. P. T. Daly, Secretary, Dublin Trade Union Council, representatives of Irish Coal Importers, Ltd., and the trade unions, the Lord Mayor consulted a representative of the Department of Industry and Commerce.

PLIGHT OF THE POOR

In the afternoon a conference took place between Dr. Reddin, the Lord Mayor and Mr. J. Elliss, General Secretary, Irish Seamen's and Port Workers' Union, at the Mansion House. The conference considered the position in which people in Dublin found themselves, especially those who purchased their coal supplies in bags or smaller lots. Dr. Reddin referred to the present epidemic of measles among the children, and stated that many of those who were attending the welfare clinic told him that they were unable to provide warm food for their children on account of the shortage of fuel. In some cases poor people were endeavouring to heat their children's milk with candles.

Mr. Ellis stated that the workers recognised the position fully, and that he was in sympathy with the desire of the Lord Mayor and Dr. Reddin to see coal provided in such cases. He suggested that the Corporation should make arrangements without delay for the purchase of coal, and he gave an undertaking that such supplies would be discharged for delivery by the bellmen who normally handled them.

The Lord Mayor then got into touch with the offices of the Dublin Port and Docks Board, and received an assurance that, if emergency measures had to be taken, berths and cranes would be provided for the vessels carrying the special supplies. He was informed, however, that no storage facilities were available.

A representative of Irish Coal Importers, Ltd., stated that a meeting of the members would be held on Monday next, but that no action could be taken in the meantime, as the Chairman (Mr. C. V. Carroll) was out of town. In the meantime the position was discussed last night at the weekly meeting of the Executive Committee of the Dublin Trade Union Council.

TRADE COUNCIL'S SUGGESTION

The Executive Committee of the Dublin Trade Union Council, at its weekly meeting last night, discussed the coal trade position, and instructed the Secretary to communicate with the City Manager.

Mr. Daly is to point out that in 1921 the Dublin City Council purchased a considerable quantity of coal for the use of the citizens. He is to suggest that similar steps should be taken on this occasion to prevent a coal famine.

SUPPLY PROBLEM

A difficulty in obtaining coal supplies from England has been experienced by importers who are still in a position to pass the fuel on to customers. One firm—Messrs. C. Herbert Williams and Co.—which has been importing coal under quota, has had the greatest difficulty in obtaining supplies, and a recent letter in regard to the matter to one of the principal English mine-owners had not been answered up to yesterday. A representative of the firm stated that their customers are mainly among the poor of the city and the civic institutions.

As the coal was imported under the quota supplied by the Government, in accordance with the needs of the Coal-Cattle Pact with Great Britain, the representative said that it was up to the Government of the Free State to see that the English merchants fulfilled their engagements.

CORK CITY STRIKE

POSTPONEMENT FOR A WEEK

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Friday.

At the last moment the threatened strike of municipal workers in Cork, which was to have begun to-morrow, has been averted.

A meeting of the men was held to-night to consider a request to defer the strike notices, and it was agreed to postpone strike action for a further week, in order to give time for more discussions and the holding of another conference, under the auspices of the Ministry for Industry and Commerce.

Meanwhile the men will continue at work.

"WE WON'T GIVE IN"

FIERY ELECTION SPEECH

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Friday.

General Goering made a sharp reply to Mr. Eden's plea in the House of Commons yesterday that Germany should make a contribution to facilitate the opening of negotiations when he addressed an election meeting at the Deutschland Hall in Berlin to-night.

"To-day we hear again from British statesmen that we are to make a fresh contribution," General Goering, who was wearing a Storm Trooper's brown uniform, said. What do they expect? If they think we shall walk out from where we have just gone in they can wait until the end of the world. Does Mr. Eden think we are the same sort of cowards as our predecessors, whom we drove out of office? Then he certainly is mistaken."

General Goering denounced any idea of applying sanctions against Germany. "We won't give in," he shouted, amidst thunderous applause. "We shall rationalise our industries until our enemies drop with weakness. We shall not let ourselves be surpassed by Italy."

EDUCATION LEVY VALID

CORPORATION CASE FAILS

PRIVY COUNCIL'S JUDGMENT

INCOME TAX ANALOGY REJECTED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Friday.

THE levy for education is a rate, and is legal and binding, and would still be within the competence of the Parliament to impose if it had been a tax.

This is the result of the judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, delivered to-day, on the special reference raising the question whether the Government of Northern Ireland has power to call on local authorities to levy a rate yielding a lump sum for expenditure on education.

The argument was heard by the Lord Chancellor, Lord Thankerton, Lord Maugham, Sir George Lowndes and Sir Sidney Rowlatt.

During the argument Sir Sidney Rowlatt, who has given more judgments on income tax law than any other judge, laid his finger on the defect in the Belfast Corporation's view that the levy is in the nature of income tax, and the Privy Council's decision turns almost wholly on the distinction between a rate and a tax, which Sir Sidney Rowlatt then threw out. The Belfast Corporation had challenged the validity of Section 3 of the Finance Act (Northern Ireland), 1934, under which the rate was levied. What the section did, the Corporation argued, was to create a tax for general purposes in the nature of income tax. Anything like an income tax was contrary to the powers conferred on the Government by the Government of Ireland Act, 1920.

A DISTINCTION

The administrative importance of the difference between a rate and a tax came out in a comparison on March 6th of the English and Irish fiscal systems for education. In England the rate levied in local areas is for expenditure in those areas; in Northern Ireland the major cost is provided by the Parliament, and the levy called for by the Government goes into the Consolidated Fund, from which there is allocation according to local needs. As (the Belfast Corporation said) income tax machinery is not in the province of the Government of Northern Ireland, and a tax for a central fund is in the nature of income tax, this levy is invalid.

The Lord Chancellor drew from counsel in the course of argument their various definitions of the distinction between a rate and a tax, and then Sir Sidney Rowlatt intervened to say that the real characteristic of income tax is that it is directed to profits, whereas a rate is concerned only with the rateable value of property, according to which the occupier must pay whether he have any profits or not.

Counsel who argued the case were—Mr. Gavin T. Simonds, K.C.; Sir William Graham-Harrison, K.C.; Mr. J. M. Whitaker, K.C., and Mr. J. C. MacDermott (Dyson Bell and Co.) for the Corporation; and the Right Hon. A. B. Babington, K.C. (Attorney-General of Northern Ireland); Mr. Harold Murphy, K.C., and Mr. J. Desmond Chambers (Linklaters and Paines) for the Government.

THE JUDGMENT

Lord Thankerton delivered the judgment of the Privy Council. He said that it was well to examine all the clauses of Section 3 of the Finance Act of 1934, which are as follows:—

"3 (1) There shall be paid to the Exchequer of Northern Ireland by the Council of every county and county borough an annual contribution towards the cost to the said Exchequer of educational services.

"(2) The contribution to be paid by each such Council, as aforesaid, in respect of each financial year shall be as follows: (a) In respect of the year ending on the thirty-first day of March, 1935, an amount equal to the sum which would be produced by a rate of sixpence in the pound on the rateable value of the county or county borough; (b) in respect of each subsequent year an amount equal to the sum which would be produced by a rate of one shilling in the pound on the rateable value of the county or county borough.

"(3) The contribution to be paid by the Council of a county or county borough shall be raised by means of the poor rate, and shall, so far as it represents a rate on the rateable value of a borough or other urban district, be raised by the Council of the borough or urban district upon the demand of the County Council.

"Where a Council for the purpose of providing any sums required to be raised by them for the contribution to be paid in respect of the year ending on the thirty-first day of March, 1935, borrow money temporarily in exercise of the powers conferred upon the Council by Section Three of the Local Authorities (Financial Provisions) Act, 1921, or any similar enactment in a local Act, the term within which such money is required to be repaid shall be a period not exceeding six months from the ending of the said year.

"(4) The contributions payable under this section shall be paid in such instalments, payable at such times, as the Ministry of Finance may direct.

"(5) Expenditure incurred by a Council in paying any contribution, or meeting any demand under this section, shall not be taken into account for the purposes of the deficiency contribution under Section Twelve or Section Thirteen of the Local Government (Rating and Finance) Act (Northern Ireland), 1929, as amended by any enactment for the time being in force.

"(6) In this section the expression rateable value means the rateable value subject to the provisions of Part 1 of the said Local Government (Rating and Finance) Act, of the hereditaments and tenements rates to the poor rate for the financial year immediately preceding the year in respect of which the contribution is to be paid."

CORPORATION'S CASE

The Government of Northern Ireland supported the validity of its legislation. The Corporation based its challenge on the provisions of Section 21 (1) of the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, which, they said, was a limited competency in the following terms:—"21 (1) The power of the Parliaments of Southern Ireland and Northern Ireland to make laws shall include power to make laws with respect to the imposing, charging, levying and collection of taxes within their respective jurisdictions other than Customs duties. Excise duties on articles manufactured and produced, and excess profits duty, corporation profits tax, and any other tax on profits and—except to the extent hereinafter mentioned—income tax (including super-tax), or any tax substantially the same in character as any of those duties or taxes, and the Governments of Southern Ireland and Northern Ireland shall have full control over the charging, levying, and collection of such taxes as their respective Parliaments have power to impose, and the proceeds of all such taxes shall be paid into the Consolidated Fund of Southern Ireland or Northern Ireland as the case may be. Provided that it shall not be competent for the Parliament or Southern Ireland or the Parliament of Northern Ireland to impose any tax, whether recurrent, non-recurrent, of the nature of a general tax upon capital, not being a tax substantially the same in being a tax substantially the same in

The Corporation, said Lord Thankerton, maintained that a tax was imposed which was substantially the same as income tax, contending that while in form the contributions are paid by the Council of a county or county borough to the Exchequer, and the amount is raised by the Council by a poor rate, the Council has no choice, and is merely the hand by which the central authority draws the money from the pockets of the ratepayers. This, it was urged, made the levy a tax imposed by the central authority. Whether it was a tax, Lord Thankerton said, their lordships had decided that it was not necessary to pronounce. They could even assume that the Council has no choice in the matter, and that it was a tax.

THE INCOME TAX CONTENTION

It remained to consider the second contention of the Corporation—that the tax so imposed by the central authority on the ratepayer was substantially the same in character as income tax. Counsel for the Corporation sought to establish this similarity by comparing in detail the provisions of the Income Tax Act, 1918, under Schedule A, and in particular Schedule B, with the provisions of the Poor Relief (Ireland) Act, 1838, along with the fact that under Section 187 (I.) of the Income Tax Act, 1918, the value of all tenements and rateable hereditaments for the purposes of Schedules A and B was ascertained primarily according to the valuation for poor rate purposes; but, in the opinion of their Lordships, it was the essential character of the particular tax that had to be regarded; and the nature of the machinery, often complicated, by which the tax was to be assessed, was not of assistance, except in so far as it might throw light on the general character of the tax.

NARROWING OF POWERS

Such an examination as counsel for the Corporation invited their Lordships to enter upon would, Lord Thankerton declared, tend to narrow the legislative powers of taxation of the Parliament of Northern Ireland almost to vanishing point, whereas by Section 21 (I.) of the Act of 1920 legislative powers were conferred in general terms, subject only to the specified exceptions.

In the appeal of the London County Council against the Attorney-General in 1901 (reported in Appeal Cases 26 at page 35), Lord MacNaghten, in a familiar passage, had described the character of income tax as follows: "Income tax, if I may be pardoned for saying so, is a tax on anything else. It is one tax, not a collection of taxes, essentially distinct. There is no difference in kind between the duties of income tax assessed under Schedule D and those assessed under Schedule A, or any of the other schedules of the charge. One man has fixed property; another lives by his wits; each contributes to the tax if his income is above the prescribed limit. The standard of assessment varies according to the nature of the source from which taxable income is derived. That is all."

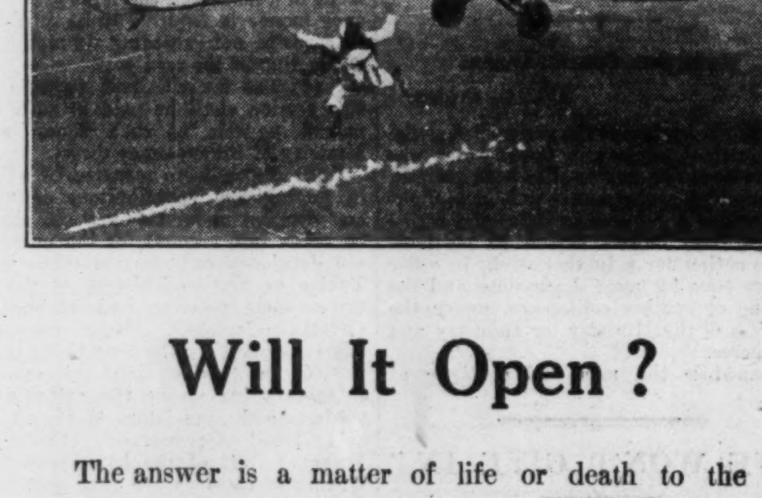

The purpose of the Income Tax Acts, Lord Thankerton continued, was to tax a person's total income from all sources. The method of assessing income derived by ownership or occupation of hereditaments was somewhat arbitrarily based on annual value, and not on actual income; but that did not alter the essential character of income tax—that it was a tax on income generally. The poor rate, on the other hand, was levied in respect of the occupation of hereditaments, irrespective of a person's income generally, and irrespective of whether the ratepayer was, in fact, deriving profits or gains from such occupation.

THE ESSENTIAL DIFFERENCE

Lord Thankerton concluded:—A dwellinghouse is a burden, not a source of profit, for the occupier who pays rent for it. He is rated on the value of the burden, while he remains unrated in respect of his whole profits, be they from business or investments. In their lordships' opinion, this marks the essential difference in character between income tax and rates, and it is unnecessary to consider other, and less important, differences between them.

Finally, Lord Thankerton said their lordships were of opinion, even assuming that, under Section 3 of the Finance Act of 1934, a tax was imposed on the ratepayers by the central authority, that such tax was not substantially the same in character as income tax, and that the provisions of Section 3 were within the powers of the Parliament of Northern Ireland.

The Judicial Committee's decision probably will mean that the Belfast Corporation will be compelled to increase the coming rate by 1s. 6d. in the £.

THE THREAT OF WAR

NORTHERN IRELAND'S OFFER

TO MANUFACTURE ARMAMENTS

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Friday.

Lord Craigavon, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, addressing Down Unionists in Belfast to-day, said: "I have been in close touch with the authorities at Westminster with regard to how, if the European situation comes to the worst, Ulster can help Great Britain and assist in preparations for defence. I have explained to them that Ulster is ready to shoulder her responsibility, to assist in every possible way, and to place at their disposal all our facilities.

"We are in a position to take part in the manufacture of whatever weapons, munitions, ships or aeroplanes are needed. It may be some countries are bluffing, but it will never do for Great Britain to be in a position that the bluff cannot be called."

THE EXPENSE

There were many who said that the cost of battleships, aeroplanes and munitions of war that were not needed in the end was a pure waste of money, but so long as there were warships to be built, so long as firms were manufacturing aeroplanes, all that was a redistribution of money throughout the United Kingdom, and, therefore, he did not think they should take such a serious view of the expense. There was no loyalist in the whole Ulster area who would not say to England as he had said: "Carry on with what is necessary, and do not forget that in Ulster we are prepared at all times—reversing an old Irish saying—to say in all sincerity 'England's difficulty is Ulster's opportunity,' and we will help and do everything we can to uphold your arms."

ROYAL ULSTER SOCIETY

"THINK IRELAND MEANS SOUTHERN IRELAND"

The Right Hon. J Milne Barbour, D.L., M.P., presiding at the annual meeting of the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society in Belfast to-day, said that their membership roll at December 31 last totalled upwards of 4,700, and they hoped that during the present year this would be brought up to 5,000. The shows held in 1935 were particularly successful, the total entries reaching a very high figure, and the quality and variety of these exhibits were better than at any previous show.

On the motion of Mr. James Pimlott, O.B.E., seconded by Lieut.-Colonel F. H. Crawford, C.B.E., the Right Hon. J. Milne Barbour was re-elected president of the Society for the ensuing year, and the following were re-elected vice-presidents to fill vacancies caused by retirement in rotation: Senator J. Hill Dickson, J.P.; the Right Hon. Lord Dunleath, C.B.E., D.S.O.; Sir Samuel Kelly, C.B.E., D.L., and the Right Hon. H. M. Pollock, D.L., M.P.

Mr. Barbour expressed his appreciation for the honour that had been conferred upon him. If a man really wanted to render important and valuable service to his country, he said, he could find less worthy ways of doing it than by helping a society such as theirs. Some people thought that nothing good could come out of the Free State, but his wish was that a lot of good should come out of it. He said that the Dublin Horse Show attracted people from various parts of the world. He travelled abroad a bit, and what mortified him was that when people spoke of being in Ireland it invariably meant that they had been in Southern Ireland. He should like to see that changed, and that their first port would be Northern Ireland.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

THE WASTE OF EMPLOYMENT

The Times, in concluding a leading article to-day, says:—There is a theory of the over-riding duty of the State to right all wrong things in the body politic which tends to suppress spontaneous effort, individual or by groups, to relieve the gloomy sameness of idleness, and to quicken thought and feeling and promote beneficial activities. But a more potent cause of diffidence and inability may be traced to the upbringing, the limited education, and the industrial environment of men who, having had experience of mass employment and mass organisation in unions and mass employment, have political conceptions that take the form of mass action. They have not been trained in individuality, and their subordination to the discipline of the big undertaking has helped to produce a disablement for initiating even little things in the way of mutual helpfulness without external guidance and leadership. The mentality of the distressed areas is to no small extent the consequence of a mechanical system which other agencies have failed to correct.

Discontent is not always and altogether unhealthy. It is to areas and people depressed and weakened by unemployment that social service goes with a Ministry of Assistance and the encouragement of self-help. Men need to have use and purpose restored to their lives, and youths need to be saved from the fate that overtook their fathers. The Commissioner for the areas, who is an active and official helper of social service work, has warmly commended also the help which people at a distance can render in another way. He has instanced the scheme in the Nork parish of Surrey for drawing a man or two from the distressed areas to permanent employment of the handyman type, which is provided co-operatively. Parishioners subscribe on a basis of a shilling a week, and receive in return four hours' work a month. There are so many odd jobs going in so many places that schemes of this sort, with simple, but adequate, organisation, should be possible in a great many parishes. In such ways the problem of the areas, which is so terrible in the bulk, may be split up a bit and eased.

The problem in the bulk requires employment in the localities for its cure. Palliatives must be applied meanwhile, but palliatives will only mitigate and not remove the distress of mass unemployment.

BRITAIN A "TREATY BREAKER"

SENATOR BORAH'S DENUNCIATION

From Reuter's Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

Britain was roundly denounced as a treaty violater in the American Senate to-day by Senator Borah, the veteran stormy petrel of American politics, who is one of the many aspirants to the Republican Party nomination as Presidential candidate in the forthcoming elections.

Mounting one of his favourite hobby-horses, the Senator from Utah declared that Britain was as bad as Germany and Italy in the matter of repudiating international agreements, because she had not paid her debt to the United States.

There is no difference in law or morals, thundered Mr. Borah, at the top of his voice, between the actions of Germany or Italy and the repudiation of the War debt. Indeed, this is infinitely more open to criticism than Germany's disregard of the Treaty of Versailles, for the latter was signed under duress at the point of the bayonet.

The new corps will be stationed particularly along the Maginot Line. A network of Foot Guards has also been posted along this defence line.

WINNERS IN DUBLIN, CLONMEL AND CORK

Mr. William Mullen, the Dun Laoghaire garage proprietor, who has won £30,000 through having drawn Reynoldstown for the Grand National yesterday, has had a remarkable run of luck with this horse. Some time before last year's race he drove Major Furlong, the owner of Reynoldstown, and, on the Major's recommendation, backed the horse with a substantial sum and won. To his delight, his sweepstake ticket this year drew Reynoldstown for the Grand National. Before the race he mentioned to a friend that he might sell a half share, as he did not think the horse could win a second time, but, since Mr. Mullen is out of Dublin, it is impossible to ascertain whether he did so.

Two young Wexford men, Martin J. Kane and Michael Kane, living together at 76 Old Cabra road, Dublin, also have won £30,000. Several months ago Michael, who is an electrician, bought a greyhound pup and sent it to his sister in County Wexford to be trained. On the morning that the dog killed its first hare she sent a hare's foot to the owner as a trophy. That day the two brothers bought a sweepstake ticket and decided to adopt the nom-de-plume "Hare's Foot." On Tuesday last their ticket drew Reynoldstown.

When an Irish Times reporter visited their home yesterday afternoon there was no one in the house, and the morning's milk was still on the door-step. The reporter afterwards learned that Martin Kane, who is a Dublin tram-driver on the Rialto route, had obtained leave and gone to watch the race. Neighbours said that they had not seen Michael Kane during the day, and it is probable that he also may have gone to see the race.

CLONMEL

A widowed mother and her three daughters in Clonmel will be £5,400 the richer by reason of the fact that Ego came in second in the Grand National, for with seven others they own a sweepstake ticket which drew the horse entitling holders to a total prize of £15,000. The ticket, which bore the nom-de-plume, "Gee Up, Horsy," is one of a book purchased by the following syndicate: Mrs. Mary Somers, Sarsfield street, Clonmel, and her three daughters; Mrs. Byrne, and the Misses Delia and Patricia Somers, Horace Hallick, Albert Adams, and William Bangley. All employés in a local boot factory, William Henry Hardy, manager of Nelson street boot factory; Mrs. Elsie Hardy, his wife; and two brothers named Greene, who reside in England. During the week the syndicate received an offer to sell the ticket or part of it, but they decided to retain it.

Mrs. Somers is employed in the drapery shop of Messrs. Mulcahy, O'Connell street, Clonmel; she is a native of Co. Louth, and she and her two daughters are popular members of the choir of the Franciscan church. In the course of an interview yesterday afternoon in Messrs. Mulcahy's premises, where she was working as usual, Mrs. Somers was asked whether she proposed to leave her present employment. "Not at all," she answered, "here I am, and here I'll say, at least for the present."

It is understood that a brother of the Greenes, who is employed in the Clonmel boot factory, bought the shares in the book of tickets which included the winning one, and gave them to his friends as a present.

Mr. Heaphy, of Union quay, Cork, gets a prize of £750 as seller of the ticket which won a second prize for Mr. J. O'Donovan, of Maul Brack, Enniskean, County Cork, whose nom-de-plume was "The West Awake."

Interviewed yesterday, Mr R. J. Davies, 2 Windsor Villas, Highfield avenue, Cork, who, in association with eleven others, holds a Bachelor's Prince ticket worth £10,000, said the twelve holders had retained the full ticket as the contributions of all in purchasing the tickets were not equal, it had been agreed to place the distribution of the money in the hands of a solicitor. The same group of twelve—only two of whom reside in Ireland—have held tickets in the last six sweepstakes.

SUMMER SUNDAYS IN HOWTH

"A GRAVE PUBLIC SCANDAL"

LOCAL VINTNERS NOT TO BLAME

At a meeting of the Committee of the Licensed Grocers' and Vintners' Protection Association in Dublin, at which Mr. C. E. Reddin presided, the Secretary read a report from the solicitor on the recent Howth licensing applications for altered hours on Sundays, which were refused by the Justice.

Mr. Cassidy, Howth, said that he and the other Howth traders were amazed at the conditions which were described by the Justice as having taken place in Howth during last summer. He was convinced that this state of things was not attributable to the Howth traders, and that there were, he believed, other possible causes and sources to which the conditions to which the Justice referred might be rightly attributed.

PRIVILEGES ENDANGERED

The Chairman said he was satisfied, from the remarks of the District Justice, that conditions had existed in Howth last summer which constituted a grave public scandal. District Justice Reddin's remarks at Lucan, that the Howth vintners were in no way to blame, added considerable force to the suggestion of Mr. Cassidy, that there were other possible sources and causes of this highly undesirable state of affairs. He wished it to be known that the authorities could depend on the fullest co-operation from his Association in tracing and removing such sources and causes.

He added that he was only expressing the mind of every member of the Association when he said that the individuals responsible and the sources which pandered to them deserved the application of the full rigour of the law against them. Such people obviously had no regard for the privileges of the bona-fide traveller, which were being seriously endangered as a result of their conduct. He believed that the police authorities, in using every means at their command to trace and suppress the cause or causes of such abuses, could depend upon the goodwill of the overwhelming majority of patrons of vintners' premises in this popular resort.

PASTEURISED BEER

The Chairman announced that some important items which had delayed the holding of the adjourned National Council meeting, such as the negotiations with the brewers regarding pasteurised beer, and other matters, had now reached such a stage of adjustment that the meeting might possibly be held early next month.

ASSIGNMENT OF TRADE MARKS

QUESTION RAISED AT COMMISSION

TO BE CONSIDERED AGAIN NEXT WEEK

The effect of the assignment of trade marks from one firm to another was discussed at a sitting of the Patents and Trade Marks Commission, which was held at 45 Merrion square, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. James Geoghegan, K.C., T.D., presiding.

A CARTON OF CREAM

When Mr. A. B. Tomkins, patent agent, Merrion square, Dublin, was being examined, Mr. P. L. McAvoy, a member of the Commission, handed him a carton containing a tube of Nivean cream, and asked him where it had been made. The witness replied that it was made in England.

Mr. McAvoy—That product actually was manufactured in the Free State.

Chairman—Do you say that that particular parcel was manufactured in the Free State?

Mr. McAvoy—Yes, and there is nothing on the carton or the tube itself to show that it was manufactured in the Free State.

Chairman—There is a statement on the carton: "Made in England."

Mr. McAvoy said that he thought that matter could come in under the Merchandise Marks Act, but it also, he thought, came under the matter they were dealing with.

The Chairman said that Mr. McAvoy appeared to have touched on a very important matter, indeed.

ANOTHER CARTON

Mr. McAvoy then handed the witness another carton, which contained a tube stated to contain Gibb's toothpaste. He asked Mr. Tomkins if it had been manufactured in the Free State. The witness examined the tube, and said that there was printed on it the words: "Gibbs, Ltd., London." He thought, therefore, that it was made in England.

Mr. McAvoy then handed the witness the carton which had contained the tube. The witness having examined it, said that there was a pasted-on label at the end of the carton which stated that it had been made in the Free State.

Mr. McAvoy said that the words did not specify whether the article itself had been made in the Free State, or whether only the carton was made here. Gibbs's had not a factory in the Free State. The trade mark that had been given to Gibbs's had not been assigned to an Irish firm, and the firm still manufactured in England.

Mr. McAvoy said that Mr. Tomkins had advocated the abolition of Section 99 of the Trade Marks Act, which, he said, transferred trade marks without transferring the goodwill. Section 99, therefore, provided that nobody in the Free State would have any right to manufacture Gibbs's products.

QUESTION OF GOODWILL

Mr. J. Walker, L.D.S., R.C.S.I., said that he knew of a case where a retailer in this country who had been importing a certain article from England with a trade mark, say "A B," went to a Free State manufacturer and said that he wanted him to manufacture the article under the same trade mark. The manufacturer said that if he got the permission of the supplier he would do so. He got permission; no money passed between the two manufacturers to his (speaker's) knowledge. The question was that there certainly was goodwill on the article with the "A" trade mark. It could not be guaranteed that the article made in the Free State was as good as the original one. The question was were the public being deceived.

The Commission adjourned until next Friday, the Chairman stating that this matter, which was very important, would be considered fully at the next sitting.

The other members of the Commission present were:—Mr. E. A. Cleary, barrister-at-law; Mr. E. W. Proud, solicitor; Professor T. J. Nolan and Mr. P. J. McKenna (secretary).

OBITUARY

THE REV. JOHN E. NEILL

The death, in his sixty-second year, occurred at his residence, 19 Belmont Gardens, Dublin, early yesterday of the Rev. John E. Neill, B.A., an outstanding minister of the Methodist Church in Ireland. A native of Lisburn, County Antrim, Mr. Neill was educated at Lisburn and at the Queen's College, Belfast. After the usual course of training he entered the ministry of the Methodist Church in 1899. For three years he was the President's assistant at the Methodist College, Belfast, and for a further three years junior minister of the Cork Circuit. In 1905 he offered for work in India, and was appointed to Madras, where he spent twenty-one strenuous years. In 1926, largely for health reasons, he returned to the work in Ireland, and was again appointed to Cork. In 1930 he was appointed to the Centenary Church, Dublin, completing his five years' term of service there in June last. In India he was Principal for many years of Wesley College, Madras, and was a member of the Senate and a Fellow of the University of Madras. Since his return to Ireland he has been Chairman of the Cork and the Dublin Districts, and treasurer of the Overseas Missionary Society of the Church.

Mr. Neill was a man of rare gifts. Owing to the condition of his health he obtained permission to retire for a year from the active work of the Ministry, hoping to be able to take up work again after a year's rest and treatment. His retirement, followed now by his death, is a severe loss to the Church of which he was so distinguished a minister. He married Miss Mary H. Lowe, a daughter of Mr. Alfred Lowe, of Belfast, and had one son and one daughter.

A Service will be held in the Methodist Centenary Church, St. Stephen's Green, this morning, at 11.15, after which the funeral will take place to Dean's Grange Cemetery.

"THE CHURCH OF IRELAND GAZETTE"

This week's Church of Ireland Gazette, in an article, "Idiom and Interpretation," deals with the text, "Before Abraham was I am." "Quietness and Confidence" discusses the abiding fact of sin. Precentor Lewis Crosby writes on "Ireland and World Problems." "The Queen Mary" is an article of topical interest. The children's corner is an attractive page for the young. Diocesan news, literature and conversation conclude a good number.

Saunders, F.R.Z.S., F.R.P.S., the animal photographer, to a meeting of the Dublin Branch of the Photographic Dealers' Association, Mr. G. A. M'Lean Lee presiding. Up to date, he said, he had visited the London Zoo over 5,000 times, and he had seen there more photographers and snapshotters to the acre than anywhere else in the world. In England and Ireland there were over three million people using cameras in the summer, and it was up to the photographic dealers to see that these amateurs took a more serious interest in the business of photography. A cordial vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Saunders for his interesting lecture on the motion of Mr. Henry, Photographic Society of Ireland, seconded by Mr. John Smith, M.P.S.I.

TRAMWAYS COMPANY SHIFT WORKERS

A satisfactory adjustment of questions affecting shift-working in the service of the Dublin United Tramways Company was made at a conference between the management and representatives of the Amalgamated Transport and General Workers' Union and the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union yesterday.

On Thursday next a conference will be held to consider the position of the redundant permanent-way men who were laid off by the company some time ago. These men are likely to be re-instated at an early date.

From Our Correspondent.

LIMERICK, Friday.

Messrs. Rank (Ireland), Ltd., the proprietors of the Newtownferry Flour Mills, have given a week's notice to their employés of the suspension of business owing to an accumulation of stocks. The notice will become operative on next Wednesday evening, and it is stated that about eighty employés will be affected. It is not known how long the mill will remain closed, but it is thought that the period will be short.

RUNNING-DOWN CASES

MANY ACTIONS SETTLED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

Consents to settlement were received and made rules of court in a number of running down actions.

In an action of Miss Bridie Halpin, of Irishtown, Clonmel, against Michael Hogan, of Cecil street, Limerick, the plaintiff claimed damages for injuries caused to her as the result of a collision between the defendant's motor car and a car in which she was a passenger, at Tullabeg, Co. Limerick, on 28th July of last year.

The consent provided for the payment of £1,250 damages and £50 costs to the plaintiff.

Mr. J. L. Esmonde (instructed by Mr. Henry Shannon) appeared for the plaintiff.

In an action of Mrs. Josephine Carroll and her husband, Philip Carroll, of Parnell street, Clonmel, against the same defendant, Mrs. Carroll claimed damages for injuries arising from the same accident, and Mr. Carroll, damages for the loss of the assistance of his wife in the carrying on of his business, and for expenses.

The consent provided for the payment of £900 to Mrs. Carroll and £150 to Philip Carroll, and £50 for costs jointly.

Mr. Esmonde (instructed by Mr. Henry Shannon) appeared for the plaintiffs.

The consent in an action of Philip Cummins, of Ballytohill, Nine Mile House, against Henry George de la Poer, of Warren-Perry, Mentone, Kinsale, provided for the payment of £750 to the plaintiff, and £20 for medical expenses, and £26 5s. for costs.

The action was for damages for personal injuries caused to the plaintiff when a motor car with a trailer attached, the property of the defendant, collided with a horse and cart, driven by the plaintiff, at Carringibbon, near South Lodge, Carrick-on-Suir, on 26th of last September.

Mr. Esmonde (instructed by Mr. Henry Shannon) appeared for the plaintiff, and Messrs. Hoey and Denning were solicitors for the defendant.

The payment of £675 and £75 costs to the plaintiff was provided for in an action of Mrs. Mary Kate Dowd, of Leitrim road, Carrick-on-Shannon, against John McManus, of Drumsna, Co. Leitrim.

The plaintiff claimed damages for the loss of her husband, whose death, she stated, was caused through his having been knocked down by the defendant's motor car at Kiltycarney, Carrick-on-Shannon, on 24th of last November.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne apportioned £325 of the money to the plaintiff and £350 to her child.

Mr. Farrell (instructed by Mr. Leonard E. M. Downes) appeared for the plaintiff.

A CAVAN ESTATE

DEAD MAN'S COUSINS AT LAW

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN.)

In the matter of the estate of Patrick Carroll, late of Crochan, Virginia, Co. Cavan, an application was made by Mr. FitzSimon (instructed by Mr. J. C. McKenna) on behalf of Joseph Wright, Garryross, Virginia, a first cousin of Patrick Carroll, for a grant of letters of administration to the personal estate and effects of Mr. Carroll, who died a bachelor and intestate on the 16th February last.

Mr. F. M. Duffy (instructed by Mr. E. J. Duffy) made a similar application on behalf of Kate Brady, Agacashel, Co. Cavan, another first cousin of the late Mr. Carroll.

Mr. FitzSimon read an affidavit of his client, which stated that Patrick Carroll's farm had been valued for the purpose of probate at £150 and some stock on the land had been sold for £79. In addition there was £376 on deposit receipt in the Northern Bank. Mr. Carroll was also entitled to the entire estate of his sister, Mary Reilly, Virginia, a widow, under whose will he was the universal legatee. Probate was granted to him on the 14th February last, two days before his death. Mary Reilly's assets were her farm, valued for the purposes of probate at £150, and £185 on deposit receipt in the National Bank.

The affidavit added that the applicant had lived next door to Mr. Carroll, and had assisted him in working the farm. The applicant was 56 years old, and the youngest of the four next-of-kin of Mr. Carroll. Mrs. Kate Brady, the other applicant, was a widow and an old age pensioner.

Mr. FitzSimon read an affidavit of Mrs. Brady, in the course of which she said that Thomas Glennon and Margaret Anderson, the remaining next-of-kin, desired that letters of administration, intestate, of Mr. Carroll's estate should be granted to her. She owned a farm of approximately 20 Irish acres, on which she resided with her son, Joseph Brady, who was a Peace Commissioner, and the farm was well provided with the usual farming stock. She had a substantial sum on deposit with her bankers, and Thomas Glennon, who supported her application, was a substantial farmer at Oldcastle, Co. Meath. Joseph Wright was, to her own personal knowledge, in poor financial circumstances.

Mr. Justice Sullivan asked how it was that if the applicant was in such affluent circumstances she was described in Joseph Wright's affidavit as an old age pensioner.

Mr. FitzSimon said that the affidavit did not give any further information on this point.

Mr. Duffy pressed for liberty to be given to his client to take out letters of administration, and said that she was entitled to it because she had the support of a majority of the next-of-kin.

Mr. Justice Sullivan gave liberty to Kate Brady to take out letters of administration, and allowed both parties their costs.

CIRCUIT (CRIMINAL) COURT

COMPANY FRAUDS

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

Arthur B. Hargreaves, with an address in Southport, Lancashire, who had been found guilty of the fraudulent conversion of the sum of £250 entrusted to him by Mr. Cyril B. Marshall, of Glenageary, for investment in a waterproof manufacture company, was put forward for sentence.

Mr. Oliver Moriarty (instructed by Mr. L. Trant McCarthy), who appeared for Hargreaves, said that his client had now been in prison for ten weeks, and he appealed for leniency.

Judge Davitt said that he could not impose a sentence of less than nine calendar months from 17th January last, because he could not permit frauds in small companies of this kind.

STOLE A SAFE

Charles Ross and George Skinner, of Sandycove road, Co. Dublin, who had been found guilty of the larceny of a safe, belonging to Mr. Martin, of Brookfield road, Monkstown, and other charges of stealing motor cars and breaking and entering houses, were put forward for sentence. Ross was sent to prison for eight months, with hard labour, and Skinner to six months, with hard labour.

Patrick O'Donnell, Alma road, Monkstown, and Herbert Bennett, Northcote place, Dun Laoghaire, who had been charged and found guilty with Ross and Skinner, were sentenced to six months' imprisonment each, not to be enforced on their entering into bail.

Mr. L. Trant McCarthy, solicitor, appeared for O'Donnell and Bennett, and Mr. J. J. O'Connor, solicitor, appeared for Ross and Skinner.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

LORRIES IN COLLISION

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

Bernard Duffy, pig-dealer, Moorland, Dundalk, sued Commandant J. G. O'Dwyer, Free State Army Reserve, to recover £100 for injury to his lorry in a collision with the defendant's lorry at Julianstown, County Meath, on the 26th of August, 1935.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday to have evidence as to the damage caused to both vehicles.

Subsequently, Mr. R. McGonigal (for plaintiff) informed the Judge that the parties had arrived at a settlement, whereby the plaintiff would be paid £70 damages, £20 costs, and nine guineas expenses.

Mr. R. McGonigal (instructed by Messrs. McMahon, Russell and Co., Dundalk) appeared for the plaintiff.

Mr. D. Fawsitt (instructed by Messrs. Little, O hUadhaigh and Proud) appeared for the defendant.

AN INJURED CABLE

The Dublin Tramways Co. sued Messrs. Thomas Maxwell and Sons, contractors, 125 South Circular road, Islandbridge, for £21 18s. 7d., the cost of repairing an underground electric cable the property of the plaintiffs, at Booterstown, County Dublin, which was injured by the defendants' workmen, who were repairing and resurfacing the road under which the cable ran.

Mr. Henry Watts, cable-joiner in the company's service, stated that he had warned the men's foreman to be careful not to injure the cable, which was eighteen inches beneath the road. Three repairs became necessary.

The defendants denied negligence and pleaded that the plaintiffs' alleged cause of action was barred by the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893.

The hearing of the case has not concluded.

Mr. J. Murnane (instructed by Mr. G. Byrne) appeared for the company.

Mr. A. Corbett (instructed by Mr. Joseph Gleeson) appeared for the defendants.

Jail for Housebreaking.—At Dublin Circuit (Criminal) Court yesterday, John O'Brien (17), Chambers street, Dublin, who had pleaded guilty to a number of charges of housebreaking and larceny in the Terenure and Crumlin districts, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

WHAT CAUSES BALDNESS

The primary cause of baldness is a disordered condition of the glands which nourish the roots of the hair. The scalp becomes clogged, dandruff forms, and the hair grows brittle and breaks or falls out entirely. Ordinary so-called cures only cleanse the scalp surface, and do nothing to remove the real cause of the trouble—the ill-health of the glands. That is why VITA-KRIN is different, and better. It is based on a new principle and rapidly restores these glands to a healthy condition, keeps the scalp clean and supple. New hair grows quite naturally. For dandruff and scurf, amazingly quick results are obtained with VITA-KRIN. Sold by chemists everywhere.

VOTE FOR LOUSTIC

Faites Vos Jeux May Win Earl of Sefton's Plate

LIVERPOOL'S important meeting winds up with a most interesting programme made up of three events under Jockey Club rules and three jumping races. The chief attraction is the Liverpool hurdle, the most valuable event of its kind. Victor Norman, who stamped himself as a champion performer over the minor obstacles when he won at Cheltenham, has been sent to carry top weight of 12st. 7lb., and if he can defy such a burden in this high-class company he will have to be regarded as one of the best hurdlers of all time. My opinion is that he will make a bold bid, and I expect to see him right in the fighting at the last hurdles, but he may not quite last out the two miles and one furlong in heavy going.

Armour Bright, who is in the same stable as Victor Norman, does not appeal, for he ran badly in the Champion Hurdle Cup at Cheltenham. Beriberi is a big tip, for he has had a special preparation and could not be fitter. His chief claim to consideration is that he is a thorough stayer. He was giving weight to Greek Pie and Mallin when a good third to them over the testing three miles course at Gatwick. Ingham, probably the best hurdle race jockey, will be in the saddle.

Sans Pride is heavily weighted for a four-year-old, and he will have to improve a lot on anything he has so far accomplished if he is to win this. I have a good account of Red Hillman, though at the weights I prefer Brilliant Jack, who will be better suited by this course and distance than when seventh in the Imperial Cup.

Shelly's Lane has been unplaced in his last four races, which suggests that he has trained off a little. Moreover, there is some doubt about his getting the distance. Loustic won recently at Naas when shouldering 12st. 7lb., and, with 29lb. less here, he is likely to give them all something to do. He won over this distance at the November meeting from Prominent Lad and Czarowitz. I sum up in favour of Beriberi and and the latter each way may be the best proposition.

The Liverpool Foxhunters' Cup is run over the Grand National course of four miles and 856 yards. The most fancied candidates are The White King, Brown Brother, Grasshopper II., El Domador and Don Bradman.

BROWN BROTHER

is a sound stayer and a reliable jumper, and, as that is what is needed for a race of this sort, I expect to see him win at the main expense of Grasshopper II., who finished third last year.

A few Grand National failures may be pulled out again for the Champion Steeplechase. I prefer to rely on the fresh the "National" hero of a few years ago. The conditions favour him, and he has not deteriorated.

The Earl of Sefton's Handicap is the principal flat race. Here I like a stable companion of the Spring Cup winner, Guinea Gap. He is extremely useful over this distance—one mile— and is handicapped to beat Pepino on his best form.

SATANIC,

an unlucky loser at Lincoln, may make amends by winning the Maghull Plate.

THE RACE.

There was a perfect start. Golden Miller, Lazy Boots, Castle View, Œil de Boeuf, and The Boy In Blue fell at the first fence. Davy Jones took the jump first, followed by D'Eyncourt, Kiltoi Delaneige, Buckthorn, and Bachelor Prince. Brienz fell at the third fence. Golden Miller was remounted, and went on, but was pulled up at the fence after Valentine's.

Davy Jones was in front of Double Crossed, Emancipator, Kiltoi, Avenger, and Ego going to Becher's the first time. Royal Ransom came down on the Canal turn. Blue Prince, D'Eyncourt, and Zag fell at Valentine's, and Rod and Gun at the next open ditch. Davy Jones was followed by Double Crossed, Reynoldstown, Blue Prince, Kiltoi, Keen Blade, Avenger, Emancipator, Ego, and Bachelor Prince as they came on to the racecourse. The order passing the stands after completing one circuit of the course was Davy Jones, Inversible, Double Crossed, Avenger, Emancipator, Reynoldstown, Keen Blade, Persian Sun, Bachelor Prince, Kiltoi, Ego, Lynton, Provocative, Comedian, Moorland View, Castle Irwell, Crown Prince, and Penceraik. They were the only horses left in the race.

Avenger fell at the fence after the water, breaking his neck. Lynton refused shortly after. Davy Jones and Reynoldstown were racing together twenty lengths clear of Double Crossed, Ego, and Keen Blade when reaching Becher's Brook. The order was the same at the Canal turn fence. Reynoldstown was interfered with and caused to blunder at the last fence before reaching the racecourse, which allowed Davy Jones to take a lead of several lengths from him.

As they came on to the racecourse Davy Jones led from Reynoldstown, who was twenty lengths clear of Ego. They were followed by Bachelor Prince, Crown Prince, Emancipator, Inversible, Provocative, Keen Blade, and Castle Irwell. Emancipator, Keen Blade, and Comedian fell three fences from home. Davy Jones went to the last fence about two lengths in front of Reynoldstown, but ran out, the reason being that his reins had broken at the previous jump. Reynoldstown was then left clear of Ego and Bachelor Prince, and won by twelve lengths; six lengths separated second and third. Crown Prince was fourth, Inversible fifth, Provocative sixth, Castle Irwell seventh, Double Crossed eighth, Moorland View ninth, Comedian, who was remounted, was the only other to complete the course.

WAS REYNOLDSTOWN LUCKY?

Davy Jones's Jockey Left Without a Reins when in Front at Last Fence

THE STORY OF THE GRAND NATIONAL

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LIVERPOOL, Friday Night.

STEEPLECHASING history was made this afternoon, when Major Noel Furlong's Reynoldstown won the Grand National for the second year in succession, and showed himself the great horse his owner believed him to be. He won to-day by twelve lengths, and six lengths from Ego and Bachelor Prince, with Crown Prince fourth, and there were such scenes of enthusiasm as are rarely seen even following the Grand National.

But the story of Reynoldstown is not the whole story of a race that supplied almost unparalleled incidents. Indeed, I have never known quite so many thrills affecting the important horses in the race. First of all it was Golden Miller—it is always Golden Miller. First, strange to say, he was not favourite, being displaced by Avenger. Then he did the worst thing, he fell at the first fence.

His jockey had started from near the outside. The horse rose at the fence and was on the floor in a second. I believe it was not his fault, and that he was baulked in trying to land by Œil de Bœuf, who was one of five to fall there, another being that usually very safe jumper, Lazy Boots.

Evan Williams then did a thing I cannot remember having ever seen done in the Grand National. He remounted and went on a long way behind—more than a fence, in fact. In these difficult circumstances Golden Miller jumped ten fences and was then baulked by some fallen horse in the Open Ditch before coming on to the racecourse. He came back at the tail of the field of the horses finishing.

Avenger's Fatal Fall

Avenger, after making a perfect circuit of the course, was lying up third passing the stands, and then fell at the same fence as Golden Miller going into the country again and broke his neck, ending a career that had been full of promise as well as performance.

But this is not all the story. There is one of dire tragedy to follow—the story of a horse and his young amateur rider, who were robbed of the glittering prize when it seemed within their grasp.

Davy Jones is a seven-year-old tubed and entire horse, by Pharos, whom Mr. Tom Rayson bought out of Basil Jarvis's stable to go plating with. When he was put over a country he showed some form, and his owner put him in the Grand National, mainly, I think, with an idea of finding a likely buyer.

It happened that Lord Mildmay of Flete, once a well-known politician and polo player, wanted a horse for his son, the Hon. Anthony Mildmay—who was not deterred by having been nearly killed in the Foxhunters' last year when Irish Flight fell with him—and he bought Davy Jones. No one paid the slightest attention to his chance when he set off in front. Nor did they pay much when he led the field past the stands the first time round, but they paid a lot when he came on to the racecourse again, leading Reynoldstown, the pair being well clear of Keen Blade, who was a very long way in front of the next horse.

Davy Jones Runs Out

At the second-last fence Davy Jones was still leading Reynoldstown and going just as well; for Major Furlong's horse had made a mistake at the last ditch which had taken some steam out of him. They came to the last with Davy Jones still in command of the situation. The horse reached for the fence. His jockey, as a good man should, slipped his reins; the buckle snapped, and he was left high and dry on the horse without any reins. Davy Jones continued, and then, when he saw the last fence, he ran out of the course.

It was the most awful experience that could have fallen to any man. Mr. Mildmay did not go immediately and throw himself into the canal. Weaker men would have.

I will only say that a splendid horse won the race, and that Davy Jones was very unlucky. Keen Blade would assuredly have been placed had he not parted with his jockey three fences from home. He was then at least twenty lengths in front of Ego. Bachelor Prince made a bad mistake at the last open ditch. This is the second year Mr. Rank's plodding horse has finished the course.

A Perfect Day

It was a perfect day for a Grand National, with sunshine and the best light ever, a light in which one could not miss anything. Brienz went early, and Royal Ransom and Delaneige at the canal turn. Buckthorn, running strongly and lying fifth, was interfered with by a loose horse as he was rising at the fence after Valentines, and was left on top of it.

No fewer than seventeen passed the stands first time, the leaders being: Davy Jones, Inversible, Avenger, Emancipator, Reynoldstown, and Keen Blade. Mr. Walwyn had then lost his whip on Reynoldstown. It was at Beechers that Reynoldstown had moved up, and he was second to Davy Jones as they came to Valentines, in front of Double Crossed and Keen Blade.

The rest of the story I have already told, except that those that completed the course behind the third were Crown Prince, Inversible, Provocative (ran best of Jack Anthony's four), Castle Irwell and Double Crossed. Moorland View being last of all.

The Winner's Record

The story of how Major Furlong bought his great son of My Prince from his breeder, Mr. Richard Ball, of Reynoldstown, County Dublin, and how he has gradually attained his present eminence has been told already. He is the third horse to win the Grand National two years running Abd el Kader and The Colonel being the other two; and the sixth in all to win it twice at Liverpool, the others, whose wins had a broken period between, being Peter Simple, The Lamb and Manifesto. Poethlyn won a "war" Grand National at Gatwick in 1918 and was successful the following year at Aintree.

Those immensely popular people, Major and Mrs. Furlong, and their son, Mr. Frank Furlong, who won on Reynoldstown last year and had to give up riding because he grew too heavy, came in for terrific congratulations, and I have never seen a more popular victory in the Grand National.

Mr. Walwyn was delighted with the great ride the horse had given him. Amateur riding rose high to-day, for Mr. Llewellyn was on his father's horse, Ego, and Mr. Strutt was fourth on his own horse, Crown Prince, like Ego, a winner of the National Hunt 'Chase. There was, so far as I have heard, no serious accident to horse or man in the race except in the case of Avenger.

Some Close Finishes

We had some fine finishes during the afternoon, for in the Knowsley Stakes Probus II. only beat Squadron Castle by a short-head after a desperate finish between E. Smith and Gordon Richards.

Lady Houston's Mistress of Arts, from the Over Coat stable, won the first race, the Bridgman Plate, by a neck only, from Fineweed, who came late after being muddled at the turn, and Tonyx. It was by a head only that Montesano beat a better favourite, Young England, in the Bickerstaffe Plate.

Windolite won the Hylton Plate easily, but not so easily as the Knight of the Garter filly, Red Garter, won the West Derby Stakes. Mr. W. J. Kelly could not fancy his big and good-looking filly, because she was amiss just before the race; but after Diosma had looked like winning, and then Silver Wings headed her, Joe Canty on Red Garter fairly whizzed past them and won by three lengths from Mrs. Derek Fitzgerald's colt.

Selections

Saturday at Liverpool gives the best in its jumping events. I fancy the Champion hurdler, VICTOR NORMAN, to win the Liverpool Hurdle, but there must be danger from Loustic, who won so well here in November.

Probably some of the wreckage of the Grand National will be salvaged for the Champion Steeplechase, but whether they are or not none of them should beat KELLSBORO' JACK, for whom the going, unless there is rain to-night, will be just right.

I take DON BRADMAN, so unlucky at Cheltenham when he took the wrong course, to win the Foxhunters.

SATANIC, who did well at Lincoln, should win the last race of the meeting, the Maghull Plate.

GALTEE MORE.

BIG FIELDS AT NAAS

Knight Commander Fancied for Kildare Steeplechase

Train—Kingsbridge, 2 p.m.

THERE will be the usual big fields at Naas to-day, when another very interesting race for the maiden steeplechase is likely to prove the chief attraction. Custome House, Peaceful Princess and Knight Commander, who finished second, third and fourth to Cherry Pip in a similar class of race at the last meeting, are all declared runners for the Kildare Steeplechase. Only heads divided them the last time, and there should be little between them now, while such as Clatterbox and Allenbury must also come into the reckoning. Knight Commander led for most of the way when the three last met, and as he should have benefited by the experience then gained he may be the best to stand on now. Selections:—

Tote Double on Third and Fifth Races.

Eadestown Plate—Heatherfield.
Kingsfurze Plate—Foam.
Kildare Steeplechase—Knight Commander.
Fishery Plate—Cartermoor.

LEINSTER CUP-TIES

Wanderers and Lansdowne Meet in Second Round

TWO matches in the second round of the Leinster Senior Cup to be decided at Lansdowne road this afternoon will bring the competition to its semi-final stage. Wanderers and Lansdowne, who appear in the first match at 2.30, are fairly level on the season's form, but the recent play of Wanderers is the more encouraging. Matches between the teams usually provide keen contests, and to-day's game is likely to be of the usual character. The winning side will meet Blackrock College next Saturday.

The second match is between Clontarf and Old Wesley, and the form which the former club showed when disposing of Bective Rangers has only to be repeated to carry the side through to the semi-final to oppose University College.

The Junior Interprovincial between Leinster and Ulster at Donnybrook, and two Goulding Cup ties at Park avenue complete the small programme, which reminds us of the near approach of the close of the season.

GOLF

STRONG FINISH BY THE STROLLERS

LADIES LOSE THE FIFTH MATCH BY 5-3

By Our Golf Correspondent.

The last of the series of matches between Miss Blake's ladies' team and The Strollers, played yesterday at Portmarnock, resulted in a win for the men by five matches to three, with four halved.

It was a strong Strollers' team, including five Irish internationalists, and at one stage it looked as if the ladies, who received nine strokes in each match, were about to secure their first victory, but C. J. McMullan, W. Nolan and C. French, the last three to finish, turned the scale in favour of the men.

With a strong cross-wind from the left at the first three holes and heavy showers, the conditions were severe on the ladies, but Miss Tiernan, Mrs. Hall and Miss Pentony made light of their task, securing excellent victories. Starting at the tenth with Cecil West, Miss Tiernan opened with 4, 4, 3; in fact, she won the first five holes, and never lost her advantage, winning by 3 and 2.

John Burke had a hard match to the home green with Mrs. O'Reilly, who lost it by two holes, and, in a fighting finish with G. H. Owens, Mrs. Henshaw halved. Owens was dormy two, but Mrs. Henshaw holed a full mashie for three at the seventeenth to win it, and her stroke at the eighteenth enabled her to square.

Clifford McMullan played fine golf against Miss B. Jackson, who has a L.G.U. handicap of four at Chiselhurst, and was making her début in competitive golf here. She is a daughter of Mrs. Lionel Jackson, the former Irish internationalist, and is regarded as a "find" for Irish golf, but this is only her second round at Portmarnock, and she found the conditions, plus the golf of her opponent, too much for her. T. D. Purcell has never played so well over the links, and against Miss Margery Bermingham he had the holes in in 37.

IRELAND AT PEEBLES

Our Hopes of Success Over Scotland To-day

IRELAND'S second match of the international campaign will take place at Peebles this afternoon against Scotland, who will be completing their programme. As we have made a successful start by defeating Wales 4-1 at Limerick a fortnight ago, our hopes of success are high; for Scotland have a rather melancholy record, losing 8-1 to the Welshmen and 2-0 to England. However, they will have, on paper, a considerably stronger side out to-day than they have had in their previous games.

Against Wales the advocates for the policy of playing home Scots to the exclusion of well-tried men playing for English clubs had their way, but the home men, especially the backs and halves, failed grievously, and the whole team was reshuffled for the test against England, and the greatly improved showing was due, to a considerable extent, to the capital work of the half-backs, all of whom have been retained, and McEwan in goal. Poor shooting by the English forwards lost many goals also, and the Scottish defence has been further strengthened by the return of that great full back, E. L. McLeod. No effective substitute can be found for him among the men playing for Scottish clubs.

COMPARISON IN DEFENCE

In defence and at half-back we will probably have no advantage over our opponents. Craig and Dick are a sound pair of backs, adept at supporting each other, and McCarthy should be able to do everything asked of him in goal. We can expect Coulson to improve on his moderate display against Wales, and, if MacDonald maintains the same form, our wing halves may prove a real menace to the Scottish defence. No doubt, Power will have his hands full in watching that dangerous individualist, Laird.

In attack, Ireland should hold the winning hand. The Scottish forwards have failed twice, and have been altered considerably each time. Three new men come in to-day, Hamilton and Sinclair being new caps, while Sloan played once last season. The first-named may well liven up the line; for he has a big reputation in England; but Sinclair's abilities are open to doubt, and the attack on the whole does not give an impression of strength, especially if Power can subdue Laird.

STRONG IRISH ATTACK

On the other hand, our forwards did really well against Wales. If the combination was not a strong feature, except between McVeagh and Gray on the left, individually they all did well, and Howe, who has displaced G. N. Clarke at outside right, knows MacDonogh's play well. The latter and Haines supplied the shooting power at Limerick, and with equal opportunities to-day they will give McEwan a lively afternoon. Haines will be up against a first-class centre-half in Morrison, but I expect our centre-half to be livelier through the field, now that he has had his international baptism, and MacDonogh's recent goal-scoring feats seem to be a happy augury for his success as a marksman at Peebles.

Victory to-day, especially if we can bring it off by a convincing margin, will give us a splendid chance of winning the triple crown for the first time since 1932. England have revealed weaknesses which were not present in their great eleven of last year, and, as we oppose them at Londonbridge road in a week's time, their showing against Germany at Edgebaston this afternoon will be of interest to us. They seldom strike devastating form nowadays when they come over here, and if the Irish team does satisfactorily at Peebles we should fhave a fine chance o becoming champions again. The teams will be:—

Ireland—J. McCarthy (Pembroke Wanderers); W. M. Dick (Cliftonville), J. K. Craig (Dublin University); D. Coulson (Dublin University), R. Power (Pembroke Wanderers), J. MacDonald (North Down); J. M. NEWMARKET NOTES

Theft and the City and Suburban Fancies for Liverpool

WITH the majority of our trainers away from home operations on The Heath to-day were not very interesting. Frank Butters's classic colts, Mahmoud and Bala Hissar were given easy five furlongs exercise with Taj Akbar, Near Relation, Noble King, Theft, Conversion, and the remainder of the team. To-morrow they will be subjected to good gallops. Theft appears to be weighted up to his best form with 9st. 7lb. in the City and Suburban, but if it is the Aga Khan's intention to have him trained for that event I should not care to oppose him, as the Epsom track will suit him admirably.

H. Leader's Antique was sent nine furlongs at a striding pace. This son of Hurstwood finished up last season by winning at Catterick Bridge and at Warwick. He is nicely down in the weights for the Guy Selling Plate at Warwick on Monday, and is also entered for the Haddon Selling Plate the following day. For whichever event he contests he should require a deal of beating.

Wellesley's His Reverence was slipped along over a mile. He was a useful horse last season, winning two of his five races. It was a great performance of his when he conceded Guinea Gap 7lb. and defeated him by three-parts of a length for the Liverpool Silver Jubilee Cup in July. The handicapper has given him his share of weight in the "City."

R. Day stripped Weathervane, who, with Constant Sol and Buck Bean, had a nice six furlongs spin. This daughter of Son-in-Law is making good progress, and although she may not be capable of winning in first class company she should be successful in some minor races. The speedy Berkeley Hunt was slipped along over five furlongs, and she should be picking up a sprint event, particularly when running on tracks with downhill gradients.

Newmarket stables will not be strongly represented at Liverpool to-morrow.

BEECHY BUCKS

should be better than Ethnos filly in the Thursby Selling Plate, and will run well.

Heavy has come to grief in his last two races, and cannot be recommended with any confidence for the Champion Steeplechase.

The Earl of Sefton's Plate will be the chief item among the flat races. Pepino I expect to run well, but I am afraid to trust Trade Wind, who is temperamental. Bannlaw has been moving well in her latest gallops, and may give a good account of herself; while Boston West, although he failed in his test spin, will have benefited from the gallop. West Highland and Curraghmore have been well trained, and possess good public credentials. In taking

CURRAGHMORE (next best)

I hope to have named the winner.

SATANIC (nap)

may make amends for his defeat at Lincoln by winning the Maghull Plate.

HUNTING

MEATH HOUNDS

From the meet at Rahinstown on Wednesday hounds found in the gorse covert, and we had a nice ring via Drimlough and the Cloncurry Hills, back to the starting point. The Bog Wood held several foxes, but after some demesne hunting they were left. Then came a good 45 minutes from Moneymore, the quarry eventually beating hounds at Brannoxtown. From Trotter's there was a flying 10 minutes to ground at Little Freffans.

Hounds met at Carlanstown on Thursday, and began by finding a brace in the wild gorse at Farran Alcock. The selected one went away, pointing for Rathmanoe, but got to ground at Curraghtown, and a fox from Rathmanoe also got in after going a short distance. A fox found in the wild gorse was hunted into Screebogue and through the Plantation to ground at the Hermitage. They next had a fine hunt of 1 hour and 15 minutes from Robertstown. Going away by the river and over Norath Hill, the fox was headed on the road, and ran through the Plantation to the Blessed Well and into and through Rathmanoe covert, then on by Galliard Wood and Moynalty. Here he turned left-handed, and, crossing the Mullagh road and the river, this good fox saved his brush by getting to ground in Kingsfort. It was a very good hound hunt.

WARD UNION HOUNDS

On Wednesday the Ward Hounds travelled to Moygaddy Cross-roads to make another attempt to capture the hind which was left an outlier the previous month in the Kildare country, and which had returned to her former refuge in Carton. She was found on Mr. Connolly's land, just outside the demesne, and was away at once, again on the Kildare side, for Greenfields and Moneyclooney. Hounds ran past Cullen's covert and by Toolstown to Windgates Cross, and, leaving Tagadoe on their right, crossed part of the point-to-point course at Newtown Macabe to Graiguesallagh and Rathcoffey.

They hunted almost to Donaghadea, then swung left-handed by Kilmurry and through Bettaghstown Bog to Prosperous. Here hounds were stopped at half-past five, leaving this great hind again at large. It was a very good hunt, especially in its earlier stages, through the cream of the Kildare country, hounds hunting for over three hours, and making a nine miles point.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Lincolnshire Handicap Falls

The Lincoln Stewards inquired yesterday into the falls in the Lincolnshire Handicap. They heard the evidence of T. Hawcroft and other jockeys, and came to the conclusion that the accident was caused by horses drawn on the outside bunching together. They were unable to attribute blame to any particular jockey.

Grand National Casualties

G. Owen, rider of Castle View, injured his right arm. It is thought a small bone may have been broken. The arm is to be X-rayed. Captain Harding, rider of Buckthorn, injured his collarbone, which was recently broken. W. Parvin, Blue Prince's jockey, had his tongue injured. Mr. T. Holland-Martin, rider of Evasio Mon, broke his collarbone.

Shortly to Resume Riding

R. A. Jones, who broke his collarbone when Bow and Arrow fell in the Lincolnshire Handicap, expects to resume riding in about three weeks. He was examined in London yesterday by Mr. Frank Romer, surgeon to the Jockey Club who was satisfied with the progress that he is making.

J. Moloney X-rayed

J. Moloney, who was taken to a local hospital after he had fallen on Dracula in the Stanley Steeplechase at Liverpool on Thursday, was X-rayed yesterday. The examination was made to discover whether his pelvis is fractured, but the report has not yet been made. Moloney, who also broke his shoulder blade, is progressing favourably.

J. Dines Much Better

Johnny Dines, who fractured ribs on both sides of his body in the Lincolnshire Handicap crash, is much better. He is able to sit up in bed, and was visited by his wife yesterday.

Grand National Tote Receipts

The Tote receipts on the Grand National were £27,015 2s. 9d. to win and for a place. This is a record for a race where the hand selling of tickets is in use. The record for any race in Great Britain is £29,260 4s. 0d., the receipts for the Royal Hunt Cup last year. The total takings for the day yesterday were £61,731 10s. The previous best on Grand National day was £55,142 10s.

SWIMMING

CHAMPIONSHIP DATES

At a meeting of the Leinster Branch Council last night the Leinster v. Ulster water polo match was provisionally allotted to the Students' Union Gala.

The 100 yards men's and 220 yards ladies' free-style Irish championships were allotted to the Branch Gala, as well as the Leinster Junior and Senior Cup finals.

The three Leinster squadron championships were allotted to the Half-Moon Gala.

The Leinster section final of the Irish Cup was allotted to St. Andrew's College Gala; and the semi-final of that competition provisionally to the University College Gala.

Five venues for the Liffey Cup race were suggested, and after discussion it was decided to refer the matter to the swimming committee to inspect these venues, and report to the next meeting of the Council on April 17th.

ROWING

COMPARISON OF BOAT RACE TRIAL TIMES

One of the spectators of the training for the Boat Race yesterday was Captain R. C. Bourne, Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons and an old Oxford Blue. After seeing Oxford, he went down to Chiswick and accompanied Cambridge in a launch on a long paddle to Putney. Cambridge seemed quite fresh following their splendid full-course trial on Thursday, their rhythm being better than ever.

An interesting point was discovered about the respective merits of the crews' full-course trials. Oxford, who occupied 18 minutes 59 seconds, rowed over the recognised practice course from Putney Bridge to the first finishing post at Mortlake. Cambridge, on the other hand, rowed from the University Stone to the second finishing post—the actual race course—and occupied 18 minutes 48 seconds.

It has been generally thought that the two posts at Mortlake were the same distance apart as Putney Bridge and the University Stone—400 feet. A rough measurement has now shown that the posts are only 275 feet apart—roughly two lengths of a boat less than between bridge and stone. It would seem, therefore, that Oxford covered a greater distance than their rivals. In that case, the difference between the crews would be about five seconds.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL

BOHEMIANS' LEAD IN JEOPARDY

THE CHAMPIONS BID TO RETAIN THEIR TITLE

With Bohemians and the holders of the Free State League championship running shoulder to shoulder, as it were, and the amateurs with only a one point advantage, their meeting to-day at Tolka Park knocks all interest out of the other matches. The League records of the teams read:—

	P.	W.	D.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
Bohemians	18	14	2	2	63	22	30
Dolphin	18	14	1	3	54	28	29

The suggestion contained in these figures is that the match should be one of the finest of the season; but there are other considerations to be taken into account, and it may be that, despite of the great interest taken in it, it will turn out a disappointment as a football spectacle

First of all, a lot of rain has fallen locally during the week, and the turf is certain to cut up heavily; and the teams being cramped for space will not be to the advantage of either. Again, each side must be desperately keen on making certain of the points and the championship, and, perhaps, on that account it will develop into more of a Cup-tie than a League game

BOHEMIANS' DEFENCE MAY DECIDE IT

In such circumstances the chances of Bohemians would appear to be a bit the brighter, but after the debacle at Sligo, where they were so unexpectedly beaten by a team that afterwards could not get the better of Brideville, one has to be prepared for the worst, so far as the visitors are concerned. It has also to be borne in mind that this season they were beaten twice at Dalymount by Dolphin; but at this all-important stage it is hardly likely they will again be caught napping. Dolphin of late, however, have been doing better than their opponents, who seem to go a trifle "stale" coming to the end of the campaign. But if the Bohemian defence can get a tight grip on the Dolphin forwards and maintain it the speed and cleverness of the amateurs' front line should prove good enough for the most important jog entrusted to them this season.

Three matches will be played to-morrow in Dublin. Brideville are due at the Mardyke, Cork, and Dundalk are at home to Shamrock Rovers, but the only game of any consequence is to-day's.

CLAY BIRD SHOOTING

DEATH OF MR. E. J. GLEESON

The death took place in Dublin last week from an attack of pleurisy of Mr. E. J. Gleeson, one of the most popular figures in Irish clay pigeon shooting, and a shot with an outstanding reputation. In five years—1931-1935—he was one of Ireland's leading shots in international competition, and for a similar period was Irish Sporting Gun Club captain. In home championships he accomplished many great achievements.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY

IRELAND SHOULD BEAT WALES

FORM SUGGESTS VICTORY AT COLWYN BAY

Colwyn Bay is the venue for to-day's match between Ireland and Wales, and with it the Irishwomen conclude the season's representative games.

If the results of Wales and Ireland's matches against England form a correct guide to the chances of the teams to-day, Ireland should secure the points, as the Principality's defence was completely submerged by the English forwards, whereas at The Oval England was hard put to it to beat Ireland 3-1.

The Welsh team, however, is considered to be much stronger for this afternoon's match, but except that Miss Corkery replaces Miss K. Barry at left-back, the Irish side remains unchanged. Should the team reproduce the excellent hockey they put up against England and Scotland, Ireland should finish the season with four points.

Financial News & Notes

DUBLIN SUBDUED

BANK STOCK SUPPORTED

GREAT SOUTHERNS HIGHER

There was little life about markets on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and British Industrials inclined easier in places, but locally a firm tone prevailed.

Amongst Free State Funds, the Second National Loan eased a shade, but Land Bonds hardened to 111⅝. War Loan inclined to give way.

Bank of Ireland Stock met with good demand and gained three points at 315, and Hibernians moved up to 10 7/16, but Nationals eased slightly.

Guinness Units held 157s. 6d., but Distillers Ord. closed below the best at 99s. 9d.

Great Southern Rails made fresh headway on renewed buying. The Pref. jumped two points and the Guaranteed advanced to 84.

Dublin Tram Ord. repeated 11s. 6d., but the Pref. fell 1s.

Alliance Gas Ord. hardened to 15 11/16, and a few local preferences tended higher.

B.A.T. Ord. were again 122s. 3d., but Imperials slipped back to 153s. 9d. and Textiles were pence lower. Other changes were few and far between.

LONDON INACTIVE

BRITISH RAILS FIRM

End of account influence restricted business on the London Stock markets yesterday and inactive conditions prevailed almost generally. The undertone in most sections remained firm, however, and at the finish movements, though rarely significant, were usually favourable to holders. The Industrial market provided a few interesting features, predominant among them being a spurt in English Electric on the good results for the past year, while the increasing pressure on the French franc in the Foreign Exchange market was responsible for an upward tendency in the usual French favourites in the Kaffir and Oil sections.

BRITISH FUNDS

The demand from Continental sources which arose for Gilt-edged stocks on Thursday subsided, and the volume of business transacted was not sufficiently large to bring about any further movement in quotations.

FOREIGN BONDS

In an idle Foreign Bond section the uncertainty over political developments caused early dulness in Germans, but later prices hardened and closed unchanged. A decline of ½ to 22¼ in French Fours was, in fact, the only movement of note in European Bonds. Among South Americans, Peru Corporations were sold and gave way all round, but Brazilians were maintained. Interest in Far Easterns was centred in certain Chinese Railway Bonds, which showed gains ranging up to 2.

RAILS

British Rails were slightly more active, as the belief that agreement has been reached between the companies and the employés on the wages question stimulated a modest revival of interest. The market was firm throughout, and Great Western Ord., L.M.S. Ord. and Southerns all finished at higher levels. Among Foreign Rails Antofagasta Ord. were inquired for and advanced to 22, but Cordoba Centrals and one or two others turned dull owing to liquidation. American Rails showed firmness, with Atchison and Southern Pacific featuring, and Colonials, apart from Canadas, were steady.

INDUSTRIALS.

Business in Industrials was on small lines and, owing to end of account selling, quotations fluctuated somewhat undecidedly. Electrical Equipments were a firm market, with English Electric and Associated Electric especially bright features, and in the Stores group Marks and Spencers went ahead in anticipation of good results for the current year. Motors were fairly active and Tillings, Standards and Leylands changed hands freely, although final values were not greatly altered. Aircrafts, however, remained on the dull side and trans-Atlantics lost ground under the influence of Wall street. Tobaccos, Breweries and Iron and Steels moved narrowly and closed steady.

MINES

In the Mining market end of account profit-taking caused dulness in Kaffirs at the outset, but later in the day support from the Continent was responsible for a rally in prices and the market finished firm. West Africans remained out of favour and small losses were the rule among Australians, but Indian Gold shares were in the ascendant.

LONDON "STREET" MARKET

Very quiet conditions prevailed in the "Street" market last evening, and little of interest developed. Movements in the American section were narrow and irregular, and prices were inclined to ease. Nickels finished around 48⅞, Tractions eased to 12 7/16, and Radios were offered at 13 1/16. Steels lost ⅛ to 64½, "Canadas" were a shade lower at 12 11/16, and New York Centrals finished around 35½ sellers. Shell Union were ⅛ off at 17⅜, Anacondas reacted to 7 7/16, and Chryslers closed at 96½. Hydros and Holdings were offered at 8 7/16 and 2, respectively. Elsewhere Dunlops were quoted a few pence easier at 39s. 9d.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

CONDITIONS STILL SUBDUED

Dealers in the Industrial market yesterday were mainly occupied with preliminary arrangements for the carry-over on Monday. The movements which occurred in prices were mainly in connection with the evening-up of books. The chief feature of interest was a recovery in English Electric issues following the publication of the annual report.

The trans-Atlantic counters reflected the uncertain trend of Wall street, and, as there was little doing on this side, they finished with a dull appearance.

Among Electrical Equipments English Electrics were a better market on the results for the past year. The Ords. closed with an improvement of 1s. 4½d., while the Prefs. rose 1s. 9d. Generals were steady at 78s., there being renewed bonus talks.

FIRM SPOTS IN STEELS.

Business in Iron and Steel descriptions was on a small scale, but firm spots were not lacking. Clarke Chapman met with buyers and advanced 1s. to 36s.

Aircraft and kindred descriptions again had a dull appearance. Further realisations of Rolls-Royce resulted in a decline of 1/16; Phillips and Powis fell 1s. 3d., and losses of 6d. occurred in several places.

A fair amount of attention was directed to Motor shares, which generally maintained a satisfactory tendency. Fords improved 6d., and Thomas Tilling were up to a like extent.

STORES SUPPORTED.

Marks and Spencer were again a firm spot in the Stores section, putting on 1/16 to 4 11/16 in anticipation of good results. Woolworths were steady at 121s. 9d. In the Provision and Catering group, Unilever was supported at 32s. 6d., and the N.V. at 35s. 6d. Tate and Lyle were a few pence harder.

Textiles proved rather uncertain, and changes were again limited.

A few end-account realisations caused some irregularity among Breweries. Guinness, Ind Coope, Barclay Perkins and Marston Thompson all received a little support, but Charringtons, Courage, Friary, Holroyd and Walker Cain shed a few pence.

TOBACCOS UNCERTAIN.

Apart from United Souths, the Tobaccos group had an uncertain appearance. Gallahers reacted to 6 5/16, while "Imps" lost the turn.

Few changes of importance were apparent in the Miscellaneous section, although the tone was somewhat easier. Dunlop Rubbers lost a few pence to 39s. 9d. Elsewhere, Swedish Ball Bearings were again favoured.

OILS QUIET

Dealers again reported an extremely small turnover in Oil shares, and in only a few cases did business influence prices. Factors making for a continuance of quiet conditions included the uncertainty in regard to the European political situation, the end of the account, and the close of the Stock Exchange year. These were sufficient to make the market even quieter than during the earlier days of the week.

RUBBERS FEATURELESS

Idle conditions again existed in the Rubber Share market yesterday, and with business resulting mainly from liquidation by tired holders, prices continued to move unfavourably. In the commodity section business remained quiet, with spot rubber selling up to 7⅛d. per lb. U.K. rubber stocks are estimated to have been reduced by 1,150 tons during the past week.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

Britannic Assurance Company

The report, which appears in another column, shows that the above company broke all previous records in 1935. Its total income was £6,207,962, being an increase over the previous year of £246,583, while its income from interest and dividends alone exceeded £1,000,000. The claims amounted to £2,633,746, of which £1,325,762 was in respect of matured endowments. In the ordinary branch the new business amounted to £3,654,000. £264,291 has been allotted to provide a reversionary bonus of £1 18s. per £100 sum assured in the ordinary branch (immediate profit class), and £238,235 has been set aside to provide a bonus on industrial branch policies. During the last four years alone the directors have allocated from the surpluses of the industrial branch a total sum of £858,305 to industrial branch policyholders, striking evidence, indeed, of the company's regard for the interests of its policyholders. The funds at the close of the year were almost £26,000,000. The Irish division, which has its chief office at 90 Harcourt street, Dublin, had a remarkably good year in 1935, the figures in the ordinary branch in the Free State being a record. As usual, a very large percentage of the prizes offered by the company has been won by the Irish division, including the first and second prizes.

India 5½ p.c. Loan

Notice was given in the London Gazette last night by the Secretary of State for India in Council that it is his intention to redeem at par on July 15 the amount of Government of India 5½ per cent. Stock, 1936-38 outstanding on that date. Payment will be made at the Bank of England. An issue of £17,181,249 of this stock was made in February, 1931, and the present amount outstanding is £16,858,059.

Commercial Buildings' Meeting

The annual general assembly of the Commercial Buildings Company, Dublin, was held in the Corn Exchange Buildings, Burgh quay, on the 25th inst., James M. Sweetman, Esq., K.C., in the chair. A dividend for the year ended the 31st December, 1935, of £3 per share, free of tax, equal to 6 per cent., was declared. The directors were re-elected with the addition of Mr. James Foxall, who was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy, due to the death of his father, the late Mr. John Foxall.

English Electric

Following the announcement of greatly improved results for the past year it is expected that the English Electric Company will shortly formulate a scheme for the conversion of its Debenture stocks. There are two issues, one bearing 5½ per cent., the outstanding amount of which is £604,200, and the other a 6 per cent. security, of which the outstanding amount is £450,936. The company will probably replace these by a 4 per cent. security, thus effecting a considerable saving in interest charges. The question of a payment on the Ordinary shares cannot be considered until the arrears on the 6½ per cent. Preferences have been met. By the end of this year such arrears will amount to three years, involving a gross sum of nearly £74,000.

THE MONEY MARKET

TREASURY BILL RATE LOWER

Applications were received at the Bank of England yesterday for £40,000,000 Treasury bills. Tenders dated Monday of next week at £99 17s. 5d. get about 41 per cent., above in full. Tenders dated Tuesday to Saturday at £19 17s. 6d., and above receive in full. The rate indicated is about 10s. per cent., compared with 10s. 5·15d. per cent. for last week's bills.

The price of gold was 1d. higher at 140s. 11½d. per fine ounce. The premium over the dollar was lower at 6¼d. on a rate of 4.95⅝, while the premium over the franc rose to 10¼d. on a rate of 75 1/16. Gold to the value of £225,000 was sold.

Silver declined 1/16 further on speculative selling to 19 11/16d. per ounce for spot and to 19⅞d. for forward delivery.

Short loans were in good supply at ½ per cent., while discount rates were steady, most houses quoting 9/16 to 11/16 for fine three months' bills.

The accentuation of the flight of capital from France to London and New York was the outstanding feature of the London foreign exchange market yesterday. Although the operations of the "control" naturally had a limiting effect, movements in rates were materially wider than for some time past, while the day's turnover was considerable. Continental buying of dollars was assuming still larger proportions, and in the absence of any official intervention from New York until the afternoon the dollar gained ground in terms of both franc and sterling. The London authorities permitted a very slight advance in sterling in relation to the franc at the opening of the market, but intervened very shortly and "pegged" the rate, with repeated sales of sterling for the remainder of the day. In the circumstances the real trend of the market found a more reliable reflection in the forward market. Here discounts on the franc were pronounced, the three months rate being equivalent to an interest rate of some 17 per cent. at the close.

CHEERFUL TONE IN KAFFIRS

Further consideration of the new taxation proposals of the Union Government induced a better feeling in the Kaffir department, but owing to the approach of the week-end and the settlement, and with a long account covering the Easter holidays in prospect, dealings yesterday were on a limited scale. Still the feeling of confidence occasioned by the new regulations gradually spread, and generally speaking prices responded accordingly. Among the Finance descriptions Central Mining stood out prominently, while Rand Mines and Goldfields went ahead sharply. There was no pronounced change in the Rhodesian situation, though Chartered and Cam and Motor continued on the upgrade. Closing prices:—

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS

Amalgamated Anthracite Collieries.—Trading profits amounted to £272,310 in 1935, after providing for profits and losses of subsidiary companies. This compares with £409,166 in the previous year and £361,517 in 1933. After paying Debenture interest, etc., the net profit is £143,112, against £292,183. Provision for the redemption of Debenture Stock and funding certificates and interest on the funding certificates requires £136,112, leaving £144,547, which is carried forward. As already announced, the directors have decided not to pay any dividend on the Preference Shares for 1935.

Anglo-American Corporation of South Africa.—The accounts of the Anglo-American Corporation of South Africa for the twelve months ended December 31 last show that the profits amounted to £819,823, in contrast with £829,235 for the preceding twelve months, while £139,266 was brought in. Government taxation absorbed £70,000, against £50,000, and directors' special remuneration £23,000, against £22,000; reserve fund £200,000, against £600,000. As already announced, a dividend of 20 per cent has been paid on the Ordinary shares, against 10 per cent. for 1934, leaving a balance of £146,089 to be carried forward.

British Timken.—Dividend of 10 per cent., less tax, for the year (against 8 per cent.).

Bukit Cloh Rubber.—Dividend of ¾d. per share for the year (against 1¾d.).

Bahru Selangor Rubber.—Dividend of 3⅛ per cent. for the year (against 8 1-3 per cent.)

Sovis.—Ordinary shareholders are to receive a bonus of one 5 per cent. Redeemable Preference share of 5/- for every 50 Ordinary 1/- Shares already held. The directors propose that £17,500 of the general reserve be capitalised and applied in payment in full at par for 70,000 5 per cent. Redeemable Preference Shares of 5/-, ranking for dividend and repayment in a winding up after the existing 7½ per cent. Preference Shares. The new shares will be allotted to holders of Ordinary Shares in the proportion of one for every 50 Ordinary Shares held. It is proposed that the capital should be increased to £400,000 by the creation of 400,000 of the Redeemable Preference Shares. This will permit of the present issue and of a further 330,000 shares being available for subsequent issue.

Geduld Proprietary Mines.—Working profit rose by £52,994 to the record of £1,466,054. Working revenue at £2,303,587 was also the highest since milling began in 1908. After two dividends totalling 70 per cent., against 67½ per cent., in 1934, £296,290 was carried forward, against £275,585.

The Ordinary distribution totals 18½ per cent. For 1934 the payment was 15 per cent., but in that year, following the interim payment, the nominal value of the £1 Ordinary Shares was reduced to 15/- by cancelling the uncalled liability of 5/- per share. The transfer to Ordinary reserve is increased from £21,000 to £35,000, and, after placing £5,000 to staff retiring allowance reserve, the carry forward is higher at £188,833.

After allowing for directors' fees and Debenture interest, etc., the net profit was £130,142, compared with £31,902 a year ago. The surplus arising from the liquidation of Willans and Robinson, amounted to £137,689, making an available balance of £267,811, from which was deducted the debit of £245,368 brought in, leaving a credit balance of £22,463 to go forward. The directors recommend provision for Swedish taxes of Swedish Kr.1,400,000, against Swedish Kr.1,000,000, and a final dividend of 6 per cent., making in all 10 per cent for 1935, against 9 per cent. for 1934. THE AMERICAN MARKETS

STOCKS ALMOST STAGNANT

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, Friday.

Stock Exchange operators were much disappointed to-day by the absence of any follow-through on the recent advances. The movement of the market was lower throughout, and closing losses touching $2 were numerous. Sales totalled only 1,550,000 shares.

The final operations were dull in the extreme, with the market showing little recuperative power, and the close was weak. Losses extending to $2 were registered by the Industrial, Mining, Farm Implement, Oil, and Motor group. The Chemical section fell fractions to $3, Allied Chemical exceptionally losing $5, while heaviness was also apparent in American Telephone, Western Union, Douglas Aircraft, Wright Aeronautical, and Johns-Manville.

Sterling exchange opened ⅛c. down at 4.95¼. The rate remained at this level until near the close, and then declined and closed 1c. lower, compared with the previous close, at 4.94¾.

Silver was unchanged at 44¾c.

AMERICAN FINANCIAL NOTES

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

COPPER CURTAILMENT RUMOURED.

A rumour that a discussion is to take place on the further curtailment of the production of domestic copper is believed to be correct in usually well-informed copper circles. Some quarters are of the opinion that curtailment might even be of an international character.

The Kennecott Copper Corporation reports for 1935 a net profit of 13,165,000 dollars—equal to 1.22 dollars per share—compared with 5,720,000 dollars (53 cents) for 1934.

LAWN TENNIS

COACHING FOR LEINSTER JUVENILES

A great deal has been done to raise the standard of juvenile play in Leinster during the last few years, and the coaching provided by the Leinster Council has accomplished much in that direction.

For several seasons H. Knibbs, the well-known professional, has been retained, and has done splendid work in Dublin and other parts of the province. Knibbs has recently put up covered courts near Liverpool, and, running them as a business proposition, he is disinclined to leave them, so that he has been unable to accept the Dublin engagement. In the circumstances, the Leinster Council has been fortunate to secure the services of Smith, whose reputation as a player and instructor, stands high, and who has been coach at the Woolwich Military Academy.

Coaching will, as in other years, be carried on at the Anglesea L.T.C. Grounds, Donnybrook, and it is hoped to make a start on next Wednesday, April 1st.

Clubs and schools wishing to take advantage of the opportunity should send in the names of not more than two players at once to Miss M. King, 65 Kenilworth square, Rathgar, Dublin. These players must have been under 18 years of age on January 1st last, and must have played in a recognised open junior tournament, or be members of their schools' cup team.

The following are the members of the Leinster Council coaching committee:—Mrs. Price, Captain Daly, Messrs. A. J. Ferguson, F. Harte Barry, R. A. C. Barrett, R. F. Egan, A. P. Dawson.

I.L.T.A. SUB-COMMITTEES

The following appointments of sub-committees have been made by the General Council of the I.L.T.A.:—

Selection Committee—Messrs. Almond, Barry, S. F. Scroope, De Vere Crossley, H. Cronin, Mrs Price.

Match Committee—Messrs. Almond, Barry, Egan, Walsh.

Emergency Committee—Messrs Dawson, Walsh, Maunsell.

Ranking Committee—Messrs. Almond, Harrisson, Harte-Barry, Walsh, De Vere Crossley, H. Cronin, Mrs. Price.

Dr. A. P. Barry was elected captain of the international teams and Mr C. S. Almond was elected as representative on the International Lawn Tennis Federation, etc.

The international match between Ireland and England has been fixed for Monday and Tuesday, July 6 and 7, at Fitzwilliam.

GAELIC GAMES

FOOTBALL LEAGUE TESTS

TEAM PROSPECTS FOR TO-MORROW

BY PATO.

Four matches in the closing stages of the National Football League will have a wide-spread interest to-morrow. Cavan and Mayo (each 2 points down) must win their matches at Portleix and Ballina if they are to resist Dublin's steady climb (4 points down). The Metropolitans visit Droichead-Nua to meet Kildare, and likewise must score full points if Dublin's hopes are to be extended to the final round.

The Kildare selectors have been enterprising, and we shall see half-a-dozen promoted juniors on trial. Kildare have no prospects in the League as possible winners, but they have an interest in team-building for the approaching Leinster championships. Their debated goal position is being filled by a new man, J. Mella, and Crofton, Moran, Brosnan and O'Hara are replacing the old leaders, Matt Goff, John Higgins, Pat Martin and Tom Keogh. This is a young Kildare side, with pace and Kildare skill. The newcomers will gain much benefit in close match play from a seasoned side like Dublin. The Dublin selectors have done well, in my opinion, in bringing Colin Boland, the U.C.D. inter-county hurler, into centre-field to partner his football clubmate, Mortimer Kelly, of Geraldines. Gargan moves back into O'Shea's (injured) place at right-half, and the six forwards who played so well against Meath at Navan have been retained. Should Lynam find his best form, Dublin may collect two useful points, but I have great respect for Kildare on their home ground.

CAVAN MUST WIN

Heartened by their hurlers' success last Sunday, the Laoighis footballers should give Cavan a good game at O'Moore Park. Believing that Cavan's lapse at Dundalk will have sharpened their preparation, I think that the reappearance of J. Smith in the defence will give the champions the necessary steadiness and inspiration. Cavan must win, as current form points to Mayo's success at Ballina, where they have Tipperary as visitors. Kenny and Flannelly won the Railway Cup on March 17th by their enterprise, and the Courell-Moclair-Munnelly line should do the rest.

I expect a very close game at Drogheda, where Louth and Meath should be well matched. Louth play their best football on a dry, calm day, and their home ground suits them least, as it catches every breeze that blows. Neither county are within striking distance of the leaders. Should Cavan and Mayo win through this round, the decisive game of the League is likely to materialise at Breffni Park, where the Northern and Western champions meet. The fact that the Ulster and Leinster Colleges meet earlier in the afternoon should ensure a record attendance on the eve of Cavan's departure to America.

The standard of hurling in the Munster and Leinster colleges is very high. Munster have had a big majority of wins, yet I think they will be fully extended at Nowlan Park, Kilkenny, to-morrow. The local C.B.S. team (Leinster champions) form the back-bone of the challengers with half-a-dozen good hurlers from Blackrock College, Dublin.

Dublin's Senior Hurling League resumes to-morrow at Parnell Park and Coolock. As a barometer to the championship, the form of the teams will be closely followed. Faughs will have their Galway captures—Gill (junior) and Quinn—on view at O'Curran Park, and Garda's new side will be extended by Civil Service at Donnycarney.
